Unique Tonic

A tradition which has already contributed much toward establishing a fine and friendly spirit on the Nebraska campus, and which will probably account for many an instance of group congeniality on the campus in the future is the Mortar Board party, a turn-about affair scheduled for Friday evening in the coliseum.

This dance will be the fourth annual Mortar Board party, the traditional event being inaugurated in February, 1932, Leap Year. It is always good for a group to break away, in decent fashion, from the rigid trend and rule of things for a short time.

Tonight a large portion of the student body is going on a commendable spree. For the fellows, at least, the turn of affairs will mean some real relaxation, even in event of flat tires. Don't get that last statement wrong, girls!

Contemporary Comment

Huey Takes It Back

"Kingfish" Long of Louisiana, like all good politicians, recognizes the value of quick retreat when the enemy's forces become too menacing. In a 900 word telegram to the Big Ten Editorial association a few days ago, the senator declared he had "never censored or undertaken to censor anything published at Louisiana State university."

The cause for this lengthy denial was the action of the Big Ten college editors in condemning publicly his "unwarranted censorship of the undergraduate newspaper"—the Reveille. But apparently the students of L. S. U. are not satisfied to let the matter of censorship rest with Huey's protestation of innocence.

Over the effigy's straw stuffed chest they pinned a placard "James Monroe Smith, Jimmie the Stogie." Huey will perhaps think twice before blundering again into anything as touchy as freedom of the press.

Progress Demands Social Education

Within the last half century there has been more quantitative progress and universal change in material and cultural development of the world than in all previous history. Unprecedented development in physical and technological science has accentuated the need for a study of human relationships.

Why shouldn't knowledge and truth about human society play as important a part in science and education as a knowledge of cosmic processes? The question also arises why shouldn't social adjustment be an essential part of students' training regardless of the specialization they expect to pursue?

Greetings to the Basketball Season

Friday evening at Laramie, Wyoming, the Husker basketball team will open a tough schedule against the famed Wyoming cage quintet. Coach W. H. Browne will be starting his third year as head basketball mentor at Nebraska when the opening whistle blows on the Cowboy court.

Following mid-season last winter, Husker basketball definitely went on the up-swing and it is to be hoped that the swing is a long one. Starting out with a series of non-conference defeats during Christmas vacation, Nebraska cagers came back against the Kansas Jayhawkers, eventual conference champs, and finished the conference season with five victories and five defeats, their best record in three years.

Nebraska is obviously a one-sport school, football attracting the most attention among the student body and out in the state. Basketball has suffered from lack of attention and interest, and due to this fact Nebraska records have not been as good as they could have been.

Kansas is the perennial Big Six basketball champion. Lawrence, the seat of the University of Kansas, is actually the center of basketball in the United States, with what the inventor of the game, Dr. Naismith, residing there, and Coach "Phog" Allen, one of the true masters of the game, coaching the Kansas team.

Nebraska basketball will see some improvement this winter. In battling against Big Six foes, however, Husker teams will be playing some of the best in the nation, and losses to any one of these teams are no disgrace.

With good things prophesied for the team, the student body should supplement this optimism by backing Coach Browne and his men in spirited fashion.

A Bigger and Better Awgwan

It is the Nebraska's duty and pleasure to state that this year's Awgwan editor is doing a very noteworthy job, in fact the humor magazine is better this year than it has been for several seasons. Of course this is a matter of opinion, but the opinion seems to be general.

The editor of the Nebraska, however, was set back Thursday when he noted that a letter to Santa Claus (in editorial form) was included in the December Awgwan. He had planned one for next week, but publication of such an editorial would open him to the charge of plagiarism. If he thinks of any new ideas the editorial will be forthcoming anyway, unless Santa Claus sends him some other editorial possibility or notion.

Congratulations Awgwan staff! It is hoped that your business is as good as your magazine.

