

BARB MEN ORGANIZED IN INTERCLUB GROUP

Council Extends Invitation to All Unaffiliated Newcomers.

During the past two years Barb men on the campus have organized a co-operative organization called the Interclub council. Under the guidance of this council Barb men are enabled to organize clubs of ten or more men each, and from each club select a representative to serve on the Interclub council. The latter group is comprised of these club representatives.

Activities which have been sponsored by the Interclub council are intramural athletic and debate competition between the member clubs, and social life thru the mediums of Varsity parties and joint AWS League-Interclub council parties. Another primary aim is to encourage the participation of Barb men in campus activities.

Barbs More Active.
As a result of this organization of Barb men there has been new life injected in the university intramural program and more active participation of Barb men in campus affairs. All men who do not join fraternities are invited to join in with the Barb club and interclub organization.

John Stover, Lincoln, freshman law student, is president of the council; Wilbur Erickson, Newman Grove, senior in Bizad college, is vice president; and Joe Ruzicka, Clarkson, Arts and Sciences junior, is secretary. Treasurer is Victor Schwarting, Waco, Bizad sophomore.

MANY STUDENTS SEEK PART TIME POSITIONS

Not Many Jobs Are Open This Year, States J. D. Epp.

Judging by the number of calls coming into his office not many part time jobs are open to students this fall, J. D. Epp, in charge of the university employment bureau, stated this week.

There is no way to accurately judge the amount of employment available, however, because of the fact that students have themselves thoroughly canvassed the town for jobs, he declared. "As long as business men have the students calling on them they have no need to call on the university employment bureau," Dr. Epp stated.

group nominated by all senior women at the polls. Various campus activities are sponsored by the group.

Student government is delegated to the Student Council, responsible only to the University faculty senate. Both men and women serve on the group and are elected at a general student election.

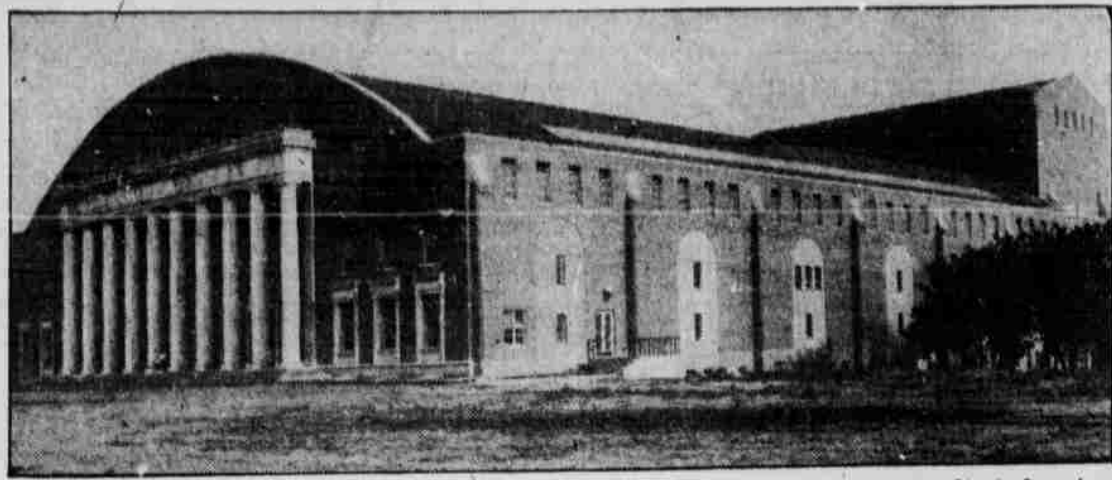

The largest organization on the campus is the Associated Women Students, of which all university women are automatically members. The executive body of the group is the A. W. S. Board, elected by the members, while the judicial organ of the group is the A. W. S. Court.

Two Barb Groups.

Two agencies for expression of unaffiliated student sentiment are present on the campus, the Barb council and the Barb Inter-Club Council. Two men and two women from each class are elected each year by a vote of the Barb student body to serve on the Barb council, while the Inter-Club council is made up of Barb club presidents. Chief function of the Barb council is the sponsoring of a group of All-University parties.

