SCHOOL'S REALLY STARTED NOW! Book stores are crowded—so are the "drug" and the Moon. "Sosh" steps are literally covered with at least a hundred boys who rest there between classes. The classes themselves are so full that Friday in several of them the late comers had to stand around the back and sides of the room, and even in the aisles. One nice thing about having registration so large is the fact that even after the classes are split everyone is bound to know at least one other person in all his classes—and that is quite an advantage—sometimes.

'JANE EYRE' COMES TO KIVA THIS WEEK

"Jane Eyre" by Charlotte Bronte, which comes to the Kiva theater this week, is a picture wherein dwells a serious and realistic romance. It is the story of a woman whose life's bitterness and disappointments are overshadowed by a final triumph. The locale is England and the time about midway in the past century. As the story opens Jane is a little girl, a cruelly treated stepchild who spent her childhood in an orphan asylum. Growing into womanhood she finds her first happiness as a governess in the manor of Charles Rochester. Her employer is kind to her and romance springs up between them. Disappointment, however, again enters her life when she learns Rochester's insane wife is alive. She flees the house and Rochester goes in search of her. Meanwhile the marriage is annulled. In attempting to save his ex-wife in a fire, Rochester is seriously burned and blinded. Jane, learning of his fate, returns to him, to marry and care for him for life.

Able Teachers at Iowa State Are to Receive Promotion

AMES, Iowa, Sept. 24.—A plan through which one member of the teaching faculty in each of the five divisions of Iowa State college will be promoted each year, wholly on the basis of teaching ability, was announced by President R. M. Hughes in his annual address to the staff at the beginning of the college year yesterday morning. The promotion will be in the form of a change in rank or increase in salary. "We should pursue," said President Hughes, "a well-defined, consistent policy of improving the quality and effectiveness of our teaching." President Hughes referred to the applied science goal of the college when he said: "Iowa State college will reach her greatest distinction in magnifying the applied aspect of her various subjects and endeavoring in each field to serve the people of Iowa in the most generous way."

SPORTS

By Arnold Levine.

We hear from Oklahoma that Cash Gentry, All-Big Six and All-American third team tackle from the Norman institution, may not be fit to don Sooner football togs this fall. It seems that the big star lineman is having trouble with his teeth, and has lost something like thirty pounds, reducing his bulk to a mere shadow of its former self. Admittedly, Gentry was on the bench part of the time last year due to illness, but whether his present condition is as deplorable as the Oklahomans would have us believe is rather doubtful. Coach Lewis Hardage may have a few tricks up his sleeve when it comes to Gentry. Anyway it wouldn't do for the valley to place too much faith in the Sooner's inability to play.

Old "Pop" Warner picked the ranking teams of the nation the other day, unhesitatingly listing Michigan, Stanford, Pittsburgh, U. S. C., and Notre Dame. Are there any Minnesota howls? Plenty. Evidently "Pop" forgot to consider that there was another team in the Big Ten which tied the Wolverine 1933 team and which lost only one man from that combination. It should be all the better this fall because of the excellent frosh team which will report for duty.

Then there's the Notre Dame question, sure to pop up when anyone mentions football teams. The Ramblers lost everything last year, including Coach "Heartley" Hunk Anderson and staff, but Warner places them above an eleven with a perfect record. Maybe the change in coaches will help the Irish, perhaps will make them top-notchers. Temple didn't have anything before Warner stepped into control, now look at them.

If practice sessions count a whole lot when it comes to choosing a football team, Nebraska will have a soph-freshman combination backfield this fall. The most successful quartet in any scrimmage to date has had Henry "Chief" Bauer engineering the attack, with Lloyd Cardwell, Jerry LaNoue, and Sam Francis constructors. Candy holds down the right halfback assignment, Jerry the left, and Sam does the plunging, passing, and kicking from the fullback post. Cardwell and Francis are recruits from last year's frosh team, while LaNoue and Bauer each have two more years of competition. Freddy Ugal has been seen on the campus. His appearance dispels those hoary rumors that he had quit school for good. . . . Injuries in the Husker camp have been few and far between this year. . . . Rollin Parsons and James Held are the most seriously injured, but appeared in suit Monday. . . . Passers are going to be used unsparingly in the Husker offense this fall. . . . Coach Bible has a host of passers and receivers. . . . The new rules about passers will aid the Nebraska scoring column considerably.

Lawrence Ely Gets Big Reception as He Goes to U of Denver

Note: The following is a story taken from The Denver Clarion concerning Lawrence Ely, All-American Husker center and now freshman coach at the University of Denver.

Coming to the University of Denver with an achievement that every football player dreams of—All-American grider on a great football machine—is that 200 pounds of personality and football leadership, Lawrence Ely, former All-American center for the University of Nebraska, now Pioneer freshman coach.

Ely made gridiron history at Nebraska that will give future football greats a real goal to shoot at. He was All-Conference in the Big Six for three consecutive years before he was named All-American center in 1932.

Lawrence started a whirlwind athletic career at Grand Island high school when he starred in football, basketball, and track. He was all-state tackle on the football team and was all-conference guard on the championship basketball quintet in 1929.

After graduating from high school Ely could not participate in major sports other than football because of work. He was captain of the Nebraska Frosh eleven in the fall of 1929. During the next three football campaigns, Ely walked off with All-Big Six honors, and in 1932, his banner year, was named All-American center.

"I got my biggest kick out of the game we played with Pittsburgh university," stated Ely. "Pittsburgh was always our greatest rival and when we held the Panthers to a 0 to 0 tie, it really set the boys to talking."

Lawrence was captain of the West team in 1932 in the annual East-West game. He also showed in Denver in 1931 when Nebraska played a post-season game with Colorado Aggies. Ely coached the Nebraska B team last year and admitted that he is very enthusiastic about coaching. His team played a six game schedule and showed exceptionally well. Lawrence is now enrolled at the University of Denver School of Law and hopes some day to pass the bar.

Good Graduates of Iowa State College Are Career Minded

AMES, Ia., Sept. 24.—Recent good graduates of Iowa State college appear to be almost unanimously career minded.

Only four women who were graduated from the Home Economics division at Iowa State college in the past year did not want jobs. All the rest of the 183 wanted them. About 80 percent of the 151 receiving bachelor degrees during the past 4 quarters have already been placed in positions, according to Miss Genevieve Fisher, dean of home economics. Seventy-four percent of the 32 who received masters' degrees were also placed.
