

HUSKER FANS GET LAST PRE-VUE OF SQUAD THURSDAY

Bible to Send Two Teams Thru Regulation Scrimmage.

Cornhusker fans will be given their last pre-view of what may be the 1934 Husker grid machine in action Thursday afternoon on Memorial stadium turf when, weather permitting, Coach Bible will send his protégés thru the final 40 minute Red vs. Blue battle of the spring sessions.

As in previous games, the Reds will be composed of last year's varsity and reserves, and the Blues of the frosh. Three formations will be used by the gridgers, the double wing back, single wing back, and punt formation. Particular attention will be paid by the Nebraska coaches to the signal callers said Coach Bible.

The Reds have the advantage in games won over the Blues, having taken two victories—8 to 0 in the first game and 7 to 0 in the last. The second game of the series was a 14 to 14 tie.

Coach Bible has been experimenting with various formations during the past week, and has selected a combination which may be the starting lineup next fall.

Franklin Meier is a certain starter at the center position, and is the only regular left over from last year's eleven, at which time he was selected as pivot man on the all-Big Six team. Bill Horchem and Neal Mehring are his two most capable understudies.

There is but little doubt but that Glen Justice and Jim Heldt will get the call at the guard positions, having played regularly with the varsity during the entire spring practice. Ladass Hubka also has been working in at the guard posi-

Play Opens Today in Horseshoe Tourney

First matches of the interfraternity horseshoe tournament are scheduled to be played today. Harold Petz, director of intramural sports, asked that all matches be played on the scheduled days so that the tournament may progress rapidly.

Matches to be played today are as follows:

- League I.
Delta Sigma Phi vs. Tau Kappa Epsilon.
Sigma Phi Epsilon vs. Pi Kappa Alpha.
- League II.
Phi Sigma Kappa vs. Delta Upsilon.

Beta Theta Pi vs. Phi Kappa Psi.
- League IV.
Kappa Sigma vs. Delta Sigma Lambda.
Sigma Chi vs. Farm House.

tions, especially in the absence of Justice, who was injured. Clyde White and Fred Ugal are two members of the Blue team who will rank high in quest of these jobs.

Russell Thompson and Carol Reese have been getting the nod for the tackle berths, with Walter Pfum giving both a hard task to keep in the first team lineup. John Ellis, Dean Chase, and Asher Brown, three frosh candidates, will have a tough time beating the first three out for a regular berth.

Lester McDonald and Bernard Scherer seem to have caught the coaches' eye for ends, along with Vergil Yelkin. McDonald has played with the Blues thruout the spring sessions, while Yelkin and Scherer have played regularly with the Reds. Vernon Scofield is considered a great end prospect also.

"Our best backfield right now is Johnny Williams, quarterback; Lloyd Cardwell and Bob Benson, halfbacks; and Jerry LaNoue, tailback," said Coach Bible. "With that lineup we would have to use Yelkin as a punter but we could work Glen Skewes, a triple threat, in as a tailback. The whole thing may be switched around by next September. I haven't seen Sam Francis or Marion DeJarnett in action, and they are considered two excellent punters."

It appears that Williams, LaNoue, and Bauer will divide the signal calling duties. Skewes, Williams, Francis and Howell will be used to back up the line, while Benson, Cardwell, Parsons, and Douglas remain to back up the flanks.

One Red team in Thursday's game will open with Yelkin and Scherer, ends; Thompson and Reese, tackles; Heldt and Justice, guards; Meier, center; Williams, quarterback; LaNoue and Benson, halfbacks; and Skewes, fullback. Another will be composed of Sears and Wilson, ends; Uptegrove and Pfum, tackles; Hubka and Mehring, guards; Horchem, center; Williams, quarterback; Beaver and Fischer, halfbacks; Thomas, fullback.

The starting Blue lineup will have McDonald and Scofield, ends; Brown and Ellis, tackles; White and Ugal, guards; Hulac, center; Bauer, quarterback; Cardwell and Douglas, halfbacks; Howell, fullback. The second Blue lineup will be made up of Amba and Hale, ends; Chase and Yelkin, tackles; Franks and DeBrown, guards; English, center; Turner, quarterback; Hopp and Willey, halfbacks; Faulkner, fullback.

This game promises to be very interesting, and all faculty members are urged to attend. An announcement will be made later as to the time of the match.

University of Oklahoma launched its 1934 polo season here Friday and Saturday by twice trouncing the University of Texas four, 8-2 and 9-4.

Cornhuskers' Greatest Threats

Bernie Masterson, Big Six sprint champ in the 50 yard free style, will show his wares in the meet between Golden Gate college and the Nebraska All-Star swimmers. Bernie formerly hung up new records in both the 50 and 100 yard backstroke in 1:03.3 seconds which has been lauded by swimming mentors of the Nebraska circles as the best time of any state or even conference backstroke artists. In capturing the state crown this year Hagelin shattered his previous mark after leading a fast field to the finish line by a safe margin. He will be a constant worry to the invaders when he makes his bid for tank supremacy at the Golden Gate meet.

