JORGENSEN REVEALS RESEARCH LABORS ON COSMIC RAYS FRIDAY

Speaker at Physics Meeting Reviews History of Phenomena.

Donald L. Jorgensen, graduate physics major, will demonstrate his own Geiger counter or cosmic ray measuring device in the course of his talk on this type of ray phenomenon at the meeting of the physics club Friday evening Feb. 22, in Brace laboratory...

Opening his address by reviewing the history of cosmic rays, the speaker will discuss several of the early experiments carried on by the pioneers in this field of research. In his canvass of the scant body of knowledge that physicists have been able to build up concerning this mysterious phenomenon, Mr. Jorgensen plans to explain the part that the recent ventures into the stratosphere have played in the discovery that the intensity of cosmic rays is magnified with increase in altitude...

Mr. Jorgensen's set-up of the Geiger counter includes a complex arrangement of vacuumized glass tubes containing a special gas and an appropriate driver. Using a current of 3,500 volts, the gas will be charged. The cosmic rays pierce the gas at about one and a half second intervals and at the same time allow some of the current to follow them thru and click on a sander. The clicks are amplified by a loud speaker and will be easily heard by the listeners, Jorgensen explained. The only conception thus obtained of the size of these rays is the number that pass thru a given minute opening of known area in a certain length of time.

Stating that knowledge of cosmic rays is in its infancy, Mr. Jorgensen explained he will try to give a complete summary of all finds up to the present. Bruce Hentz, physics club president, announced that a majority of the students and townpeople who enjoyed the last eclipse program of the club are expected to return...

Lawyers' Practice Case Goes to Jury For Final Decision

Attorneys in the case of Racer vs. Farmer, being tried in the court room of the Law building, will conclude their final arguments as the question goes to the jury at 2 o'clock, Thursday afternoon. Presiding judge, Charles E. Nutting, will give the jurors final instructions before they meet to make their decision. Counsel in the case are Wade and Adams, for the plaintiff, and Comstock and Day for the defendant. Attorneys for both sides declined to make any statement concerning the possible result of the case before the jury has reached a verdict.

The primary issues of the case as it goes before the jury will concern the questions: One, whether the defendant was guilty of trespassing, two, whether negligence was a proximate cause of the result, and three, of the damages that should be considered. An appeal for a direct verdict was overruled Wednesday afternoon, the court ruling that the question of absolute liability was to have no bearing in the decision of the jury.

CLASS MEETING WILL BE HELD IN SOCIAL SCIENCE

Ramsley, Alumni Secretary, Will Map Organization Plans for Seniors.

Responding to the lead taken by the Student Council, senior class leaders Thursday outlined plans for the mass meeting of all senior class members, to be held on Wednesday, Feb. 27. Due to the added interest taken in the Council's move, the meeting place has been changed from the Council rooms to Social Science auditorium to accommodate a larger crowd.

Ray Ramsley, secretary of the university alumni association, has been secured to outline his plan for senior class organization and to make suggestions concerning other plans presented. "We have only two senior class meetings each year," Ramsley declared, "one is freshman convocation and the other senior commencement. Graduates associate themselves with their class more than ever after they are out of school, and any move to make them 'class conscious' while they are still in school will make their alumni a more compact body."

Lee Young, chairman of the council committee, urged all members to attend the meeting. "Every member present who wishes may offer suggestions in the meeting," Young stated, "which will take up plans for organizing the senior class as a unit rather than so many individuals."

Action followed the motion of Young to organize the senior class and grant powers to the senior class president to weld the class together. The committee appointed by Council president Jack Fischer planned the meeting.

Since Exams Thing of Past, Thought Of Campus Intelligentsia Turns to Politeness, Humor, Jazz, and the Like

BY LORAIN CAMPBELL.

Now that the period of first semester examinations has become, for the most part, a vague nightmare several questions might be asked the student body at large: Are women sufficiently polite?—Are ball sessions becoming more elevated?—Are we still a jazz generation?—Is there any humor on the campus?

Informal interviews obtained among the various campus rendezvous indicate the following conclusions:

Women are not sufficiently courteous. Back in the university days when men were the stronger sex, a great deal more courtesy was shown than in our modern era. One coed was seen sipping a fellow's chocolate coke in a "hangout" without his permission; another closed the door of a "Sosh" in the face of a scholar whose face was hidden behind several handfuls of books.

