Husker Golfers Tie First Meet With Cyclones

In the first golf meet partici-pated in by a Husker links team for several seasons, the Nebraska golf squad tied with Iowa State linksmen 9 to 9 Thursday after-noon on the Country club course. After dropping the singles compe-tition to the Cyclones, the Husker golfers managed to win the bou-bles contests and deadlock the meet. The match was an all day the morning and afternoon.

JOURNALIST THINKS WORLD NOT AS BAD AS IT IS PICTURED

(Continued from Page 1.) weakened and lowered by its social system and degrading wars, can still speak of ideals of honesty and brotherliness, we should exult and not mourn.

"The common error," says Russell, "the cherished delusion of eformers is to think that if their particular league, society, or organization goes ashore all is lost. Reform is not so simple as that, but a vast, complicated, and often mysterious evolution. So far, progress has never been made in Seven League Boots but little by little."

In conclusion-"The one purpose that seems to have either sanity or actual reward is to keep some step, however stumbling, however far in the rear, with the vast, silent, processes that are slowly transforming the world from a wolves' den to a place where man can know some place, some content, some joy of living, some sense placed.

SHOW INTEREST IN IVY POEM CONTEST Mortar Boards Declare

Entries Unusually Good. This year an unusually large number of students entered poems for judgment in the annual Ivy Day poem contest, according to Jane Boos, Mortar Board in charge of this part of the May Day program. Quality of material submitted is unusually good, Miss Boos further declared.

Identity of the winner will not be made known until he or she is called on to read the poetry just before crowning of the May Queen. Honorable mention will be given to the entry placing second.

In further discussing arrangements for May Day Miss Boos said that leaders for the Ivy and Daisy chains would be announced the first of next week. Details of the entire program will be ready for publication Sunday.

SOCIAL DANCING. The last social dancing hour of the year will be held Friday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock in the Armory.
