ties, cut out, would no doubt be extremely interesting. At all events, it would be great fun—and perhaps a great advantage to society—to see an experiment, on a much larger scale than that to which an individual "academic pariah" can operate in his own class. Of course, such an experiment would labor under the disapproval, and the verberate scorn, of organized "education". Such an experiment would be quite purposeless in many fields, elementary engineering, study, pharmacy, the dental profession, medical study. But, ah, how beautifully it would adapt itself, this "noble experiment," humane in motive, to training in the creative fields, philosophy, literature, history, the classics, architecture and its allied arts of painting and sculpture. It would involve a sort of revolution in fields that have been called, by courtesy, "intellectual." But it would be a bloodless revolution after all, for the things against which enthusiastic human nature would revolt are dead already, they only need to be gathered up and buried.

Mr. Henry Saylor, editor of "Architecture" wrote Professor Cunningham as follows: "I rather imagine we will receive plenty of comment, mostly favorable, on your article." Such seems to be the case, Professor Cunningham having already received several letters of commendation on his article, including those from H. B. McGonigle, Dr. of Architecture and designer of Plymouth Congregational church in Lincoln, and Lee Lawrie, who worked on the Nebraska capitol.

and fix maximum hours of work part," the Chancellor continued. "There is no power or law that can be employed in the enforcement of this program except conscience and opinion," he said.

"If our people have no money, they cannot buy. If they cannot buy, we cannot manufacture. If we do not make goods, we cannot pay wages and salaries. Without wages and salaries there will be no sales. This vicious circle must be broken somewhere or the depression will go on and on," elaborated Chancellor Burnett. "Where can it be broken? There is only one place in that cycle where a start can be made and that is for industry and business—all of it—to start the wheels by employing people who are unemployed, by virtually paying them money until it is paid through the sales process that will inevitably come when people have money with which to buy."

COUNCIL DETERMINES ELIMINATE POLITICS

adopted by the committee and presented two weeks ago for consideration.

Another matter in connection with reorganization to be discussed at the meeting is that of the appointment of a permanent committee on committees. This committee, consisting of a group of students and faculty advisers, is to appoint all committees handling interfraternity council functions on a non-political basis. As an alternative to this plan, it was suggested that only senior representatives be appointed to committees.

Fraternities on the campus have discussed these various plans at their meetings during the past two weeks, and the delegates from each house will report their decisions tonight. If one plan is adopted, reorganization of the council will be completed immediately, officers of the council said.

Why—

Chesterfields are Milder

TOBACCO to grow, to ripen and become mellow, has to take in or absorb something... not Vitamin D, of course, but something that it gets from the right amount of Sunshine

It's the Southern sunshine you read about, combined with the right sort of climate and moisture, that makes the Carolinas, Georgia, Kentucky, Maryland, and Virginia the best tobacco country in the world.

You can stand down there in that Southern sunshine and almost see it grow.

This ripe, mellow tobacco is skillfully cured by the farmer. Then, for 30 months, it's aged—just like fine wine.

It takes the right quantity of each kind of these tobaccos, blended and cross-blended—then seasoned with Turkish, to make a milder cigarette. Sunshine helps. Just try it!
