Musker Encounter With Iowa Hoopsters Initial Tilt on Home Court.

INVADERS EXPERIENCED

"Four Horsemen" of Cage Sport on William's Quintet.

Returned from their slightly disastrous excursion westward, the Husker basketball quintet will this week make preparations to stop Rollie Williams' Iowa team next Thursday night. The game will be played on the coliseum court, the first home fray of the year.

Williams began serious work for Nebraska with little comment on the stinging 39 to 26 defeat suffered on the Hawks by Pittsburgh

Christmas Card Sent Miss Miller From Y.W. in China

"Fortunately it is translated into English," said Miss Miller, university Y. W. C. A. secretary, as she surveyed with pride and admiration a dainty red and white Chinese Christmas card, which was sent from the university Y. W. C. A. in Shanghai, China.

The intricate red characters have been cut out and pasted on the card. Opposite the Chinese characters is the English translation, also cut out of red paper and placed on the card, wishing Nebraska Y. W. members a "Merry Christmas and a Good New Year."

University, Nebraska also went into heavy drills with one game behind them in which they took the short end of the final tally, losing to Wyoming 26 to 23. The only information elicited from Iowa's coach, Rollie Williams, was that he would most likely keep his starting lineup intact for the Huskers. This includes the "four horsemen" of basketball, four men who have played together for Iowa these past three years.

After winning from Northwestern, Iowa was rather upset by the strong Panther five, invading the Big Ten for the first time this year. With a wealth of experience and potentialities behind them, the Hawks were favored to come thru, and are still rated by the experts as the best of the Western conference has to offer. Pittsburgh's win, of course, placed the Panthers in the limelight of the maple sport spotlight.

The tilt with Iowa is the first Big Ten engagement of the year for the Huskers, with more coming on. Iowa will come seeking on the basketball floor what they have been unable to find in years of participation on the gridiron, a victory. In fact, their motive will be one of revenge for three consecutive one point defeats pinned on the Black and Old Gold by the unerring toes of Husker gridmen. A victory over Nebraska would compensate at least in part for the humiliations suffered on the football field.

At Nebraska, Coach Browne is working his men hard for the coming game. Two days of practice remain, and Tuesday will see most of the heavy work while Wednesday will be devoted to chalk talk and taping off exercises.

Harvey Widman, the junior guard from Mead, earned the right to a starting post because of his play against Wyoming last Friday night. "While it is a little early to pick a starting lineup for the Iowa game, I believe Harvey Widman's play against Wyoming merits him a place at guard along with Bud Parsons," Coach Browne stated.

The Husker hoop mentor also expressed satisfaction with the way his team recovered after their slow start against the Cowboys. "I was encouraged by the fact that the boys held the Cowboys to one field goal in 19 minutes of play in the last half. Wyoming got a field goal and a free throw in the last minute to win."

Browne also added that the referee at Laramie was not John Pickett, a former Nebraska athlete, but Dee Pickett, a regular Rocky Mountain Conference official, and that Bud Parsons was not ejected forcibly but was removed from the game on his own order. "I pulled Parsons, in the last two minutes of play when it appeared that his questioning of Pickett's decisions was only hurting our cause. Bud, as game captain, had a perfect right to talk to the official, but that wasn't what beat us. It was our first period showing, during which we chalked up only three field goals."

Lester McDonald, center, and end on the varsity grid squad, appeared for practice Monday afternoon for the first time since being stricken with illness at the start of the season. He worked at forward Monday with Widman and Sorenson sharing the center post in a long practice tussle with the frosh. Bud Parsons, George Wahlquist, and Leland Hale saw action at guard, with Henry Morris, Howard Baker, and Henry Whitaker at the forwards, along with McDonald.

Four soloists aided in the production. Two Chicago vocalists contributed. Mary Ann Kaufman took the soprano lead and Louise Harrison Slade the contralto. Parvin Witte of the university, tenor soloist of last year, also appeared in Sunday's production. Herman T. Decker, faculty member of the school of music, sang the baritone solos.

Closing with "The Hallelujah Chorus" the audience rose with the presentation of this finale and remained standing until the program closed.
