Kappa Alpha Theta Heads Honor Roll as First Donor; Publish List Daily Naming Organizations and Individuals Contributing.

Approval and commendation of the administration was given Wednesday to the Daily Nebraskan drive among organized houses and clubs on the campus to secure old clothes for distribution among the needy in Lincoln.

Dean of Women Amanda Heppner stated, "I think that it is a fine thing for students to have an opportunity to think about the needs and sufferings of others and to have a chance to share with the needy."

Dean of Student Affairs T. J. Thompson in commenting on the drive declared that he believed it is a commendable thing for students to take an interest in their fellow men and to show their interest by placing the garments in the hands of an agency that can take care of the distribution.

Need Warm Attire. The secretary of the Social Welfare bureau, Miss M. James, said that this year the agencies are particularly in need of warm clothing—more so than food. She stated that the old clothes which are turned over to the bureau by the Nebraskan will be given to the Red Cross to be put in good condition. Then they are to be distributed from the various relief agencies which make up the Lincoln Council of Social Agencies.

Mrs. Hattie Plum Williams, professor of sociology at the university, in commenting on the drive stated, "I believe the Nebraskan's campaign for old clothing meets a definite and pressing need this winter."

According to Bernard Jennings, who is in charge of the drive, the campaign will be carried on in each house by the president or some person appointed by him. It will be the duty of the leader to collect all old clothing and see that it is

Nine Social Case Majors in Their Final Year of University Training Are Working With Lincoln Needy

Twenty-five years ago the first training course for social work in a state university was founded at the University of Nebraska, when Dr. George Howard established the department with the appointment of Dr. Lucile Eaves, in 1909, as its head. Dr. Howard was at that time chairman of the department of Sociology and Political Science and his selection went to an experienced social worker.

Today there are nine senior students majoring in social work, specializing in case work. Twice each week they contact dependent families, supplying food, fuel and clothing. This is the only technical course offered by the department that has been steadily growing during the past quarter of a century, in its business of creating a supply for the ever increasing demand for trained social workers.

Mrs. Williams is Head. With Dr. Eaves directing the department during its first six years of existence, it has since been under the supervision of Dr. Hattie Plum Williams, professor of practical sociology who graduated from the University of Nebraska in 1902. Miss Esther H. Powell was appointed this fall to take charge of family case work.

In Dr. Williams' course there are some forty-five students, majoring in the various specific fields that her course offers. The actual case work is done through the Social Welfare Society of Lincoln, by the nine students supervised by Miss Powell, Viola Vail, Mrs. Dorothy Hubbard and Grace Bennett, who are graduate students, and Helen Still, Elizabeth Rowen, Margaret Hunter, Rosina Cross, Louise Stiles and Elizabeth Hansen, who will graduate next June, are specializing in family case work.

Scientific charity, which is their mission, has become exceptionally important within the last few years since the adverse economic conditions have placed so many people in such desperate financial stress. How they apply their knowledge and solve the problems that face them was brought to light in a recent interview with a number of them which offers pertinent reality to the picture one might have formed in his mind.

Dr. Bengtson plans to discuss the development of industry and politics in Venezuela in his address. In making geographical investigations in Venezuela, Dr. Bengtson became thoroughly familiar with the country and the life and government of its inhabitants. He will illustrate his lecture with pictures taken by himself and subject matter of the talk will be based upon his observations in the South American country.

BARB COUNCIL IS OPPOSED TO NEW PARTY PROPOSAL

Function of Organization Is Direction of Present Varsity Dances.

At the Wednesday afternoon meeting of the Barb Council the organization voted approval of the student activities tax proposal which is now being revived by the Student Council. At the same time the group declared itself in opposition to the Varsity party proposition which has been discussed by the student governing body during the past few weeks.

Taking the stand that the University or Varsity parties are now being conducted with efficiency by the Barb Council, that group of representatives of the unaffiliated students voted direct opposition to the idea of the student council placing the dances in the hands of a committee comprised of both Barbs and Greeks.

Altho the organization disapproved of certain of the specifications of the student activities tax plan, it indicated its approval of the proposition as a whole.

The chairman of the council, Burton Marvin, announced that a report concerning the party which was held last Saturday night will be made at the meeting next Wednesday.

SCHEDULE CHRISTMAS MIXER FOR SATURDAY

New Low Prices for Event Are Announced by Ag Executive Board.

The Christmas Ag Mixer will be held in the Student Activities building on the ag campus Saturday, Howard White, in charge of the affair, announced Wednesday.

A new price range of twenty-five cents for men and ten cents for women was announced for the event by Vernon Filley. The new prices are being tried in an effort to prove that a party can be successfully conducted while charging less, Filley stated. The Ag executive board, which sponsors ag mixers, will attempt to make the Christmas party an annual event, he declared.

A special invitation to the affair is being extended all Farm-Ops, special agriculture students. The party which is open to all students, will begin at 8:30 it was announced. Students must present identification cards.

Assisting Howard White in arrangements for the party are Bill Donahue and Florence Buxman.

DEBATE VARSITY PARTY PROPOSAL

Student Council Reaches No Decision After Discussing Plan Wednesday; Filley Appears to Protest Change; Table Matter Till January.

SUGGEST JOINT GREEK-BARB PARTY GROUP. Measure Creating Board to Organize Orchestra Booking Office for Campus Affairs Passed; Deny Open Night Request of Corn Cobs.

With no decision reached after nearly an hour of vigorous debate on the subject of varsity parties at its regular meeting Wednesday, the student council definitely decided to table the matter until after Christmas vacation.

The Wednesday session was featured by the introduction of a motion which provided for a committee of eight composed equally of Greeks and Barbs, to be in charge of the proposed party. Under the plan, the profits of the parties would go into a sinking fund for future parties or would be transferred to a student union building fund.

Filley Appears for Barbs. Vernon Filley, representing the Barb council at the meeting, opposed the measure, declaring that the Barb council was fulfilling the purpose of the parties under the present arrangement. "This is the only thing that barbs have," Filley stated. "The orchestras for the parties have been good as have the crowds. I don't believe they would be any more successful under the new plan and as for profits, they would not be large enough to warrant the establishment of such funds as the council is considering."

UNICAMERAL IDEA CONSIDERED GOOD BY PORTERFIELD

Secretary to Bryan Discusses Present System's Defects At Commercial Club.

Unicameral legislation was presented to the Men's Commercial club of the university in a meeting Wednesday night by Harold B. Porterfield, secretary to Governor C. W. Bryan, as being a remedy for the many faults of bicameral legislation.

Mr. Porterfield began his lecture by tracing the development of the state legislative systems. He declared that they were all based upon the national congressional plan, which had reasons for use of two-house legislation, where as there was no need present in the states for such two-house legislation.

Government Too Complex. "On the contrary, there has always been considerable criticism of the complicated structures of our state governments and the two-house legislature has received its share of that criticism. No state has yet seen fit to depart from that form as yet but it is now proposed by one of Nebraska's foremost statesmen," Secretary Porterfield said, "that our state shall take the lead in adopting a legislative structure intended to be simpler."
