Ten Nebraska agricultural associations will sponsor the annual Organized Agriculture week on the university campus January 7, 8, 9 and 10, according to a recent announcement from the office of W. W. Burr, dean of the college of agriculture.

A highlight of the annual session will be the fun feed, to be held Wednesday evening, which is a general get-together of all groups interested in the event.

Last year the sessions started on Jan. 1. Record crowds of Nebraskans attended the sessions, and reports indicated that a general feeling of optimism on the agricultural outlook for the state was noted there.

Organizations sponsoring Organized Agriculture week include: Nebraska State Crop Growers association, Nebraska State Honey Producers, Livestock Breeders and Feeders association, Farm Equipment association, State Dairymen's association, State Horticulture society, Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation, Poultry association, Hall of Agricultural Achievement association, and the Nebraska Home Economics association.

Farmers of the state will divide their time between the various interests. The Farm Bureau Federation will be the first to meet Tuesday, according to Ag college officials, will be the busiest day.

Presentation of University's Thirty-Ninth Oratorio Draws Crowd.

Nebraska music lovers numbering nearly 7,000 jammed the coliseum Sunday afternoon to hear the thirty-ninth presentation of the noted Christmas work, "The Messiah." Officials of the university stated that Sunday's crowd broke all previous attendance marks.

George Frederick Handel's production was so enthusiastically received by the audience that despite the request made at the beginning of the program that there be no applause because of the length of the production, the efforts of the soloists, chorus and the orchestra, directed by Mr. Kirkpatrick, were all applauded.

The university choral union, assisted by the agricultural college chorus members from church choirs from all over the city and the Lincoln symphony orchestra, presented the oratorio. Particularly outstanding this year were the choral parts. Sing-

DR. WERNER SPEAKER AT SOCIAL PROBLEMS CLUB FIRST MEETING

Interested Students Invited To Attend Tuesday; Discussion.

All interested students are invited to attend the first meeting of the Social Problems club Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in Social Science 101, according to Gerald Agans, instructor of philosophy. Dr. O. H. Werner, professor of principles of education, will speak to the group, after which there will be a short discussion period.

Through his topic, "Challenge to American Youth," Dr. Werner said he intended to raise questions for discussion on which young people of today ought to be thinking. "We need an intelligent investigation and discussion of problems so that we can arrive at intelligent decisions," he stated.

The business meeting will be concerned with the adoption of a constitution for the new club, as well as the election of officers. A constitutional committee composed of Margaret Deming, Willard Hetsel, and Dan Williams has been working on the constitution and will present the draft to be considered by those present at the first meeting. The evening's program was planned by Vincent Broady, Herman Gendel, Eleanor Cook, Robert Burleigh, and Gerald Agans.

The purpose of the new organization is to acquaint students on the campus with contemporary social problems, according to a statement by Mr. Agans. "We wish to provide an open forum for student opinion," he said. Speeches by men well versed on the social problems of the day, as well as debates and informal discussions are included on the proposed program for the year it was announced.

Also meeting with the student group will be the Lincoln section of the society. An invitation to all freshman engineers to attend the meeting has been extended by the officers of the society.

Prof. O. C. Collins, Conducting Search For Traces of Meteor, Still Hot on Its Trail, But Unable Locate Object

Still hot on the trail of the meteor which blazed its way across the Nebraska sky at about 3:30 a. m. last Wednesday morning, Prof. O. C. Collins of the astronomy department, in charge of the university observatory, Monday was busily engaged in an attempt to definitely locate the object, or at least a portion of it.

Newspaper and radio appeals for information concerning the meteor, plus a trip to the approximate territory where it finally exploded, such as a Fourth of July skyrocket, and crashed to earth, have brought in a steady stream of letters describing the meteor, but as yet no portion of it has been found, according to Prof. Collins.

Letters from widely separated points in Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, and Missouri, however, describing the general direction the meteor was traveling, have enabled us to determine that it definitely fell in

CRABILL TO SEND YEARBOOK PANELS ENGRAVERS SOON

Junior and Senior Sections Will Be Given Printers After Vacation.

PHOTOGRAPHS DUE NOW Late Photos Will Be Grouped In Back With No Attempt Alphabetizing.

The next big step in the compiling of the Cornhusker, university yearbook, will start immediately after Christmas vacation ends, Editor Frank Crabill announced Monday, when pictures for the junior and senior class sections will be sent to the engraver.

