EVERYONE'S PRACTISING FOR
 Kosmet Klub. Some girls are very lame from the unusual effort of trying to be chorus girls—in fact we heard of one poor little eed who rated a free ride up the law college stairs because she was so tired and just couldn't make it. The Kosmet Klub ticket sale is in full progress, too. Prospective members are doing their best to sell the largest number. Girls in sorority houses are helping them. In some houses there are as many as five different pledges all selling tickets for someone different. It's all for the good of the cause, we guess, which, by the way, is a mighty good one.

SPEAKING OF MARRIAGES—two alumnae of Upland were married on the same day recently. On Nov. 3 Pearl Christensen became the bride of Waldemar Hansen of Ogallala. Mr. Hansen is employed with a Lincoln construction firm. And Delma Madsen was married to Orville Nielsen who has been teaching in the high school at Holbrook.

SPORT STATIC

By ARNOLD LEVINE

There's a sign in the Nebraska dressing room this week that will undoubtedly adorn the grey walled room until the final whistle blows on the Kansas Aggie Thanksgiving day game. That sign reads: "Down the stretch now with a conference championship at stake. It's the finish that makes champions."

This is typical of the attitude which pervades the Husker camp. All thought, all activity now is centered on the Big Six crown, with three games between a resumption of that coveted title and the Huskers. It's the last stretch of the 1934 season for Dana X. Bible and his boys, the final race that will end either in the fourth consecutive league title, or something that has but once been recorded in the annals of the Big Six—some other team at the head of the parade than Nebraska's Cornhuskers.

The "big guns" are off the schedule now. Minnesota and Pittsburgh, with the gashes they rent in the Scarlet and Cream banner, are things of the past. The Huskers are searching for more conference scalps to add to their already well-filled trophy rooms, and beware of the Huskers when they go a-hunting!

First on the list comes Kansas Jayhawkers, the one team that displaced Nebraska at the head of the Big Six, way back in 1930. Even then, the Huskers trimmed the champs, 16 to 0. Saturday, at Lawrence, the two clash again in a renewal of one of the oldest grid records on the annals of either school.

But the Jayhawkers of 1934 are out for revenge. They have keyed their team to fever pitch, preparing for the invading Huskers much as those same Huskers prepared for Pittsburgh. If Bill Hargiss' lads can break precedent, the dope bucket, and everything else connected with the science of gridology and come away from that vale below Mt. Oreads frowning height victors, their season will be complete. Wiped out will be the stains of defeat by Tulsa, and Kansas Aggies, and any others which may be pinned on them before the '34 season ends. When their football men hang up their moleskins after the season has rounded out, they can do so with a certain feeling of pride and confidence, because they knocked off Nebraska. About all

Norma Shearer and Fredric March, the romantic sweethearts of "Smilin' Thru," are seen again in the film version of that great stage hit "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" now at the Stuart!

It was in the 1890's that Nebraska and Kansas first met on the gridiron. For a number of years the two schools came off about even, then Nebraska began asserting that supremacy which has persisted since. Not since 1908 has Kansas triumphed over the Scarlet, even in the banner years at the Jayhawk institution.

There is also a precedent established which listens bad for the Jays but good for the Huskers. Nebraska has always had the "Indian sign" on the Mt. Oread team when on the Lawrence grid (on the home field, too, for that matter), but Nebraska victories have been especially noteworthy when on the opponent's field. It was at Lawrence that Coach Bible's Huskers trimmed Bill Hargiss' youths 16 to 0, with All-American Jim Bausch in the Jay backfield. It was on home sod that the Mt. Oreadians scored their last "break" in the Nebraska series, a 20-20 tie.

'AGGIES' DOWN ALPHA, PHIS IN TOURNAMENT

The "Aggies," women's Nebraska basketball team from Ag campus, won from the Alpha Phi team in one round of the Nebraska ball tournament played Wednesday night, November 14. The K. B. B. (Kan't Be Beat) won from the Kappa Delta's the same night.

Friday the Alpha Xi Delta's will play the Theta's, and the winner of this game will play the Aggies Monday. The winning team of the game between the Delta Gamma's and the Gamma Phi's Friday, will play the K. B. B.'s Monday.

CONDRA, HUFNAGLE BACK FROM SURVEY

Dr. G. E. Condra has just returned from a trip to the western part of the state where he was in charge of the ground water survey work. He was accompanied by Richard Hufnagle, campus photographer, who took pictures of the beet sugar industry. These pictures will be used in a publication which will soon be released by the soil conservation department of the university.