Pete, Hagelin, Nebraska state backstroke king, will attempt to annex another scalp to his trophy belt when he meets the Californians. Pete covers the 100 yard backstroke in 1:33.3 seconds which has been lauded by swimming mentors of the Nebraska circles as the best time of any state or even conference backstroke artists. In capturing the state crown this year Hagelin shattered his previous mark after leading a fast field to the finish line by a safe margin. He will be a constant worry to the invaders when he makes his bid for tank supremacy at the Golden Gate meet.

Burt Amgwert, state sprint king who has captured his event in every meet, will swim the 50 and 100 yard free styles with Bernie and attempt to leave the Golden Gate boys in his wake. His style is unique and combines a steady flutter kick with Herculean, splashing arm strokes which propel him through the water with championship velocity. Never having been bested in his last high school year, Burt is out to start his career in collegiate competition with a flashy victory. He covers the 100 yard free in about 57 seconds and mills up the water for a little more than 24 seconds in the 50 yard sprint.

TRACK TALK SAYS HUSKERS DUE FOR LOSS TO KANSAS

Cindermen Face First Dual Defeat Since 1920 in Saturday Meet.

CUNNINGHAM LEADS JAYS

Schulte Pins Hopes for Win On Copping Seconds And Thirds.

That Nebraska's Cornhuskers are due for their first licking in dual track meets since 1920 when the Kansas Jayhawks invade Memorial stadium Saturday afternoon is the current opinion in Big Six track circles.

Kansas is "coming to town" with a team super-saturated with winners, and, in the estimation of Henry "Indian" Schulte, looks good enough to snap the Husker winning streak in dual meets. This, coming from the Indian, shows the high regard in which the Jayhawkers are held, as Cornhusker enthusiasts have never seen the Scarlet and Cream bow its colors other than in conference championships since Schulte took over the reins in 1920.

To back up his statements and give them their "proper worth," "Pa" Schulte points to six "super-Jays" who are counted on to put the meet on ice. The six men causing the Huskers the most worry are Hall, Schreder, Cunningham, Coffman, Dees, and McGuire. If these men win as Coach Schulte predicts, they can win the meet with no help from their teammates; scoring fifty points on firsts alone.

Rate Six as Sure Winners.

Hall is counted on for firsts in the 100 yard sprint, 220 yard dash and broad jump. If he isn't too tired at the completion of these events he will race Lambertus in the low hurdles. Schreder is given the edge in the 440 over the Husker or quarter-mile runner, Cunningham, of course, will win the half, mile, and two mile, and will run anchor on the relay team if needed. Coffman, former Olympic decathlon star is predicted as winner in the pole vault; Dees has the edge in the shot, and McGuire is considered best in the high jump.

Notwithstanding these ten firsts, the six Jayhawks are counted on for second and third place in other events as well as in their specialties.

With Cunningham running anchor, the Kansas relay team is bound for victory, adding five more points to the Jay total.

There are two sides to every story, however, and Nebraska also boasts of its aces who are according to practically no chance at all to pull the meet out of the fire, but who plan to give Kansas an interesting afternoon.

Lambertus Husker Star.

Heye Lambertus is the outstanding Husker performer of the year, setting a new world record in the 60-yard indoor low sticks, as well as being the National A. A. U. champ in the outdoor 120-yard event. There is also a possibility that Lambertus will be able to overtake Hall in the 100 and 220 yard races, but Coach Schulte is not counting very strongly on this occurrence. Adolph Dohrman is the favorite in the high barriers and should bring home another first for the Husker cause. He is the indoor titleholder. Glenn Skewes is Big Six champion and will be counted on in the discus throw and Fred Chambers is considered superior to anything the Jays can produce in the way of a javelin thrower.

The real Husker hope lies in winning enough second and third places from the Kansas athletes to overcome the wide difference in firsts. While there is a dearth of first place winners in the Husker camp, several men capable of taking second and thirds have appeared.

Carry Husker Chances.

Glenn Funk is termed second best to Cunningham in the mile and half mile, with Storey and White ready to take third place in each event. Lambertus is counted on for at least seconds in the 100 and 220. England and Roberts, running neck and neck for the greater part of the season, are capable of placing in the quarter mile. Storey looks good for a place in the two mile run. Dean and Nichols may take second and third in the pole vault, and Joe Toman is second to McGuire in the high jump and may upset the dope to win this event. Owen Rist seems bound for a place in the shot, and is counted on also in the discus.

Heavy winds have kept the Huskers from participating in any trial events outdoors this week, so Coach Schulte has no idea of the times his men are capable of turning in. Thursday and Friday will see only light workouts under the stadium.

The meet is scheduled to begin at 3 p. m.