All pictures to be listed alphabetically will be made up into panels the first week after school is resumed, according to Crabill, and all junior and senior pictures to be included in that section must be taken before that time.

The junior and senior pictures not taken before then will also be included in the yearbook, but they will be grouped at the back of their respective sections with no attempt at alphabetical classification, according to Crabill.

As soon as work on those two sections is completed, the Cornhusker staff will start the task of closing the fraternity and sorority sections, and those pictures must be taken soon after classes are resumed, said Crabill, although a definite deadline has not yet been set. Group pictures are being sent to the engraver as soon as they are completed, and Crabill hopes to have the majority of those pictures taken before the holiday starts this weekend.

Plans are also being made to prepare a feature section, crammed with pictures representing the kaleidoscope of campus activities and personalities, far larger than the corresponding section of last year's book.

Hugh Rathburn, the candid cameraman of the Cornhusker staff, is taking the pictures for the feature section, and he has already used up enough film to fill an entire book, according to Crabill.

Frankforter to Receive Patent Christmas Day

Probably one of the most appreciated Christmas gifts to be received this year will be in the form of a patent from the United States patent office in Washington, D. C., the recipient of which is to be Prof. C. J. Frankforter of the chemistry engineering department.

Prof. Frankforter after several years of effort in inventing and then presenting to the patent department will on that date be given manufacturing rights for a special apparatus of his own discovery, which is a new type of heating unit for the controlling of heat reactions in operations where such control is necessary.

Word from his patent attorney in Washington recently informed him that the patent would be granted on his device Christmas day. Prof. Frankforter explained that he spent three years experimenting with the unit and has for the past year been making attempts to receive the patent.

The heating unit, he describes, is an intricate tubular sort of mechanism which by methods of temperature control thru resistance principles regulates heat reactions. The apparatus can be constructed any size, he stated, and its efficiency of operation in manufacturing purposes has not been as yet definitely ascertained. In the laboratory, the unit has worked unusually well, he said.

After the vesper services, which is entirely in charge of the freshman Y. W. C. A. committee, a dinner will be given by the cabinet for all members of the freshman commission groups.

Cast in the play, which takes place in an old English setting on Christmas night, is Margaret Peterson, as Dame Margaret; Dorothy Larson, as Harold; Betty Cherny as Frances; Eileen Honnold as Eleanor; Lois Mullenberg as Rosalie; and Regina Hunkins as the Beggar. The play is directed by Marjorie Bannister, and Winifred Nelson is property manager.

Special music on the program will be provided by Jane Holland, who will sing a vocal solo. The vesper choir, under the direction of Violet Vaughn, will sing the professional and the recreational. Different members of the cabinet will preside over different parts of the program.

CHEM DEPARTMENT GRADS VISIT SCHOOL

Ernest Dane, James Allen Call on Former Instructor.

Among alumni visitors returning to their old haunts on the university campus the past few days and also to call on their former instructor, Prof. C. J. Frankforter of the chemistry department, were Ernest Dane, chemistry engineer graduate in '29, and James P. Allen, chemistry engineering in '32. Mr. Dane is a chemist now employed by the Standard Oil company at the Sugar Creek Refinery near Kansas City, Mo. Mr. Allen is working as a chemistry engineer for Lincoln on the Ashland water project. He has recently been collecting data concerning the establishment and operation of the city water plant at that place. Allen is working on plans for the installation of apparatus that pertains to the removal of manganese and iron from the water, and which, if installed, will be the first of its sort put into operation in the United States. This apparatus was developed thru experimental work by Allen and Professor Frankforter.

Pi Mu Epsilon Will Meet This Evening

Making Christmas Cards Is Favorite Hobby of Harkness

Making Christmas cards for himself and his friends is the favorite hobby of Prof. D. H. Harkness of the engineering college at this season of the year. Producing cuts by carving out holiday designs with small engraving tools on black print linoleum, Prof. Harkness has already completed one card and is at present working on a second. When he has completed a cut, he uses an old styled letter press to print the cards.

Prof. Harkness stated he usually decorates the cards with some design appropriate to the home or family life of himself or his friends. He has had very good luck with some of the cuts, he said, and enjoys making them. Usually two or three hours are sufficient time for designing and engraving a cut, he stated.

FINALS IN FROSH DEBATE TOURNEY SLATED TUESDAY

Contestants Again to Speak On Question of Old Age Pensions.

SEVEN MEN COMPETE

Tryouts for Third Varsity Meet Scheduled Jan. 10.

