REGENTS WILL AGAIN AWARD SCHOLARSHIPS IN 250 HIGH SCHOOLS

Students to Be Selected on Basis of Qualifying Examinations.

Plans are being made to award 250 regents' scholarships to Nebraska students graduating in 1935 from accredited high schools in the state, the university extension division has announced. This number was first offered last year after the regents had awarded 150 in 1932 and 1933.

Seniors in accredited high schools take five qualifying examinations. These include English and algebra tests, and three others based on subjects studied in high school and planned for college. Students receiving the highest grades will be granted scholarships, though only one is given to a school. The extension division has not yet announced the dates of the tests, but awards will be made preceding high school graduation in the spring.

Winners of regents' scholarships after they enter the university rank in school work well above the average of the school as a whole, a survey made in the extension division shows. Of the upperclassmen now enrolled about sixty per cent ranked over 80 in grades. Nearly all of them stood above the general student average. About half the former scholarship holders had grades over 85, and only one was below 75 per cent.

Of the 338 students who have studied at the university on regents' scholarships since they were begun in 1932, 293 are still in school. Mathematics has proved to be the most popular major subject for these scholarship winners, the extension division survey shows. Ranking below it were pre-law, English and chemistry.

The college of arts and sciences has had 155 scholarship winners enter it. Second in popularity is teachers college with 67; while engineering had 47; business administration, 39; agriculture, 34; and pharmacy, 2.

More than half—166 out of 293—of these people have obtained work and are partially self-supporting while going to the university. In the survey 63 of them are shown to be working under the FERA; 20 are in restaurants; and the others work at various jobs as clerks, janitors, or for board and room.

200 High School Musicians Hear Sunday Concert

Student musicians from at least ten Nebraska high school bands will be in the audience for the winter concert of the university band Sunday afternoon. Letters to Chancellor E. A. Burnett's office indicate that these high school band members will number over 200. Groups are expected from Alvo, Beaver Crossing, Greenwood, Omaha Technical, Papillion, Prague, Roca, St. Paul, Seward, and Yutan. Seward plans to send a delegation of fifty; Beaver Crossing one of forty-five; and forty will be at the concert from Alvo.

Several thousand persons from Lincoln and the state will also be on hand to hear the annual performance set for 3 o'clock Sunday in the coliseum, those in charge of the affair have announced.

PLAYERS DRAMA OPENS FOR WEEK MONDAY, JAN. 14

'Yellow Jack' Cast of Fifty Dramatizes Fight With Yellow Fever.

'Yellow Jack.' Sidney Howard's brilliant drama of the fight against yellow fever, will open for a week's run at the Temple theater on Monday, Jan. 14 as the fourth production of the University Players during the current season.

The cast, composed of fifty characters is headed by Dwight Perkins, Armand Hunter, Henry Kosman, Harold Stumpton, Era Lown, and Jack Nicholas. There is no one outstanding role in the play, according to Harold 'Pete' Stumpton, director of the Players. Adela Tombrink will play the only feminine role in the entire show.

Four complete performances, using every one of the twenty-nine scenes and the elaborate revolving and moving track stages, have been rehearsed. Another dress rehearsal was held Saturday night, and one is planned for Sunday afternoon. "Rehearsals have been very smooth, and we expect a good performance on the opening night," Stumpton stated. The play, which was one of the leading candidates for the Pulitzer (Continued on Page 2.)

Mathews Shows How Science Has Solved Mystery

How a faint scratch on a bullet made by either the hammer or bore of the gun can pave the way to the detection and prosecution of seemingly ingenious criminals was explained by Dr. J. Howard Mathews, prominent criminologist, in his address to an open meeting of the Nebraska chapter of the American Medical Society, Friday evening in the Temple auditorium. Dr. Mathews, head of the chemistry department of the University of Wisconsin, has gained international fame for his work in scientific crime detection.

Accompanying the lecture, the renowned criminologist presented lantern slides showing the solution of several murder mysteries, many of which Dr. Mathews himself was instrumental in solving. Illustrations of several microscopic instruments used by Mr. Mathews were shown and their uses explained. Pictures of minute marks on test and fatal bullets which so often decide the fate of murder suspects were also among the slides.

Mr. Mathews expressed his belief that steps to make crime detection even more effective than at present may be expected in the near future. His explanations and illustrations were conceded by many to be more interesting than the best mystery stories of the day, and kept the large audience entertained throughout the entire lecture.

Dr. Mathews is making an extensive tour lecturing at schools and institutions throughout the middlewest.

The gathering of the society was its 159th meeting and was under the direction of Prof. H. A. Pregel of the chemistry department.

UNIVERSITY BAND TO OFFER WINTER CONCERT SUNDAY

Parvin Witte Heads Soloists At Presentation in Coliseum.

85 PLAYERS PERFORM

Director Quick Gives Varied Program; Legislators Honored Guests.

With a group of outstanding soloists assisting, the university band plays its winter concert this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the university coliseum. Heading the list of individual performers is Parvin Witte of the University school of music. Mr. Witte has sung in Lincoln many times, appearing for the tenor solo role in the recent presentation of "The Messiah." His numbers will be "Song of Songs" by Moya, and Toselli's "Serenade."

As trombone soloist for the afternoon, Richard Middlekauff of Lincoln will play "Pale Moon," famous composition of Frederic Knight Logan. The popular trumpet trio of last year also has a place on the program with the selection "Three Kings." Ernest Green, Concordia, Kansas, and Darwin Liggett, York, are again playing the trio this year, and Phil Kleppinger of Beatrice is the new member.

