TAFT SPEAKS TO OVERFLOW CROWD AT CONVOCATION

Stereoptican Slides Show Speaker's Idea of His 'Dream Museum.'

STRESSES PROPER LIGHT

Ideal Presentation Would Have Works Arranged in Historic Sequence.

To an overflow crowd which packed the aisles and doorways, Lorado Taft presented his illustrated lecture, "My Dream Museum," Tuesday morning at an 11 o'clock university convocation in the Temple Theater. Although he declared that the pictures which he was showing were the important things, the audience listened intently to catch the pleasing phrases which he employs and the points of his sparkling wit.

Master casts, kept clean and well lighted and arranged in historic sequence, would be placed in the long halls of Mr. Taft's "dream museum." The casts would be of great works of art, he explained, and the art would be set in long aisles to show national art in historic order. Cross aisles or transepts would mark great periods in artistic endeavor, Mr. Taft declared, so that visitors might catch the significance of the evolution of art.

Way of Presenting Art.
"I have been trying to think of some way of presenting art," said Mr. Taft, "some inexpensive way for schools and universities. Why should Americans be immune to these things, to the real reasons why we are on earth?" he asked by means of his series of stereoptican slides, Mr. Taft illustrated what interesting things can happen to sculptured figures by proper lighting. He explained that most museums improperly light great pieces of sculpture, making them

TODAY'S NEWS Briefly Reviewed

By a vote of 64 to 24 the upper chamber Tuesday rejected a proposal for the immediate cash payment of the 2 billion soldiers' bonus. This action was taken after more than 50 million for war veterans was added to the independent offices appropriation bill, bringing the total of the bill above administrative desires.

A twelve point program for revising existing codes was unfurled Tuesday by General Johnson, NRA administrator, thereby beating the plans critics to the draw. According to the hard talking administrator the new plan will make the blue eagle indispensable to business. Challenging all enemies he declared that the NRA had not fallen short of its promises and voiced a confident claim that the program will march unflinchingly on.

Poker parties and yachting excursions became the subject to grand jury investigation in connection with the army contract inquiry. It was reported that such affairs had been attended by lobbyists and certain federal employees involved in contract negotiations.

At least eighty-five people have met death during the last four days which have been filled with catastrophe. An old time winter storm, plus a train wreck, plane crashes, bus smashups, and carbon monoxide gas have all contributed to the still mounting total.

LORADO TAFT SPEAKS TO ART ASSOCIATION

Speaker States That Art Comes Nearest to Explaining Life.

That art comes the nearest to anything to explaining life is the opinion of Lorado Taft, noted sculptor and lecturer, as expressed when he addressed 200 members of the Lincoln Art association Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at Morrill Hall.

"We are living in a world of natural beauty and most of us are missing it," stated the famous Chicago sculptor.

In explaining this statement the artist brought out the fact that the first mention of appreciation of nature in American literature is in William Cullen Bryant's "Ode to a Waterfall."
According to Mr. Taft the reason art flourishes with difficulty today is that there is no set market for it. In times of mythology, when people believed in many superior beings, their gods could be portrayed in stone and there was a great demand for the work of sculptors.

Mr. Taft in his pleasing and informal manner stated that the value of the Fine Arts lies in the fact that they may be shared by everyone.
In closing his address Mr. Taft expressed delight at the beauty of Morrill Hall and the completeness of the museum.

PROPOSALS FOR REORGANIZATION TO BE DISCUSSED

Student Council Will Hold Regular Meeting on Wednesday.

INACTIVITY IS CHARGED

Group Believes That Many Of Accusations Are Unfounded.

Further discussion and possible decision of plans for reorganization of the student council will hold the attention of the members at the meeting in the student council rooms at 5 o'clock Wednesday, Feb. 28.

In addition to the plans already submitted there will be several additional suggestions to eliminate the inactivity and political maneuverings with which the council has been charged. Many students' opinion as expressed in the editorial columns of the Daily Nebraskan is that the council is not fairly representative of the student body, is inactive, and is used only as a stepping stone to other senior honors.

The council believes many of these accusations unfounded, and based only on the inexperience of members. It also contends that many of the representatives are chosen thru political machinations rather than thru demonstration of ability.
A suggested improvement consists in the organization of a men's association from which members would be selected to serve on the council together with the A. W. S. representatives. A point system would tend to limit the activities of any one individual.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA TO PRESENT CONCERT

This concert is the fourth and last of a series of Sunday afternoon musical programs being offered this year. The others have been The Messiah, the university band concert and the program given by the men's glee club.
The orchestra, which is made up of over fifty pieces, is the same one that Professor Steckelberg has been taking out to give concerts in various parts of the state during the year.

These students are asked to call at the Cornhusker office and decide upon the activities which they prefer to have listed.

Gates Which Once Marked Eleventh Street Entrance to the Campus Are Now Bulletin Boards for Old U Hall

Gates that once served as the eleventh street entrances to the university campus, from 1891 until 1922, have been used as bulletin boards outside of University hall since that time.
The campus, which at that time did not extend east of Twelfth street, was completely enclosed by a high iron fence. In 1917, it became necessary to enlarge the campus across Twelfth street, and it was not possible to extend the fence.
While the fence itself was torn down in 1922, the gates were left until a year later, when they were made into the bulletin boards and placed at the entrance to U hall.
Also the fence and gates were ornamental and added to the general attractiveness of the campus, the real purpose in their erection was quite different. The motive Musgrave requested that those writing songs for the show get in touch with Herb Yenne in their own doubt, as to the song type needed. Several lyrics and tunes have been turned in to Herb Yenne and he reports that all of those turned in thus far show promise of being song successes. As the songs must be arranged, the Kosmet Klub is anxious for those who are writing songs to hand them in as soon as possible. The deadline is set for March 2.

According to Yenne, parts will be assigned soon, and the rehearsals for "The Campus Cop" will begin in the near future.

Rev. Ray Hunt, pastor of the First Christian church gave the first of a series of four lectures on "The Art of Living" at the regular Vespers meeting of the Y. W. C. A. in Ellen Smith hall Tuesday afternoon. The meeting was presided over by Lorraine Hitchcock.
"Love, in the best and broadest sense, is the basis of the universe," stated Rev. Hunt in addressing the groups "and we are tied together, not by danger, by forces, or by self-preservation, but by love."
In defining the art of living, Rev. Hunt brought out the fact that in order to survive, one must cooperate and align himself with the forces of the universe. An example of one who did not cooperate with nature and changing conditions, according to him, is the mighty mastodon, mammal that no longer exists.
