

CAMPUSOCIETY

THIS CAMPUS MAY NOT BE SO very busy yet with the activities which accompany the last month of school, but students in the Ag college are already making plans for the Farmers Fair, which will be held out there on the fifth of May. Aside from the elections for Mortar Boards and the May Queen not much has yet been done here, but tonight in Ag hall there will be the second of a series of rallies to promote interest in the fair. They say that these rallies are the occasion for a good deal of singing, talking and shouting, and many who go to school on the downtown campus attend them "just for the fun of it."

THE ONLY PARTY scheduled for Friday night is the Teke spring dance, which will be given at the Cornhusker. Three hundred bids have been issued. Harold Wingquist is in charge of the arrangements, and the chaperons are to be Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Walton, Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Hollister, and Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Harkness.

OF COURSE there's the park, and a goodly crowd will probably be there.

THE SIGMA NUS have pledged two new members. They are John Brown, of Kansas City, and Ed Reynolds of Lincoln.

POLITICS AND the present administration were "put on the spot" at the Theta Sigma Phi initiation banquet last night at the Lincoln hotel. Carolyn Van Anda was toastmistress, and Rosalie Lamme was in charge of the program. New initiates are: Jane Cleary, Janet Killian, Frances Brune, Helen Kroft, Harriet Rosenfeld, Betty Segal, and Doris Sanborn.

REPRESENTATIVES from the various Methodist Episcopal churches in Lincoln are planning a spring party for this Friday evening at the Grace M. E. church at 8:30. Decorations will be used, and a program is planned.

AT THE HOME of Mrs. Herbert Brownell at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon, the Woman's club of the Teachers College will be informally entertained. Spring flowers will form the decorations, and a short program is to be given. The committee, which includes Mrs. Samuel Avery, Mrs. W. H. Oury, and Mrs. Ed Weir, expects between 25 and 30 guests.

"PRESENT DAY Russia" is the subject upon which Professor M. Ginsburg will speak at a meeting of the round table group at the Y. W. C. A. tomorrow night at 7:30. Dr. Laura Pfeiffer is in charge of the meeting which is open to the public.

HOSTESSES to the Alpha Chi mothers club, which will meet this afternoon at 2:30 at the chapter house, are Mrs. Elmer DeKay and Mrs. Roy Kile.

French Painter Declares National Isolation Is Synonym for Facism

Jean Lurcat. (World famous French painter, founder of the modern art movement in Paris with Picasso, Matisse, Braque, Derain, war veteran, adviser on art to the French government.) (Special to Nationwide Features.) Today let us brutally and candidly declare that every nationalist trend that isolates one people from another, glorifies one people above another, is a synonym for facism. Insularity and parochialism of this sort inevitably crust art and free literary expression. But there is another danger, namely war and hatred. Senator Borah has said, and truly, that "national frontiers are in fact battlefronts." The Great War showed pretty vividly that justice and liberty disappear under tyranny and during economic and racial conflicts. Ideas of race and of nationality, such as we see in several European countries today, are a virulent poison infecting the unity of the human race: white, yellow and black. Whoever wishes to set up or affirm, in 1934, any definite national form of industry or culture is a fascist, be he French, German or American. An artist like Manet, wholly French, betrays an emphatic Spanish influence. A Spanish artist like Picasso can live only in the atmosphere of Paris. Matisse is in a sense an oriental painter. When Hitler kicks us out, us young artists, from German museums, exiling at the same time Grosz, Braque, Klee and others, we are rated and reviled (although we are in fact nothing of the kind) as Jewish Marxists. Does he save the German soul, or German alleged superiority, by stabbing art, and artists who transcend nation-

SUPERINTENDENTS FEEL THAT STUDY CENTERS THROUGHOUT STATE PROVEN SUCCESSFUL DESPITE BIG HANDICAP. (Continued from Page 1.) there should be 200 centers, with a sufficient number of readers and enough office help to care for the work. Instead, the first project—which later was to be supplemented—called for 100 centers and an approximate enrollment of 1,000 students. By January 18, when Federal Administrator Hopkins' stop-order went into effect, the 100 centers had accumulated an enrollment of 1,600 students.

Between January 19 and March 1, the University Extension Division tried to care adequately for the 1,600 registrants altho they were almost hopelessly understaffed. On March 1, when the project became a CWA activity, additional readers and office assistants were secured.

Ends on April 20. All centers will be brought to an automatic stop on April 20, however, which will give some groups a longer time at which they began work. The number of credit hours which students earn at the university extension department will depend on the length of this period.

While the next move of the government officials in Washington is not known, it is hoped that the centers might be continued. A superintendent expressed his views on the continuation in "We only wish this worthy project might be continued and the educational interests of our youth developed to correspond to their needs. A continuation of this project would be a long way toward meeting this urgent need."

is willing to go to any ends to improve its position. In concluding the discussion of the German situation, Prof. Alley stated that the worst condition of all existed there, but that at other points conditions are quite critical, for instance in the far east, where Russia and Japan are nearing hostilities.

Concerning war, Prof. Alley stated that there probably would not be an outbreak for at least five years, but that conditions must be remedied to prevent the occurrence of such a catastrophe. He declared that conditions aren't as bad as some point them out to be, but that it is imperative that some progressive action be taken.

