

WHO TO START AT FULLBACK IS JOB BIBLE MUST FACE

Skewes or Williams May Get Call as Huskers Answer Whistle Saturday.

WEIER IS GAME CAPTAIN

Coach Deprives Spectators Of Wednesday Afternoon Access to Practice.

The one big question mark hanging over the Husker camp in Memorial Stadium this week concerns the starting fullback for next Saturday's tussle with the Minnesota Gophers, as Coach Dana X. Bible closed the gates to outside visitors, even depriving the spectators of their usual Wednesday afternoon peek at proceedings.

Only once before in his coaching history at Nebraska, extending back over a period of five years, has the Nebraska mentor insisted on privacy for his lads to this extent, and it is enough of a surprise to Husker followers for them to plan on something new dished up by the coaching staff for the Gophers, some untitled concoction as a bid for victory. The previous occasion was the week prior to the 1932 Pitt game, giving some idea of how seriously Nebraska's Scarlet and Cream are taking the "Giants of the North."

Probably one important change will be apparent in the lineup when the Nebraskans answer the whistle Saturday afternoon.

Francis Wyoming Starter. Sam Francis opened for Nebraska at fullback against Wyoming, but he developed what is commonly known as "Sophomore jitters," another name for an inferiority complex, and his inexperience was noticeable in his punting, passing, blocking and line plunging, which were not up to par, or at least up to that par he has led Nebraska followers to associate with him by virtue of his practice performances.

Glenn Skewes and Johnny Williams each had a very good day against the Cowboys. Skewes as sub to Francis, and Williams as quarterback, center and fullback, Henry "Chief" Bauer is back in suit, having been on the bench with tonsillitis, so Williams has been released from his recently assumed duties as signal caller. He and Skewes are the most logical contenders for Francis' place. It is Coach Bible's plan to keep the big boy on the sidelines for the first part of the game, at least until he gets over his stage fright.

Meier Game Captain. Outside of that, the starting lineup will be the same, if all goes well, with Franklin Meier, all Big Six center last year, acting captain.

Tuesday was spent defensively against Minnesota plays as portrayed by the frosh and "B" teams. Coach Harold Browne witnessed the Minnesota routing of North Dakota State, and brought back the plays and a very vivid account of how the Gophers used them. According to Browne, the first three Elerman coached eleven were without defect, while North Dakota scored on the fifth or sixth. Misplays were not apparent until the fourth team took the field.

Nebraska linemen, notably Jim Heldt, were breaking up and into the plays as the Husker undermen played them. As in the past, two teams of red shirted varsity warriors opposed the nubbins White and frosh Blue.

Rather a lengthy session of tries at kicks from placement was on the books. Sam Francis, Vergil Yelkin and Allan Turner booting the ball between the crossbars consistently, a reversal of form from Saturday's contest. Punting for the backs, and work between the posts for the line were also orders of the day.

One man was missing from a perfect turnout Tuesday afternoon. Glenn Justice, Grand Island guard, laid up with an old leg injury.

SOCCER BALL IS FIRST INTRAMURAL TOURNEY

Sorority, Barb Teams Begin Practice for Contest Thursday, Oct. 4.

Sorority and barb teams are practicing afternoons and evenings in preparation for the soccer-baseball tournament, first of the intramural sports for women, which will start Thursday, Oct. 4. Elaine Fontein, soccer-baseball sponsor of the W. A. A. will have direct charge of the first tournament in this year's intramural program.

Girls majoring in physical education will act as umpires in the tournament games, and mimeographed copies of the rules may be secured by the intramural representative from each sorority or barb team. Before participating in any of the sports each girl must secure a health permit.

Miss Matilda Shelby is the new W. A. A. intramural sports sponsor. Miss Shelby came to the university this summer when she taught swimming and tennis in summer school. She was graduated from Northwestern university, and has had charge of intramural sports at Knox college, Galesburg, Ill., and at Ames, Ia.

Another change in the W. A. A. officials is the replacement of Christobel Weaver, former extension chairman on the executive council by Doris Weaver. Miss Weaver was forced to resign her position when she transferred to the University of Oklahoma.

Oklahoma, in preparing for its coming game with Notre Dame, struck hard luck when it lost the services of diminutive Art Panze, versatile Sooner quarterback, last week. Panze, who just tops five feet four, has amazed Nebraskans during the times he has appeared on the Memorial football field.

The song, "The Eyes of Texas," sprang from a habitual expression of William L. Prather, former president of the University of Texas, who constantly exhorted students to remember that the "eyes of Texas were upon them."

ENTRY DEADLINE FOR MEET IS NOON TODAY

Intramural Touch Football Will Begin as Soon as Possible.

Wednesday noon has been set as the deadline for entries in the intramural touchfootball tourney and play will begin as soon after that as possible on the three fields of the Stuart tract. Director Petz is very pleased with the promptness with which the entries have been coming in. Twenty-one of the twenty-nine fraternities have entered. The schedule and the set of rules will be mailed to all fraternities entered.

