

The Daily Nebraskan Station A, Lincoln, Nebraska OFFICIAL STUDENT PUBLICATION UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA Associated Collegiate Press

Entered as second-class matter at the postoffice in Lincoln, Nebraska, under act of congress, March 3, 1879, and at special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, act of October 3, 1917, authorized January 20, 1922.

This Matter Of Promptness.

EXPERIMENTAL psychologists, studying the relation between people's attitudes and their actions, tested a class of college students on their attitude toward being late to classes.

The Student Pulse

Brief, concise contributions pertinent to matters of student life at the university are welcomed by this department.

Egoistic or Altruistic?

The Daily Nebraskan is now sponsoring a drive to collect old clothing for the needy. In order to make such a drive a success, it must have the co-operation of every organized house on the campus.

Ag College

Last Monday at 4 o'clock members of the home economics faculty and several of the girls representing Ag organizations met in the home economics parlors for the traditional hanging of the greens.

important. His punctual brother has no reason for considering it significant. The psychologists were right again.

The Girls' Chance.

TODAY is the day. That is so far as the Mortar Boards' party is concerned. From smatterings of gossip heard here and there on the campus we wonder who is getting the biggest kick out of the affair, the girls or their dates.

For Your Benefit.

THE most recent request made to the Nebraskan is that we print daily a list of gift suggestions for—1. Mother, 2. Father, 3. Brother, 4. Sister, 5. Wife, 6. Husband, 7. Boy? 8. Girl?

Clothes In Demand.

IT rather looks as though Nebraska students will have to contribute to the old clothes campaign to save their reputations, if they have any.

Contemporary Comment

Pointers On Living.

Educators and sociologists have had little success in their long search for the ideal mode of living. With the possible future increase of leisure time, as planned by the various industrial programs inaugurated by our political leaders,

Dr. Robert T. Legge, physician of the University of California, declares that "the ideal mode of life for every one to lead to attain a ripe old age would be dividing the day into three parts of eight hours each, to be given successively to rest, work, and recreation.

It is obvious that it is almost impossible for the average student to budget his time that he will be able to devote the same number of hours to each activity day in and day out.

The only course left is to follow Dr. Legge's second suggestion, that of enjoying everything we do. The average university student is at college to get the most for his time and money, and the student who puts his whole self into his work, his rest, and his play is the one who not only derives the greatest benefits from them but also achieves the greatest degree of success and happiness.

Pleasure Produces Better Scholastic Averages Says Reid. The Daily Californian.

Small doses of pleasure applied to the student relieve that dull, letdown condition that appears with the advent of finals. It is certain to produce a better grade average.

Discussing the effects of cramming for finals, Dr. M. C. Reid, university psychiatrist, said: "The brightest minds become stale when forced to apply themselves too long and too intensely on any subject."

There is no such thing as a "nervous breakdown," according to the psychiatrist. "A so called nervous breakdown means either that the individual has not mastered the art of successful living or has been exposed to environmental conditions which are intolerable."

Tulane's Hullahallo reports that a student meeting held to discuss the virtues of world peace broke up because of continued bickering among the students present.
