

CAMPUSOCIETY

WE'VE HEARD OF SOME PEOPLE being clothes conscious and others being self-conscious but lately the majority of the students on the campus seem to have grown "Itsy-Bitsy" conscious. It's a mania, it's a fad, it's a pastime. The team played it all the way home from Minnesota; the Awgwan office has been disrupted by it; it's even been known to have been played on dates! It's played by a group in a circle—some poor unsuspecting victim comes out much the wiser with lipstick smeared from forehead to chin—and red his face should be! If you're not in the know ask someone to show you for never let it be said that you were caught not "Itsy-Bitsy" wise.

Students Symbols Of Hope for Future Say College Heads

By JAMES CRENSHAW, Editor, College News Service. In a depression-ridden nation which has been staggered by a series of major calamities the college student stands out as the shining light which symbolizes hope for the future.

That sounds like a commencement day come-on for "higher and better things," but nevertheless it is the consensus of opinions expressed by four leading college presidents in the Los Angeles area. Interviewed by a reporter, the presidents—Dr. Rufus B. Von Kleinsmid of the University of Southern California, Dr. Ernest C. Moore of the University of California at Los Angeles, Dr. Remsen D. Bird of Occidental college and Father Duce of Loyola university—all agreed that a finer and more responsible type of student is emerging from the depression and that the scholastic slacker is as rare now as was the high honor brand of student ten years ago.

Students generally can take those opinions for what they are worth, but in connection with the conclusion of these educators that the depression has marked the end of so-called "rah-rah" collegians, the four agreed on one other highly significant point: That no first-class student is allowed to drop out of school for financial reasons. Dr. Bird pointed out that, in addition to government assistance, student loans and other methods of support are being offered to thousands of students throughout the country.

try. In other words, the age-old argument that college is only for the well-to-do has been permanently blasted, and perhaps—dare we hope?—we are really in fair way toward creating an "aristocracy of brains" which will replace the idealism of money-grabbing that has marked much of our past history.

SPORT STATIC

By ARNOLD LEVINE

Last week "Watch Lund" re-verbated from behind the closed gates of Memorial stadium. This week an even more sinister threat appears, as the Huskers prepare for their second excursion into the Big Ten, in the shape of 170 pounds of super-concentrated T. N. T. from Iowa university, one Oze Simmons.

Dick Crayne was the man of the hour in Hawkeye reports before the season got under way, now Simmons, characterized so fittingly as a "dusky streak" grabs the spotlight.

Oze is the type of man coaches dream about, and very rarely indeed do those dreams come true. He's got speed, plenty of it, to burn; he can catch passes as if they were baseballs; his blocking is of the best; and defensively he's a wow. The appropriate answer to any mentor's dream! The fans appreciate him, they like the way he fields a ball, and out-twists and outruns, if he can't out twist 'em, the opposition on returning punts. They like the way he hits the line, head down, legs chopping viciously; the way he blocks, tackles, and, above all, they like his peartoothed grin.

His success is doing everything but making him conceited. When asked about his rapidly mounting star of fame, he grinned and responded: "Lawsy, I've sure got to go some now, I've got a reputation to live up to."

Harold Brill, the Norton, Kas., backfield ace, who limped down to "Doc" McLean in the latter's offense one day on crutches, and left unscathed on his own leg power really turned in an exhibition of good football in Wednesday's scrimmaging. Landing on his own fifty yard line, he booted the pigskin out of bounds on the varsity one and one-half yard line, 40 yards of which punt were in the air. The stocky, gum-chewing quarterback also uncorked the forward passes for the frosh outfit, completing several.

His offensive work was not all that gained him the plaudits of those who watched the exhibition. Chief Bauer, well known for his ability to get around would-be tacklers, broke through the frosh line and was on his way to a touchdown before he met up with 180 pounds of bone and muscle that said "No!" emphatically in the form of Mr. Brill. Brill scooped the Chief up in his arms and flung him over his shoulder and down to the turf, remaining upright all the time.

There is a flock of kid brothers of Husker athletes listed among the freshman football players this year. Chief Bauer finds his brother, Bill, playing quarterback for the freshman outfit, while Carroll Reese has a younger brother listed among Weir's linemen. Dohrmann, the Staplehurst end, is a brother of Adolph Dohrmann, who last year skinned over the track hurdles for Coach Schulte's high team. And no one who knows the two could mistake their family ties. Harold Brill, the latest frosh backfield "find" is a second cousin to the All-American Marty Brill who played for Notre Dame some years ago.

Sixty-seven engineering students and three members of the faculty will return to Stillwater today after a weeks absence. They had been on their annual engineering inspection trip.

Side glances: The football practice field is showing the wear imposed on it by three groups of footballers—varsity, "B," and frosh. . . . Sam Francis has been kicking mighty well in practice. . . . Much better than he did against Wyoming. . . . He missed much when his illness forced him to the sidelines during spring practice. . . . Big Lloyd Cardwell has a peculiar sidestep all his own. . . . His lanky legs go out in one direction while he seems to scoot off in another. . . . Harold Holmbeck doesn't look to weigh 200 pounds, but such is actually the case. . . . Dwight Loder has decided that football is rather a rough game for a basketball man since he has had to navigate on crutches. . . . He was hurt when tackled while carrying the ball against the "B" team in practice. . . . Someone hit him as he attempted a sidestep, and the cartilages in his knees were jerked out of place. . . . He hopes to be in condition for basketball. . . . Russ Thompson's 230 pounds (and no fat either) have been working well at tackle during the past week's scrimmage sessions. . . . There is some question in Big Six circles of Oklahoma's muchly blue-blooded strength since the Sooners were subjected to a 7 to 6 beating by their freshmen and beat Cen-
