students and depicting what the Mars inhabitants might wear, will be worn by students. Prizes consisting of a photograph by Dwight Kirsch and an etching by Katherine Faulkner will be awarded the man and woman having the best costume.
"It seems that there is a lack of green grease paint, cellophane, wire and cheap flash lights in Lincoln, now that students are preparing for the Mars hop," Mr. Kirsch, fine arts instructor, declared.

In charge of tickets for the event are Helen Kline and Willard Hummel, and decorations are being

Open Exhibition.
The exhibition which the ball opens, will represent the best student work of the department and will continue until commencement. Displays will be arranged in two galleries of Morrill hall and will be open to the public. In the west gallery will be presented oil, portrait, and still life paintings. Original sketches done by the students for wall decorations in the Temple theater will be shown on the west wall. The north wall will be covered with water color sketches.

Anatomy drawings and beginning compositions will be displayed in the east gallery. Applied design work will be placed in cases around the room. On the north wall will be found the work of the public school art classes. Mr. Kirsch will present a display of interior decorations, stage design, photography, and commercial art drawings. Sculpture classes will also have their work in this gallery.

"Each student in the Fine Arts department has a piece of work in this exhibition," Mr. Kirsch explained. "Some students have several pieces, but it is always interesting to see their reaction when they observe their work finished and mounted. The exhibition represents the best work of the fine arts department."

MOUNTAINS, LAKES CLASSROOMS FOR BIOLOGY COURSE

of the camping program is the two overnight trips.
Buildings Newly Equipped.
But campers always look forward to getting back to the camp for Campus Olympus is no ordinary camp of dingy tents, huddled together in an unkempt and out-of-the-way mountain waste, but is a group of new and comfortably equipped buildings which occupy one of the finest of the sites of the Rocky Mountain National park region. The camp faces the Thompson meadows, across which is a full, broadside view of Long's peak and the snowy summits of the Continental Divide, twelve miles away.

The program in the mountains includes two courses. The principal course will be general in scope and registration is limited to thirty, since it is impossible to accommodate a larger group. An advanced course will also be available for those with considerable training in plant taxonomy or ecology and who will be able to work independently or with minimum guidance. The limit in this course is ten. The general course gives six semester hours credit while credit for the advanced course must be arranged for with the instructor.

self out with too much work now. No matter how he does it, Kansas is slated for the points.

Another member of the Mt. Oread team, Ed Hall, will defend two titles, but holds no Big Six records. While he is conceded victories in the 100 and 220 yard dashes, the records are esteemed safe from any assault. Hubert Meier's mark in the century, 9.4 seconds, made with a stiff wind at his back, looks good for years to come, while Roland Locke seemingly is safe in his 220 mark. Lambertus is thought of as being second best in these two events, but may upset the dope in the furlong, as he did once last April.

Bart Ward of Oklahoma, indoor and defending outdoor champion in the quarter mile is favored. He or Wessling, the Iowa Stater, may come close to the 440 record, but the 48.6 seconds mark established in 1930 by Russell Dills of Missouri looks good to last for another year at least.

There is only a remote possibility that either of the hurdle records will fall. Nothing exceptional has been noted in the way of high hurdlers, with Joe Knappenberger of Kansas State and Adolph Dohrman of Nebraska leading the way. Each has done 15 seconds for the 110 high sticks.

Heye Lambertus, in his specialty, the 220 lows can not equal the mark of 23.3 set by J. Welch of Missouri in 1930. His best time for this event, made last summer, just equaled the Big Six record. A further handicap on his record breaking attempt is the fact that he will have to top barriers placed around the curve of the oval.

Elwyn Dees of Kansas is capable of setting a new record in the shot. The high jump record is threatened by Doug Barham of Oklahoma. Bill Ripper, of Iowa State, is ready to hang up a new record with the javelin, having thrown the spear over 206 feet. Clyde Coffman, Gordon Gray, and Bob White, the Kansas pole vaulting trio, have each done over 13 feet, near record mark.

An interesting feature of the meet will be two relay races, the 880 yard relay, discarded since 1929, having been added for the 1934 classic. The other baton-carrying event is the mile relay.

with Carl Sandburg, one of America's leading poets and an ex-news-paperman, affords a very amusing page of entertainment. According to Robinson it is one of the surprises of the issue, even to Mr. Stepanek.

Give Characterizations.
One word characterizations made out by a committee of four, who do not wish to reveal their names because of the law of self-preservation, mention in a terse but vivid manner outstanding traits of certain individuals.

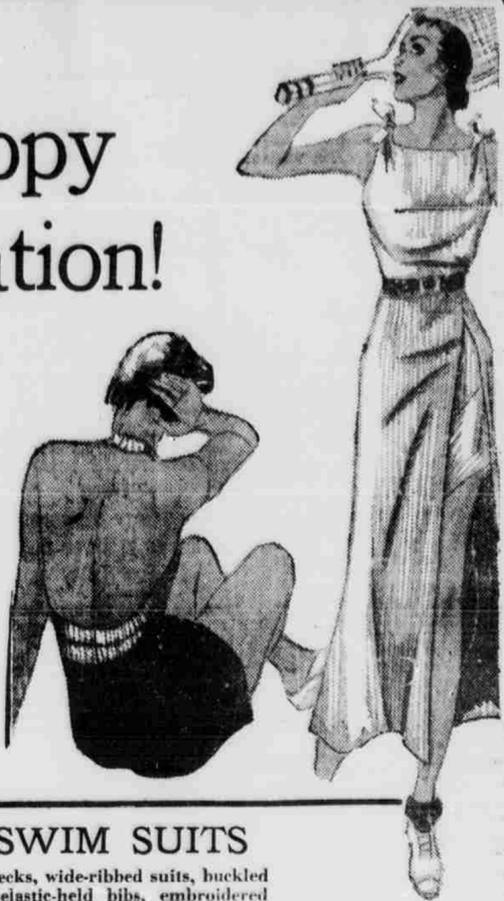

A series of sketches portraying campus events which took place during the year including freshman registration, sport activities, Farmer's Fair, Military ball, Interfraternity ball and Tapping of the Innocents was made by Morris Gordon.

Other points of interest include a feature written by William T. McCleery, former student at the university on "Nothing Happened One Sunday;" and a parody written on Orphan Annie concerning the Innocents society. Written by Rowland Miller the latter is entitled "Prater Johnny Husker."

The board of Trustees of Columbia university are requesting that all faculty members fill in a questionnaire covering work done for the University an outside agencies, specifying funds received for such work. The questionnaire is to be the basis of a university economy program "should financial conditions not improve."
