HUSKER TRACKSTERS OVERWHELM TARKIO COLLEGE 30.5 TO 24.5

Glen Funk Leads Nebraska's Cross-Country Team in Friday Meet.

The Husker cross-country team came through its first encounter of the year with flying colors. Led by Glen Funk, the Husker tracksters thoroughly trounced the Tarkio College, Mo., aggregation last Friday afternoon to the tune of 30 1-2 to 24 1-2.

Despite a slow track Funk easily led the field to win in excellent time of 10:6.8. Funk, two-year track veteran hailing from Central City, showed possibilities of turning in record-breaking time if the track had been in better condition. The other Nebraska entrants finished in the following order: White, third; Rall, fifth; Rice, sixth; and Chittenden, tied for ninth.

"Although it was apparent that the conditions of the track handicapped everyone, I am well satisfied with the results of the meet," declared Coach Ayres, "and I feel such that we can look forward to a successful year."

The Huskers next opponents will be the Kansas State team, whom they will meet next Saturday between halves of the Iowa State-Nebraska football game.

Amelia Earhart Will Greet Her Cousin at Ames

AMES, Ia.—When Amelia Earhart, woman flyer, appeared on the Iowa State college campus last week to deliver a lecture to the student body it was a sort of homecoming for her, even though she had never been in Ames before.

A second cousin of Amelia Earhart's, Miss Cecilia Earhart, is a new staff member in the Foods and Nutrition Department of Iowa State. While engaged as a research fellow in nutrition, Miss Earhart is also interested in flying.

Another of Amelia Earhart's cousins, Philip Earhart, graduated from a chemical engineering course here in 1927.

LINCOLN GROUPS TO HEAR FRANKFORTER

C. J. Frankforter, assistant professor of chemistry at the university, will make talks in November to two Lincoln groups. Before a group of Clive League pupils from the Lincoln schools on Nov. 1 he will discuss industrial chemistry. Nov. 18 he is scheduled to speak to a class of boys at the First Plymouth Congregational church on the subject "Military Training in Our Colleges."

- 1. Steinbock (No. 11) was a strong cog in Oklahoma offense but Hubka stopped him. Douglas (No. 29) is ready in case Hubka misses.
- 2. Nebraska scored the only touchdown in the closing minutes of the game. Sam Francis carried the ball across from 3rd yard line.
- 3. Bauer the Husker's quarterback made 11 yards on a spinner and helped to pave the way for the Nebraska touchdown.
- 4. Skewes made a long pass to Benson in the third quarter but it was a trifle short. Benson has turned back but too late.
- 5. Steinbock knew how to return punts and used his knowledge effectively. He is being forced to the side lines by Benson, Reese and Roman.

SPORT STATIC

By ARNOLD LEVINE

Oh, where are ye prophets and ye seers? Gather round quickly, sound the call, bring the army, navy, police, experts, wise boys, something's gone haywire. Are ye all here? And why the glum and silent faces? Aha, I knew it. These Iowa Staters pulled a fast one on you guys. Which just goes to show that this old game of football just can't be figured in advance.

Yep, something's gone haywire all right, all right. Just look at those predictions. Iowa, Iowa, Iowa. What about the Staters? You just left them out in the cold, eh? Well they sure astounded these middle western states of ours, and the Big Ten and Big Six in particular. Especially the Big Six. Ames has been considered a doormat for so long that it is natural to expect a victory when the Cyclones arrive to do their storming, at least that has been the case with the Huskers for the past few years. And now look! These Veenker men face the Huskers in much the same manner as a Boulder dam. And are those Cyclones ever anxious to whirl around in Memorial Stadium, and all around the Huskers, too!

But no matter what those tornadoes did to have touted Hawkeyes, you've got to convince me that any team can beat the Cornhuskers in Memorial Stadium. Also, those statistics of the Ames-Iowa City inter-city match, and great was the joy in Ames, but the gloom in Iowa City was so thick you could cut it with a knife, are just a little bit out of discord with the final tabulations. The scoreboard read 31 to 6, but if the statistics didn't lie, Ames should have won by about 6 points. Everything considered, the two teams battled on fairly even terms. But the breaks, ah, there you have it, the breaks! The breaks favored the Cyclones, and they used them to break Iowa's morale. First Ozzie Simmons fumbled on his 8-yard line. An Ames score followed. Then the dusky flash muffed the pill again on his own 12. Once again the Ames team shoved it the remaining distance, over the pay-chalk. From there on it was a rout. Simmons left the game, and the Iowa team went all to pieces. Little Tommy Neal pranced all over the field, and this, coupled with some very excellent punting by Fred Poole, was just too much for the Hawks' stomach. But the fact still remains, the statistics were very, very close, and if the game hadn't been full of those incomprehensible, unaccounted for things known as the breaks, the score might have been something very different than it was.

And then, too, perhaps Iowa was just a little bit overconfident, a little bit worried over where they would spend the evening rather than paying attention to the task at hand, and the task got out of hand. Such things have been known to happen, you know, and it is possible that Coach Ozzie Solem couldn't eradicate all the strains of belief in themselves that his men had. And then look at the reputation on the crest of which Iowa's banner was waving high and proudly, a banner now more or less trailing in the dust. And compare Iowa State's record, a team not given a chance to win, coming through with a surprise upset, giving the Big Ten a severe shock, and giving those Big Six contenders something very definite to worry over.

Granger Rough Cut

"Why—I don't believe I have used a pipe cleaner in three or four weeks

Granger leaves no gum in the bowl of my pipe—or moisture in the stem. It burns down to a clean dry ash."

... in a common-sense package—10c

In the manufacture of Granger Rough Cut Pipe Tobacco the Wellman Process is used.

The Wellman Process is different from any other process or method and we believe it gives more enjoyment to pipe smokers.

- ... it gives the tobacco an extra flavor and aroma
- ... it makes the tobacco act right in a pipe—burn slower and smoke cooler
- ... it makes the tobacco milder
- ... it leaves a clean dry ash—no soggy residue or beel in the pipe bowl