In charge of publications group is the student publications board, composed of four faculty members, the business manager of students activities, and three student members. This board appoints the paid staff members of The Daily Nebraskan, the Awgwan, and the Cornhusker. Student members are

The large fieldhouse located north of the north mall on the city campus will be the scene of freshman registration on Wednesday, Sept. 19. At that time advisers are located in designated parts of the coliseum to help their advisees make out schedules of classes, photographs of the students are taken to be later pasted on identification cards, and finally the newcomers pay their fees after filling out numerous cards.

Largest in scope of operation is the Daily Nebraskan, a regular size, four page morning newspaper, published five times weekly, edited and managed entirely by students. It employs a paid staff of eleven and in addition a group of from twelve to twenty reporters who work on the editorial side, while nearly as many students work on the business side.

Selection to paid staff positions is made by the publications board on a basis of past work done, ability shown in competition with others, and on recommendation of staff members.

The yearbook of the university is the Cornhusker, edited and managed entirely by a paid staff of students selected annually by the publications board. The paid staff consists of an editor and business manager with two assistants each. Working under these at various times during the year are as many as fifty students appointed by the paid staff to minor staff positions. Selection of paid staff members is on the same basis as the Daily Nebraskan.

Humor Magazine.

Outlet for collegiate humor on the campus is the Awgwan, sponsored by Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity, and edited and managed by a student staff appointed by the publications board. Minor staff positions are filled by appointments made by the paid staff from students reporting for work.

The Nebraska Blue Print is a monthly publication of the college of engineering and is edited and managed by a student staff appointed by the engineering publication board. The Nebraska Law Bulletin is a monthly publication put out by the students and faculty of the Law College.

Staff members of the Prairie Schooner, quarterly literary publication, are recruited from students and faculty of the university. The university directory is edited and managed by students appointed by the Y.M.C.A. and under the supervision of that group.

Students on Athletic Board.

Two student members are included in the membership of the athletic board of control, one appointed by the N club, university letter men, and one appointed by the student council. Intercollegiate athletics are open to all students. For students not taking part in varsity athletics a system of intra-mural athletics has been worked out. Three types of competitors are included in this group: interfraternity, interclub (for barbs), and all university.

Athletics for women are sponsored by the physical education department and the Women's Athletic Association. Heading the W.A.A. are four officers elected by the Executive Sports Board and the W.A.A. Intramural Representative Board.

Two pep organizations, Pi Epsilon Pi or Corn Cobs for men and Tassel for women, have for their purpose the stimulation of spirit for athletic contests. Membership is given to each fraternity and sorority and to unaffiliated students.

Many Religious Groups.

Heading the list of campus religious organizations are the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A. Student officers are elected annually and specialized staffs direct extensive activities. Other groups are Kappa Beta, Christian girls sorority; Kappa Phi, Methodist girls' club; Methodist Student council; Newman club, Catholic organization; Phi Tau Theta, Methodist men's club; Sigma Eta Chi, Congregational group; Wesley Foundation; and Wesley Players.

Debate is organized on an intercollegiate scale under the direction of Prof. H. A. White. Intramural debate is sponsored by Delta Sigma Rho, honorary forensic society, while the Long Trophy is awarded annually to the winner of a debate contest open only to freshmen.

Kosmet Klub is a group of fifteen men from the three upper classes, which stages two original all student productions annually. The University Players, under the direction of H. Alice Howell, recruits its cast from students and faculty of the university.

UNIVERSITY DISPLAY DRAWS LARGE CROWDS

Many in Attendance at State Fair View Movies of Two Campuses.

Thousands of State Fair goers this week paused to view the view of the University of Nebraska's institutional display located in the grandstand at the 1934 Nebraska State Fair and Eightieth Anniversary celebration, being held this week in Lincoln.

The exhibit, which depicted at a glance, the various phases of collegiate life at the University, was one of the most popular of all the institutional exhibits that were displayed at the annual state exposition.

The principal feature of the display was an automatic movie which included more than 800 feet of film showing the various angles of student life at the University of Nebraska—both academic and extra-curricular.

The project was built for the university on a new principle of motion picture reflection incorporating the use of a combination of mirrors. No operator is required for its control excepting to start the film.

"Just this week's showing," said Lawrence Pike, University public relations man in charge of the display, "has aroused sufficient interest among educators, chambers of commerce secretaries and others, that—could it be arranged—this display in fact could have two months solid booking."