Finals of the Long Cup freshman debate tourney will be run off Tuesday evening, Dec. 18, in Andrews hall, the seven men competing having been selected thru the preliminary debate held last Thursday. Those who will speak are: Robert Martz, Leonard U. Kreuger, Edwin Carlston, Howard Linch, Robert Wadham, Evan J. Finklestein, and Robert Steffer. The contestants will speak on the sides of the question which they had in the prelims, using the same proposition: "Resolved, That the federal government should establish some plan to provide for old age pensions."

The winner will receive a new cup this year, the old one being placed on exhibition in the trophy case. Names of winners in past years engraved on the cup are: Lloyd Popisil, Charles Gray, Woodrow Magee, Beverly A. Finkle, Irving Hill, and Arthur L. Smith, Jr., and Herbert Kaplan as joint winners.

Professor White stated that in no case would the cup be awarded jointly to two men as it was last year, that the judges would be asked to select a single man.

Entries for the third varsity debate subject trial, Jan. 10, have not been coming in very well, the debate coach declared, and as an incentive he pointed out the not inconsiderable trip to Denver Feb. 6 and 7, where two teams will engage several colleges on the proposition, "Resolved, That the nations should agree to prevent the international shipment of arms and munitions." Other debates will be scheduled, too, making a full program for the team working on the third proposition.

Morrill Hall Exhibit of 'Prospector' Mountain Scenes Resembles Wall of China to Visitor Not Schooled in Art

BY LORRAINE CAMPBELL.

Visitors who have never studied art usually ask if this is the Great Wall of China," laughed Professor Kirsch of the fine arts department. He was standing in front of a mountain scene in the "Prospector" collection of exhibits now being shown in Morrill Hall. "These mountain interpretations do not emphasize color and typical scenery, but rather they attempt to depict physical characteristics—a suggestion of form and the fitting together of the various geographic irregularities."

This group of paintings is the work of five Boulder, Colo., artists who call themselves "Prospectors." There is only one man in the group of artists and the majority of them were born and educated in the east. The pictures have been accused of failing to represent the typical colors in the Colorado landscape and as a matter of fact, the majority of

LINCOLN WOMAN SUBMITS WINNING SCHOONER SLOGAN

'Pulse of the Prairie People' Is Epigram Awarded Prize.

"Pulse of the Prairie People," the slogan submitted by the Prairie Schooner epigram contest by Mrs. Blanche Evans of Lincoln, was awarded the $7.50 cash prize by the judging committee comprised of members of Sigma Upsilon, literary fraternity that sponsors the publication. Mrs. Evans, the winning contributor, is a writer of some note, having published a score of poems in the Omaha World Herald, Prairie Schooner, and other midwestern publications. She is also the author of Molten Lava, a volume of miscellaneous poems, many of which are love verses.

According to the report of the judging committee the above slogan was considered the best one submitted to the contest because it is alive, simple, full of meaning, and reflects the desired interpretation of the Schooner as Nebraska's first class fiction magazine.

Dr. L. C. Wimberly, who is the editor of the Schooner and was also a member of the judging group, stated that since the magazine is the product of literary minded westerners, it is truly the pulse of the prairie people. Dr. Wimberly, who has been at the helm of the Schooner's editorial staff during the eight years of the magazine's existence, believes that the publication has always tried to carry out the pioneering theme.

H. P. Behlen, Schooner business manager, plans to use the winning slogan immediately for advertising purposes. Two hundred facsimiles of the Schooner cover, bearing the new slogan and the name of its author, were distributed on the campus this morning. The motto will also be used on the masthead sheet of the next issue of the Schooner and on posters, letterheads and for all other general advertising.

MORTON TO ADDRESS Y.W. DISCUSSION GROUP

Public School and Changing Society Topic for Talk.

Dr. W. H. Morton, who is principal of Teachers college high school and director of teacher training, will speak at "The Place of the Public School in a Changing Society" at the discussion meeting of the Y. M. C. A. in the Temple Wednesday evening.

Dr. Morton plans to begin his talk by outlining the need for an educated populace in an era of radical social change and experiment. He believes that if such changes are to be successfully accomplished their forerunners must be initiated in the public school system. He further stated that an altered program of education must guide the new social desires and demands. Following his talk Dr. Morton will consider student suggestions as to some of the needed changes in education. The problem will be discussed on an open forum basis by the group.

It is expected that all of the regular Y members attend since this is the final session before the holiday recess, according to Charles Hulac, Y president. The meeting is open, however, to any one interested in the topic of the evening.