Radio, Newspapers Request Reports Concerning Meteor But University Still Without Definite Information

(Continued from Page 1.) Passed from view he heard the explosion, which, according to the intricate computations of Prof. Collins would mean that during this time the meteor travelled about thirty-eight miles. In other words, the meteor was traveling at nothing short of 12 miles per second.

The second person interviewed was the station agent at Alvo. According to information obtained from these two sources, Prof. Collins stated that the meteor fell within a ten mile radius of Julian, Nebraska. Its light was so bright, according to these two sources of information, that it out-shone all artificial lights, was "as light as day," and illuminated the surrounding territory to such an extent that reading a newspaper at that time, without the aid of artificial lighting, would have been a comparatively simple matter—had one, of course, had a newspaper. The statements as to the size of the object vary from the proverbial grain of sand to the size of a house and on up to an estimate which reckoned it at a half-mile across.

The color of the meteor has been described as white, blue, and brown. Prof. Collins stated that, according to one source of information, it exploded in the air, and according to another source, it did not explode until it hit the ground. Scientists state that probably 20,000,000 of these meteors fall all over the world each day—such meteors varying in size from those which are so small that 10,000 of them could be held in one hand, to those such as one discovered in Greenland, now lodged in the New York museum, which weighs in the neighborhood of thirty-six tons.

CHANTS BY CHANCE

One of the necessary groups who will take an active part in the success of "Yellow Jack" is the quartet of young men who will sing old songs between acts and scenes. They are known about Lincoln in a professional way as "The Templars" and have done lots of singing before the Masons and Elks club, on the radio, and also sing regularly at the St. Paul's church. Lately they have been doing Christmas entertainments. The personnel of this quartet is Russell Gilman, Don Jackson, Al Reider, Bill Miller and Paul Le Bar, a former RKO organist, who accompanies, W. G. Temple is the manager. For the play, however, they will sing a capella. Among the Spanish-American war songs and old timers they will warble are "Good-Bye Dolly Gray," "Just Tell Them that You Saw Me," "On the Banks of the Wabash," "Good-bye Blue Bell," "Just as the Sun Goes Down," "We're in the Army Now," and "There's a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," which they will sing three or four times during the play. These chaps attend the university, and will more than add to the interest of this outstanding production given by the University Players.

Another quartet will appear in the play also, but they are not the singing kind. This group is all soldiers who depict the different kinds of men found in the army. Yesterday we told you about the chaps who would portray the southern American soldier, the Jewish radical and the Irishman; but the Canadian toughy was overlooked. The fourth member of this particular group is an important one, and is to be played by "Hedda Gabler" as Blinkerhoff, the Canadian soldier of fortune, Wolfe will impersonate the smart alec, tougher type of character.

Eva Le Gallienne, whose appearance may or may not have been appreciated here in Lincoln last year, recently closed both her engagements of "L'Aiglon," the Clemence Dane production, and "Hedda Gabler," and has begun work on her repertoire in New York. Of her recent performances in "Hedda Gabler" John Mason Brown of the New York Post wrote, "Miss Le Gallienne speaks well, but regardless of the skill with which she utters this speech or that, she leaves her 'Hedda' uninterpreted. She played with intensity but the character she acts is not Ibsen's, but Miss Le Gallienne's, in fact the very same short haired Miss Le Gallienne who will soon again be seen in a revival of 'L'Aiglon.' Miss Ethel Barrymore, who appeared in the same cast with Miss Le Gallienne, has withdrawn from the cast, to star in a play in her own right, which will open shortly. The third Le Gallienne production which will open soon is G. Martinez Sierra's "Cradle Song."

Among the current moving pictures which are attracting large houses, is the screen version of Charles Dickens' "Great Expectations." This vehicle is particularly interesting because it brings three of the stage's brightest stars to the screen in an initial debut. Henry Hull, who for years starred in the stage version of "Tobacco Road," Florence Reed especially remembered for her performances of "Shanghai Gesture" and Jane Wyatt of "Lost Horizons" fame, are the three. It would pay to see these unusual artists in this first screening of the famous novel.