Drinking conditions are poor at the University of Oklahoma, but in the past week the Norman school officials have remedied this situation by installing numerous drinking fountains in and about the stadium. The fountains are so constructed that there are 18 faucets on each unit and 36 thirsty, arid football rooters may gather about them for a drink at one time.

In former years the "soddy pop" man had made himself a killing at the institution by retailing cups of water, nothing but water understand, and selling it for so much and keep the cup. It was a deplorable state of affairs until the university athletic officials decided to furnish the student body with free drinking water at their football contests.

Down at Columbia, Coach Frank Carideo believes he has uncovered a new ball-carrying threat in the person of one, Fred Biggs, a 170 pound sophomore halfback. He has crashed through the line for consistent gains against the Tiger intramural squad in early workouts this season.

Kentucky University evidently believes in the real thing. Plans for procuring a live wildcat as the mascot of the football team are going forward and it is believed that the new edition will add greatly to the spirit of the school.

University of Southern California has banned "Hell Week," padding and tubbing as practiced by fraternities on the campus. To protect the health and the well being of fraternity pledges was the reason given in the move.

The State college of Washington is to hold a meet of five events between upperclassmen and freshmen. The contest consists of a sack race, pillow fight, obstacle race, sack fight and tug of war. Strange to say the freshmen have always won this event in the past.

The Oklahoma "Whirlwind" campus humor magazine, was off to a flying start last week by offering someone a side-line football seat for the Oklahoma-George Washington game Nov. 29 and all expenses paid. The competition is based on the number of votes a nominee receives from the student public who are supposed to obtain them by frequent trips to the leading department stores in Norman.

We notice that KFKU was broadcasting the Colorado-Kansas football game Saturday. This is unusual since the game was played in Lawrence and the broadcasting station is in the same town. There was quite a furor among educated heads which ran the conference last year to restrict broadcasting for business reasons and to increase the attendance at the home games.

G. Edgar Folk, a student at Harvard has introduced a new idea in the field of roommates. As his particular pal he keeps a three foot water snake and wants also to add an eight-foot pine snake and a boa constrictor as his constant companions.

Panze was the recipient of a bad knee injury in a practice session which promises to keep him out of the Oklahoma starting line-up for several weeks. Pat Page, junior quarter, is now filling Panze's number sevens....

Northwestern University has enrolled in its dental school for this year eleven undergraduates from England and Australia.

Briggs, in addition being a valuable passer, will swell Missouri's chances when they meet Nebraska.

SPORT STATIC

By Arnold Levine.

Coach Bible has solved his lads' inability to score from placement on the point after touchdown try. "Look," said he, pointing with evident pride to nice, white freshly painted goalposts, "the boys just couldn't see them, but we've fixed that now."

These Huskers are an unfathomable lot! Last Saturday it seemed as if they couldn't score their extra points if they were handed the point on a silver platter. Yet Tuesday, in practice, Sam Francis, Vergil Yelkin, and Allan Turner were booting the ol' pikegin over as if they never missed.

Curious facts of life! Everybody in the middle west was bemoaning the varsity strength of the Minnesota Gophers way up north in Minneapolis. Nobody paid any attention to the fact that Bierman might have reserve strength. Anyway, the North Dakota State team held the highly touted Maroon and Gold combination for the first quarter, and then the reserves opened the fireworks, burying N. D. 8, 56 to 10. Despite their performance, however, Bernie Bierman will still rely on his veterans including Capt. Pug Lund as starters.

Glenn Justice was bemoaning his fate. It didn't seem so bad to me: Lying on a table with a towel under his head for a pillow, a magazine in one hand, and a big juicy orange in the other, with one leg extended under the bake-lamp. But his spirit was not in the dressing room, it was on the practice field, taking it and dishing it out with the rest of the boys. "I've spent more time down here than up on the field," he wailed. Saturday he wanted to play with all his heart and soul (this is his last year of Husker football). His leg wasn't healed, after a triple injury, first to the thigh, then ankle, and finally knee, but he started at his customary guard position. When, early in the scrimmage, some Brown and Yellow jerseyed Cowboy banged into the injured member Justice stayed in, not leaving the field until a flock of substitutes came into the fray. Monday and Tuesday were spent in the dressing room under the bake lamp, and he may not be in shape for the Minnesota game next Saturday. What price glory?

Seems as if every school in the valley conference dug up a brilliant flock of sophs for the 1934 season. Nebraska's sophomores were a subject of much discussion, even when they were freshmen. Now Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Iowa State and Kansas State all boast some super stars among their yearling candidates for positions on varsity teams. Maybe the high school material a year ago was superior in all parts of the country, or maybe it's just a new trend toward sophomore shining lights.
