SOONERS COMING TO LINCOLN SATURDAY TO MEET NEBRASKA

Undefeated Leaders in Big Six Race Meet Husker Cagers This Week.

Nebraska meets the undefeated quintet of maplemen from Oklahoma this Saturday on the home court in what promises to be the toughest game on the Browne schedule according to advance dope. The Sooner cagers is the only outfit in the Big Six conference which has not bowed in defeat.

However the invaders will have the doubly difficult task of first trimming off the Kansas State Wildcats before coming on to Lincoln for their tilt with the Huskers. With this to handicap them the prospects of their remaining undefeated will be considerably smaller.

Conference Play Re-opens. Big Six play, following the exams, will be inaugurated again Wednesday, when the third-place Kansas Jayhawks are scheduled to meet Iowa State at Ames. So far the Cyclones occupy the cellar position, although all their games have ended with close scores.

Missouri and St. Louis university clash in an interstate battle Saturday at St. Louis. The result of this game, while not in conference circles, will be worthy of note by Husker fans because Nebraska plays St. Louis here March 1. These tilts complete the week's activity for the Big Six quintets.

The Student Pulse
Brief, concise contributions pertinent to matters of student life and the university are welcomed by this department, under the usual restrictions of sound newspaper practice, which excludes all libelous matter and personal attacks. Letters must be signed, but names will be withheld from publication if so desired.

Learning of Santa Claus.

TO THE EDITOR: Your student body unless it has changed drastically in three years has virtually no interest in national affairs. The boys in the fraternity houses probably have a vague feeling of circumstantial injury which they attribute to what was known as the "depression." Doubtless they have heard of the NRA and other initials which appear frequently in the newspapers. But on the whole, I suspect they go along in much the same detached way.

It's unfortunate. Nearly everyone agrees the economic headache was caused by ignorance. We swear at Wall street and the bankers and, if we're democrats, we swear at the republicans. But if the more intelligent element of our population had been better informed on governmental activities we shouldn't have permitted ourselves to be fleeced.

University of Nebraska students may be able to recite the preamble of the constitution, tell the number of congressmen and senators and explain that our government is checked and balanced by the legislative, executive and judicial branches but I'll wager 90 percent would be unable to name Nebraska's five congressmen, and a good many would be unable to name both senators and their own congressman.

America has had beginner's luck so far. With our rich resources and opportunity for expansion almost any moderately sound form of government would have succeeded fairly well. But now we have outgrown that happy general carefree period. We've got a tough stretch ahead, and our ability to travel it without casualties will depend on the informed interest of the more intelligent people.

Personally, I blush to recall my stupid ignorance of national affairs when I took my diploma from the university fathers. I suggest that the Daily Nebraskan, if it hasn't already, make a lively attempt to convince Nebraska students that something is happening in Washington; something that will be and is being felt in every home, every farm and every business in Nebraska. Santa Claus doesn't live here any more. It's going to be a tough battle from now on.

INTRAMURAL SPOTLIGHT
By ARNOLD LEVINE.

With the completion of Intramural Basketball, the Intramural sports program for the first semester is terminated, and an entirely new program will be started with the second semester. Handball, volleyball, track, golf, horseshoe, baseball and spring tennis furnish the various fraternities ample opportunity to show their skill at competitive games during the coming semester. The indoor sports will be run off first, and when warm weather approaches, tennis, baseball, horseshoes and golf take their place.

While the first semester program was wholly satisfactory, and was well received by the fraternities, in one respect it was a failure. That respect was in the number of games forfeited. When a team had lost one or two games, it lost hope of ever winning and forfeited the rest of their games, or else failed to show up, causing an automatic forfeit. The frequent upsets that occurred showed that those teams made mistakes, for many teams which had lost their first one or two games later came back to upset the leaders, and tie for the championship.

"Such a policy of forfeiting games cannot continue," said Mr. Petz, "and in the future drastic measures will be taken to prevent it." If necessary, we will subtract points for every game forfeited without permission, or resort to some other such measures to make the fraternities realize that forfeiting games is serious. It upsets the schedules, necessitates long waits, and generally destroys the sportsmanship and effect that Intramural Athletics produce."