In conclusion Prof. Alley pointed out two steps which should be definitely taken. The first one which he considers of primary necessity is that the League of Nations and the World Court be kept actively functioning, and that the United States should give its support of these two institutions. Secondly, public opinion in this country should be guided into channels favoring these international organizations, and opposing international anarchy.

International Expert. Prof. Alley has for a long time been professor of history at Dana college, Newark, N. J. He is a graduate of Harvard University, and is one of the nation's foremost experts on international affairs.

Prof. Alley has for a long time traveled thru Europe, he served in the conflict, and since that time has made twelve trips to the continent. He has observed political conditions in all European nations, having visited Germany for seven consecutive years, thus becoming intimately acquainted with Hitlerism.

Since the organization of the League of Nations, Mr. Alley has attended ten of its sessions, and during that time has come in unusually close association with statesmen and with international organizations, and has a close knowledge of many of the important problems affecting America and Europe today.

Mr. Alley will appear on the program at the international relations conference to be held at Grinnell college April 6 to 9. A number of Nebraska students are planning to attend the gathering.

First Program Year Ago. It was last spring in Boston that Ted Shawn gave the first program of men's dances, done entirely by a group of men, without a woman being seen on the stage for the whole evening. So enthusiastic was that reception that he at once disbanded his mixed group and re-tired to his farm studio in the Berkshire hills, with an augmented group of men pupils, to train them for the forthcoming tour, creating and rehearsing new numbers. By the end of the summer the group was ready for professional programs in the summer theaters, and

Wednesday New Years Day for 'Kash' Mostofi, Persian Pre-Medic Student

Wednesday was New Years day! At least it was to "Kash" Mostofi, popular Persian pre-med student of the Nebraska campus. Back in his home town of Tahriz, Persia the folks started celebrating the birth of another year at 10 o'clock Wednesday there and what is 9 o'clock Tuesday evening here. ("Kash" had it all figured out). Mr. Mostofi's full name is Fatulla Khan Keshvar Mostofi, but his friends here call him "Kash" for short.

According to Mostofi the big "blowout" started at 10 on Wednesday there, and will last a week or ten days. The first thing on the program is to pay allegiance to the king, or dictator, which Mostofi says "he really is." Preceding the king's name, Reza Shah Pahlavi, are the three letters H. I. M. meaning His Imperial Majesty. Considerable pomp accompanies the king wherever he goes.

The ceremony in the king's court when the New Year enters is one surrounded by ancient tradition. In fact the function dates back to 500 B. C. Both men and women participate in the parade, marching and shouting all morning, and then at noon a general mixer is held while lunch is being eaten. Everyone is welcome in everybody else's house, tables are heaped high with foods, and anyone who wishes is welcome to walk right in, sit down, and eat his fill. In other words, New Years means just a good hearty get-together.

At 4 o'clock Wednesday morning Kash induced a few of his friends to arise and celebrate the New Year with him. Mostofi has been in school here for two and one-half years as a pre-med. He is one of the few students in the university who doesn't have to worry about having a job when he graduates from the college of medicine. In return for every year of education the Persian government gives him here, Kash must give two years of service in his home nation. His parents paid his expenses here during the first two years. His father is a physician in Tahriz. Kash is quite active in several extra-curricular activities on the campus, being one of the active men in the Y. M. C. A., and serving as one of the leaders in pre-medical organizations.

after playing to enthusiastic and crowded houses thruout New England. Shawn began his present tour of the country. His audiences everywhere agree that he is presenting something genuinely new, vital, important, and thrilling.

COUNCIL PASSES REORGANIZATION PLAN WEDNESDAY

(Continued from Page 1.) merly elected from the fine arts school was contained in another motion passed by the council. Final disposition of the matter involves student and administration approval of definite revision measures and will be decided later.

The constitution of Phalanx, honorary and professional military science organization for advanced students was submitted to the council for approval which was granted.

Chaperon committee reported the results of an extensive survey of the chaperon situation at Nebraska and other universities and announced that Nebraska was regarded by other schools as having one of the most satisfactory chaperon systems in operation in the country.

List Recommendations. Recommendations submitted by the committee and which will be sent to student organizations and faculty members soon are:

1. That more faculty members be urged to serve as chaperons.
2. That students and faculty members familiarize themselves with chaperon regulations.
3. That chaperons report any impropriety directly to the student committee first for treatment.
4. That parents be invited to social functions only as guests and not as chaperons.
5. That the number of couples chaperoning house parties be one to two; down town parties, two to four, and all-university parties, three to six.
6. That one couple be designat-

Men at Wisconsin Trying to Become 'Girls' for Show

At the University of Wisconsin men students are hard at work these days attempting to become "chorus girls," the total number trying out for these parts being 75. An additional 150 are doing their best to make the "girls" appearance in this year's Haresfoot production a success.

The annual call for the 1934 production of the Haresfoot club, men's dramatic organization at the Madison school, brought out about 225 men students recently. The traditional appeal of the Haresfoot shows—that of husky men in feminine finery—has drawn a large response from the men. The Haresfoot club evidently holds a position on the Wisconsin campus similar to that of the Kosmet Klub on this campus.

This year's show, "Dictated—Not Red," is a combination of musical comedy and revue. It was written by two students, Frank Klode, and Harold DeWilde.

ed as head chaperons, and that they either be allowed to choose the remaining chaperons, or that a list of prospective chaperons be submitted to them for selection. The recommendation is intended to achieve greater congeniality among chaperons.

The council also heard brief reports of the prom, varsity party, and activity tax committees.