These are just a few of the examples of rudeness reported in

Dr. Walton Author Of Unique Text For Psychology Course

Dr. Walton of the psychology department is the author of a unique text for the course in business psychology this semester. Noticing over a period of four or five years that students vary greatly in the efficiency with which they take notes, and that the illustration of a point is noted with interest, but the point itself lost, Dr. Walton has prepared a notebook which he hopes will cover this deficiency. It consists of a "detailed outline of the instructor's lectures with complete references from which lectures were taken, and an appendix which contains lists of topics and instructions for term papers."

CAMPUS Y.M.C.A. NAMES OFFICERS FOR NEW PERIOD

Grant McClellan Chosen Head of Election Committee.

As a result of the Y. M. C. A. officer turnover determined by a formal student vote held Wednesday, Feb. 20, in the Temple building, Grant McClellan, Edgar, became president of the city campus Y; Dan Williams, Lincoln, was elected vice president; and Beryl Schuck, Edgar, was named secretary. The election in reality amounted to an acceptance of the nominee slate submitted by the nominating committee comprised of members of the faculty, Prof. J. P. Senning, and the senior members of the cabinet: Joseph Nuquist, Burton Marvin, and Morton Spence.

The inaugural service at which the officer-elects will be sworn in will be held within a week, according to Charles Hulac, retiring president. Hulac also stated that the men who will take over their regular duties at that time are well qualified for their jobs. Grant McClellan, who is an arts and science junior, worked last semester as chairman of the peace action committee. Last summer after his attendance at the Estes Park conference, he did social service work in New York City.

Dan Williams, also an arts and science junior, devoted his efforts during last semester to working with conscientious objectors on the compulsory feature of military training at the university. Mr. Williams, likewise attended the Estes conference last June. The newly elected secretary, Beryl Schuck, a freshman, was appointed to that position last semester to fill a vacancy. He will resume his duties.

Besides Hulac, the other retiring officer is Joseph Nuquist, who served as vice president last semester. Charles Hulac will act as assistant secretary to Mr. C. D. Hayes, general university secretary, during the coming term. Mr. Hayes expects to spend about six weeks of this time doing field work throughout the state.

Margaret Inskip is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements. Working with her are: Lorraine Hitchcock, Charles Hulac, Gladys Klopp, Ward Bawder and Caroline Kyle. Miss Fedde, Mr. Rosenquist, and Miss Miller are acting as supervisors to the committee.

University Rules Prove Obnoxious to Scurrying Students

University rules proved not only a nuisance, but a small tragedy in the case of George Young, 6934 Colby st.

Young pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving, but explained to Municipal Judge John L. Polk Thursday morning that the reason for his haste involved compliance of university rules by his young lady companion. Young said he had two minutes to escort his lady to the door of her sorority house before closing time. Officers, however, interrupted the dash and Young was fined $1 and costs and ordered not to drive a car until after the close of school, June 1.

After a great deal of trouble, which only convinced her that she should have married him in the first place, she finally finds him again, and they live happily.

Tragedy in Play.

But of course there must be some tragedy, and there is, for "Peter Walmsley," portrayed by Harold Sumption, is in love with Miss Perrycooste, who married Mr. Houston, and her love affair and marriage leaves him all broken up. Miss Portia Boynton, playing the part of "Florence," is housekeeper for the old Engle family.

Members of the cast portraying the play have all appeared in former University players productions this year. Miss Carpenter had one of the leading parts in "Hannah" as well as in "The Shining Hour." Miss Boynton was a member of the cast of "Her Master's Voice," and Mr. Perkins last appeared in several of the year's productions. Mr. Sumption, of the dramatic department, is one of the university players' directors. He made his first appearance before the university audience as "Peter Grimm" in "The Return of Peter Grimm."

PERKINS, MARGARET CARPENTER LEAD IN UNI. PLAYERS DRAMA

'There's Always Juliet' to Open at Temple Theater Week of Feb. 25.

With Margaret Carpenter, Dwight Perkins, Portia Boynton, and Harold Sumption in the cast, "There's Always Juliet" will start a week's run at the Temple theater Feb. 25. The play, written by John Vandrunen, is an English comedy with few characters but many laughs, according to those in charge.

Action of the story results from the meeting of "Dwight Houston," a young American architect, taken by Dwight Perkins, and "Leonora Perrycooste," taken by Margaret Carpenter, at a cocktail party. They fall in love, of course, and everything would be all right only Miss Perrycooste, who comes from a very aristocratic family, doesn't feel that she can afford to marry anyone of such little consequence in society. But Mr. Houston leaves with a broken heart, and immediately after, just to prove that she's a woman, Miss Perrycooste changes her mind and decides she'll marry him after all.

After a great deal of trouble, which only convinced her that she should have married him in the first place, she finally finds him again, and they live happily.
