

CAMPUSOCIETY

THE FIRST REHEARSAL of the high spot in the military ball, the grand march, in the coliseum last night was quite an event in more ways than one. Of course the variety of attires and the lack of uniforms did not give the practice the color of the real thing, but it'll be quite impressive Friday night. And several old romances seem to have been revived, not to mention new ones which have sprung up recently, if anything can be deduced from an examination of the list of couples who will take part in the big parade. Statements made by the girls indicate that gowns worn that night will be in every color of the rainbow, with black and red the most popular hues. It'll be a sight worth seeing to watch the grand march Friday night, even if all of you can't be in it.

AND AS FOR corsages, according to Lincoln florists, gardenias, red and white roses, and sweet peas are the most popular choice of flowers. Gardenias go particularly well with jet black and red gowns, white roses and sweet peas grace white dresses the best. Shoulder and wrist corsages are most popular.

BECAUSE THEY won second place in the scholarship ratings, the actives of Phi Omega Pi are in the parlors of the Home Economics building on the Ag campus. Helen Smrha of Grand Island, and Lorraine Brake and Mary Frances Kingley of Lincoln are the new initiates. Miss Bess Steele presented a talk and Miss Eloise Perry played a group of piano selections. Those in charge were Miss Florence Corbin, Mrs. Townsend Smith, Mrs. J. E. Alexi and Miss Edith Carse.

LAST NIGHT at the Cornhusker hotel, pledges of Beta Gamma Sigma, honorary commercial organization, were initiated in a ceremony preceding a six-thirty banquet, which about forty attended. J. Edward Kilgore, president, presided, and Prof. J. E. Kirschman spoke. Mrs. Florence Benson, former national treasurer, was a guest.

IF IT ISN'T bridge it's some sort of sewing, and with the Alpha Xi Delta Mothers it's quilting, for during their regular business meetings they are working on a quilt for the housemother. Mrs. W. E. McNeil and Mrs. Shaw will be the hostesses at the 1:30 desert luncheon at the house tomorrow, which about sixteen will attend.

ALUMS ARE being honored at the Phi Omega Pi Mothers club Christmas party at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. Charles Mohrman, Mrs. W. H. Strohecker and Mrs. Arthur Tehmiller are in charge of the affair, which about forty are expected to attend. The decorations will be in a Christmas theme.

IN LINCOLN for the week end will be Miss Arta Kocken, of Minneapolis, national inspector of Chi Omega as a guest of the local chapter. She will be entertained at a formal dinner at the house Saturday evening given by both the actives and alumnae. Miss Kocken will speak at the dinner, which is being arranged by Mary Gilmore. Table appointments will be in cardinal and straw, the sorority colors.

AND CHRISTMAS plans will be discussed at the meeting of the Phi Gam Mothers club this afternoon at 2:30 at the home of Mrs. C. A. Blanchard.

A COVERED dish luncheon will be given at the chapter house today by the Alpha Delta Theta Mothers club.

AFTER a six months stay in Europe, Faith Arnold, Theta, is back in Lincoln.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT MUST EXIST THRUOUT THE SEASON WITH SOCIAL CASE WORKER; SENIORS IN COURSE GETTING EXPERIENCE.

anticipate the use of trained field workers, and that county public relief will tend to follow the standards for training set by the federal government.

Must Find Better Workers.

"Our problem today is to find better social workers," says Dr. Williams. "Investigations as they are now carried on are, for the most part, superficial. There is no program of treatment, and the help given is an opiate, rather than a cure. County and private boards, too often, look for hard-hearted, or soft-hearted workers, instead of seeking those who are understanding. Out of such confusion and ineffectual treatment, chronic cases cannot help but develop."

Because of these things, training for social work, as it is given at the university, aims at teaching the students to make a social diagnosis of each case. They are taught to find what the difficulty is, what the chances for recovery are, and to follow out the course of social treatment decided upon. One of the difficulties in carrying on the instruction is the demand by universities and professional schools for class A social agencies in which to do field work. One standard family welfare agency, at least, must be available within the community.

Special cases of various types are provided for the senior majors at the university thru the Lincoln social welfare society, which is a private family agency of standard grade. People who are in need or in trouble are interviewed by the student and perhaps by the instructor.

The problems presented range from child training to debts and property troubles. Usually the matters are very serious before the family has applied to the agency. As examples of cases that appear: A man, head of the family is very ill, and his wife and children are without food or money. Perhaps there is no furniture or bedding in the house. Another family fears being without a home because rent is long overdue. It may be that the income is large enough, but is wrongly budgeted, so that help is needed in doing that. Workers on such cases plan with the person and try to help from the available resources. It may mean finding means of paying the rent; it may mean bringing an angry husband or wife back to the home; it may mean bringing in a doctor; a nurse, or an employer to offer a job. After seeing what the persons can do to help themselves, the students and instructor go over the case, trying to arrive at the right solution.

Always such work requires tact, and a lot of plain common sense and judgment. Without permitting the troubled families to lose their ideals and self respect, it is necessary that the workers attempt to help them work out of the difficulties for themselves.

"Most encouraging among the traits of human beings," said Miss Powell, who conducts the field work, "is that they have such marvelous resistance to trouble and hardship. Whatever we do is nearly always gratefully received, and apparently it takes a lot to keep men from coming back with fight. Human nature can meet bad conditions and is slow to crack. We only hope that aid can be given to all needy persons in time, so that they may not lose their spirit and hope."

HEALTH REPORT SHOWS INCREASE OF DISEASE

Scarlet Fever Heads List; Director Bartholomew Makes Report.

Statistics from the report of State Health Director Bartholomew show that contagious diseases in Nebraska increased during the month of November over the previous month and over the same period last year.

Heading the list is scarlet fever with 175 new cases in November, compared with 68 in October and 153 in November, 1932.

Diphtheria Decreased.

Next on the list is diphtheria, with 39 cases for November of this year as against 119 for the same period a year ago. There were 17 cases reported in October.

Influenza during November this year claimed a count of 27 with only 8 during October and but 1 case in November of last year.

There were 24 and 297 sufferers from smallpox and chickenpox, respectively, in the state last month, with 1 and 48 in October. A year ago the records show 13 and 88.

Other diseases on record for the month of November are: Measles, 32; tuberculosis, 18; and poliomyelitis, 5. No. cases of meningitis were reported.

Smallpox in Omaha.

Twenty-one of the twenty-four smallpox cases were in Omaha and two in Lincoln, where there were 10 cases of scarlet fever and some of diphtheria while Omaha had 61 of scarlet fever and 8 of diphtheria.
