INDIANA ADDED TO NEBRASKA '36 AND '37 GRID ROSTERS

Agree to Two Year Contract With Both Games Played On Husker Turf.

IOWA SERIES DROPPED

McMillin Provides Big Ten Surprise of 1934 With Hoosier Eleven.

Indiana university will grace the Nebraska 1936 and 1937 football schedules, Athletic Director Dana X. Bible made known Wednesday. The Hoosiers are the most recent Big Ten team to be contracted with for grid contests and the second within two months. Chicago U. was placed on the dotted line by Husker representatives last December.

In signing the eastern school, Nebraska is taking another long step into Big Ten circles for non-conference games, continuing a slate which now includes Minnesota, Chicago and which up to the 1935 make-up listed Iowa.

Both of the games agreed to by Indiana and Nebraska will be played on the Memorial Stadium turf in Lincoln, with the possibility of a renewed contract calling for Scarlet gridsters taking the road east later.

Head Coach Bible of Nebraska expressed his satisfaction with the two-year contract. "It will bring a lot of good football to the home folks," he said, "and they certainly deserve it for the way they've been supporting us. I think that Indiana will be an A-1 team by the time we get around to them in 1936 and 1937, and those two games are certain to be great exhibitions of football."

While not ranking at the top of the Big Ten as do the other Western Conference foes signed by the Huskers—Chicago and Minnesota—Indiana is thought by the experts to be a test of Nebraska grid strength, or will be when 1936 rolls around.

Measles Spreading Over Entire Campus; 50 Cases Reported

The present epidemic of measles is spreading rapidly, about fifty cases being reported to Dr. Rufus A. Lyman, dean of the College of Pharmacy, with the probability of many cases not being reported. Dr. Lyman says that we are probably in for an epidemic of German measles since there hasn't been one for several years. Whenever possible, students who have measles are urged to go home so as to leave room in the infirmary for those who live too far away to go home.

At present there has been reported only one case of mumps, but Dr. Lyman says that it is possible that there may be an epidemic of mumps, as mumps and measles usually go together.

One student, whose father is an undertaker in David City, was taken home in his father's ambulance.

Bessey Hall Herbarium Curator Has In His Book Collection Rare Copy of Lineus British Museum Doesn't Own

It's not often that a Nebraskan and his possessions attract the attention of the British museum. However, Dr. Thomas J. Fitzpatrick, assistant professor of botany, and curator of the herbarium in Bessey hall, modestly states that he is a little proud to own a collection of the works of Lineus, "Father of Botany," which collection is considered the best in the United States. Dr. Fitzpatrick owns one volume that even the British museum doesn't possess, and they pride themselves on having nearly everything Lineus issued.

About 300 volumes of binomial nomenclature references, which form the foundation of the present system of botany, are dated from Lineus, who was a noted professor of botany at the University of Upsala, in Sweden, for thirty years during the sixteenth century.

When asked when and how he did his book collecting Dr. Fitzpatrick replies, "It has been my hobby ever since I was a boy; I've written people abroad, traveled in the United States, and have had four libraries given me." He also states, "It has been a detriment as well as a pleasure," which is understandable when we learn that he owns half of the books in the library of Bessey hall, and this probably means more than anyone

INTERFRATERNITY BALL HIGHLIGHTS FORMAL AFFAIRS

Committee Plans to Make Greek Party Crowning Event of Season.

MORRIS PROVIDES MUSIC

Colored Copies of Frat Pins Add to Attractiveness Of Decorations.

Finishing touches are being put on the annual Interfraternity ball, which will be presented to the campus Saturday evening from 9 until 12 o'clock in the coliseum, in order to make it the crowning social event of the mid-year social season, according to the committee in charge. Tickets were distributed to the interfraternity council members at their meeting Tuesday evening, and Robert Smith in charge of the duca reports that the advance sales are progressing nicely.

Having been featured at the popular Playmore ballroom in Kansas City for five months, George Morris and his orchestra will fly to Lincoln for this special one-night engagement. They are also planning to fly back and thus be able to play at the large K. C. ballroom Sunday afternoon. Featured with the band are Alene O'Day and Jimmy Atkins.

The ball committee guarantees that George Morris and his music will prove more than satisfactory since they made a special journey to the Missouri city last week and heard him personally. The members feel fortunate that they were able to secure such a nationally known orchestra at the late date.

The Playmore being of the same size as the coliseum, the band expects to make their music easily adaptable to the strange floor.

FORMER INSTRUCTOR HAS ARTICLE PRINTED

'Rainmakers on the Plains' Discusses the Pioneer Weather Ideas.

Walter Kollmorgen, formerly assistant in the Department of Geography and at present in the Conservation and Survey division, is the author of an article in the Scientific Monthly entitled, "Rainmakers on the Plains."

The article reviews some of the popular misconceptions concerning rainfall during the pioneer days. The alleged increase in rainfall was greatly publicized by western railroads and real estate interests. Settlers arrived in unprecedented numbers and confidently began farming on the semi-arid plains with methods common to the more humid sections of the country. Naturally, a surprise defeat was in store for these frontier people. Rainfall did not increase but merely fluctuated within rather broad limits.

Non-scientific literature on the proposed shelter bill shows that the misconception about increasing rainfall on the plains is not a thing of the past. Many people justify the project on the assumed fact that it will increase precipitation. No scientific data can be invoked to substantiate this belief.

EARLY REPORTS SHOW INCREASE IN ENROLLMENT

Registration for Semester Exceeds Last Year's Figure by 611.

5,400 TOTAL HOPED FOR

Graduate, Medical College Results Expected to Swell Returns.

Although registration for the current semester is still incomplete, university officials indicated Wednesday morning that there are now 611 more students registered in the university than on the same date last year, when there was a total enrollment of 4,975 students. At the close of Tuesday, there were 4,517 students registered as compared with the 3,906 of a year ago.

Registration will probably be increased by some 400 graduate students who have until Feb. 16 to complete their registration. In addition to those students who have already completed their registration, there will also be added some 330 medical college students and 90 to 100 students in the school of nursing, as well as a considerable number of stragglers, who must pay a $3.00 fee for late registration.

It is hoped that when registration is complete, a total of 5,400 will be reached. The current figures show but little decrease from the first semester. A slight decrease is normally expected due to midyear graduation, student scholarship, and student finances.

Due to the fact that the date of registration closing is much later in the graduate college and at the medical and nursing schools in Omaha, complete figures will not be available for some time, it was revealed by the registrar's office.

Charity Dependents Show Gratitude to Commission Groups

Their role as Santa Claus in commission groups are still receiving the joy that the traditional bewhiskered gentleman must experience as he gazes down on the smiling world after his annual journey. Letters of gratitude are pouring into the Y. W. office. Commission group members feel well repaid for the hours of mending and searching, for the spending and carrying and inevitable phoning, as the letters of thanks appear.

The work began long before Christmas when each group adopted a family, providing it with a box of Christmas food and clothing. The members of the groups furnished the contents of the boxes, fixed up the clothing, and packed the boxes which contained (Continued on Page 4.)

A sports editor will be chosen in the near future. Those interested in sports writing are urged to come to the office of the paper immediately to try out for the position. Several assistant writers will also be needed in this department. The society editor chosen this week will need several workers for the publication of her column.

Each reporter who is chosen will be allotted a certain number of buildings, offices and campus organizations to cover each day for possible stories. These beats are the sources of most campus news and it is the desire of the managing editors to insure complete coverage this semester.