Director "Billy" Quick praises the 153-piece band of this year as the best he can remember, and he has held the baton here for 16 years. In order to get the musicians to fit on the coliseum stage, Director Quick has had to split the large group into two parts. Today's concert will be presented by 85 players who make up nearly perfect instrumentation and arrangement.

Quick Proud of Band. Nebraska's veteran bandman is proud indeed of his organization, and looking ahead 16 years ago, when he first became conductor at the university, he could hardly have foreseen such a group of musicians.

"It has grown every year," Director Quick says. "When I first came here in 1918, there were only 35 or 40 band members and they were never assembled."

"War times had made the university campus look like armed camps," the leader recalls. "The band was divided among the companies, and separated into the different camps. When a call for band rehearsal came, the officer would say 'Band musicians fall out' and those who didn't feel like playing didn't go to rehearsal."

C. E. MARSH LECTURES CHEMICAL ENGINEERS

Pipe Line Co. Superintendent Discusses Transmission High Pressure Gas.

"High Pressure Natural Gas Transmission" was the topic of the address which C. E. Marsh, superintendent of the Beatrice Station of the American National Pipe Line company, presented to the Chemical Engineering society recently.

Mr. Marsh's paper, which covered in a general way the entire natural gas transmission industry, began with a historical background of the transmission process. According to Mr. Marsh, the first pipe line constructed in America was the Syracuse, N. Y. plant, a wooden, 25-mile affair, which was erected at a cost of 2 million dollars. Mr. Marsh then traced the complete delivery process of the gas from production to consumer. His address stressed the problems of pipe line corrosion and compression machinery depreciation, and the numerous methods of combating them. It (Continued on Page 2.)

NEBRASKA TRIMS IOWA IN THRILLER

Cyclones' Victory String Broken as Huskers Take 32-31 Win in First Conference Tilt; Scarlet Overcomes Six Point Lead in Exciting Second Half.

WHITAKER LEADS SCORING WITH TOTAL OF 14

Parsons Matches Offensive Work of St. Joe Speedster With Great Defensive Game; Cowan of Ames Second High in Pay-Off Column.

By ARNOLD LEVINE. Nebraska put a great big bluish upon Iowa State's perfect basketball record of seven straight wins, gave 4,200 quick-booming fans the thrill of their lives, and came off with a victory in its first conference start of the current season—a 32 to 31 triumph over the Iowan's hitherto unconquered and rampant Cyclones in the coliseum Saturday night.

Over 4,000 fans, the largest crowd this season, and likewise the quickest on the boo gallery, watched the Huskers stage a second dazed and baffled by the showing of ball handling, expert shooting, and scintillating floor play that left Iowa State a point behind when Cowan swung a shot thru the hoop as the gun sounded.

All those traits of good basketball playing were essential to the Scarlet cause, however, for the end of the first half found them trailing by six points, and evidently dazed and baffled by the showing of their Cyclone foes. Harold W. Browne must have given his best talk of the past year in the rest period, and Lady Fortune must have smiled her brightest upon the waning Scarlet to inspire them to deeds that brought the house to its feet roaring time after time (when they were not busily engaged jeering the officials) as the Huskers made one brilliant shot after another to finally overcome the six point deficiency, forge ahead, and then uncoil a series of beautiful shots and cash in on free throws that gave them a winning margin.

Baker Makes Winning Shot. That winning margin, however, turned out to be just that of a gratis flip that Pete Baker dropped thru the hoop when one of the Iowa invaders was found guilty of doing something on which the rulebooks frown. In fact, when everyone was picking up his hat and coat and decided that this was one game (Continued on Page 4.)

The cast for "The Enchanted April," an English comedy, which will be presented by members of the Faculty Women's club and of the American Association of University Women at 8 o'clock on Jan. 22 and 23 in Temple Theater, was announced Saturday.

Karl M. Arndt, associate professor of economics, will play the leading role of the dreamy young artist, Thomas W. Briggs.

Mellersh Wilkins, The Mellersh Wilkins, Solicitor, will be portrayed by Mr. S. W. Alford, superintendent of the serum plant. Miss Frances McChesney, who while in college was outstanding in University Players work and is now dramatic coach at Lincoln high school, will give her characterization of Mrs. Rose Arbutnot, the neglected lonely wife of a writer of very popular historical romances.

The role of Mrs. Lottie Wilkins, the dutiful wife of Mellersh Wilkins, will be played by Mrs. Norman Hill, who was active in dramatic work at Oberland College in Ohio.

Proceeds from this production, to be directed by Harold "Pete" Stumpton, will go to the university Y. W. C. A. and the A. A. U. W. scholarship fund.

"The Enchanted April," was adapted from the novel of the same name by Kane Campbell, the author of "Elizabeth and Her German Garden." The scenes of this play, which was first dramatized in London, are a London club room and a castle on the Mediterranean in Italy.

Tickets for this play are available at Latsch Brothers and University Players office or from the girls selling in organized houses. All seats are reserved. Seats on the main floor and in the first two rows of the balcony are 75 cents and the rest of the balcony seats are 50 cents.

SPOTTED HYAENAS ON DISPLAY IN MUSEUM

Among the new groups in the university museum in Morrill hall is one of a pair of spotted hyaenas. They are from the collection of the late Adam Breede, who killed this pair in Africa. Their color is a light dirty brown with a darker shade of spots. Unlike other species of hyaenas these hunt in packs and are bold beasts. Their faces are leering and ugly with powerful jaws and large teeth.
