Huey Long, Bad Boy American Politics, Next U. S. President?

His Influence Feared to Be More Significant Than People Realize.

Who's Huey in America?—is a question that this country's press and public tries to get to the bottom of daily. His numerous titles answer the question: America's Public Demagogue No. 1, Kingfish, Little Father of Louisiana, Our Future Dictator, Nemesis of Nuisance, Potential Persuasion, God of the Gullible, and Head Clown of the foremost Share the Wealth program in the U. S. That Huey Long is really an important figure is demonstrated by the fact that a U. S. senator, traveling thru two-thirds of the country, quotes this question as the one most heard on the lips of the people, "Do you think Huey Long will be the next president of the United States?"

Huey the Third? Speakers at Nebraska's Founders day convention voiced the opinion that the presidential candidates for 1936 would include a representative of the two major parties and one of the dictator type. One of the speakers stated

SMITH DISCUSSES ART AT SUNDAY GATHERING

Speech Is First in Series for Forty-Fifth Annual Exhibit.

Stating that art is set apart from life only by the quality of imagination and that emotion is the companion of imagination, Prof. Linus Burr Smith, chairman of the architectural department, told a gathering at Morrill hall Sunday that both go together to make possible the experience of reality. The address, first in a series of four, was sponsored by the Nebraska Art association in connection with their forty-fifth annual exhibition.

"To enjoy art one must turn to an examination of its products and leave to the philosopher the task of conceiving a system of aesthetics," Professor Smith said. "The complete absence of pretty subjects has led some to believe that artists are now selecting ugly ones."

"A group exists which feels that a picture should be sociologically significant, but the portrayal of the American scene is deeper than pictures of dilapidated and ugly American houses," he related.

Prevention of War Council Grows Despite Limitations

Libby Acquaints Nebraskans With Organization in March 7 Address.

Thirteen years ago a little acorn was planted, an acorn which was to grow into an oak. It has been nurtured carefully but has not yet reached the great heights which can be attained only with time and diligent care.

It is significant, however, that the little oak, in reality the National Council for Prevention of War, is growing despite the badly overbalanced influence of the military organizations backed by war and navy departments and the activities of munition makers. Not only is it growing, but it is actually making its name well known and becoming a sturdy and promising organization.

Although not new to a great many Nebraska students, the council is to become better known and more a center of interest when Frederick J. Libby, who is its executive secretary since its organization Oct. 20, 1921, speaks here Thursday noon at a World Forum luncheon at the Grand hotel

S. R. M'KELVIE TO ADDRESS LIBERTY LEAGUE TUESDAY

New Campus Club Organizers Schedule Meeting in Social Science.

Hoping to encourage further interest in the movement, university organizers of the newly formed American Liberty league urge everyone to convene in Social Science auditorium Tuesday evening at 7:30. Sam McKelvie, ex-governor of Nebraska and interested in the league's development, has been secured to address those present, according to Henry Kosman, one of the leaders of the movement. In addition, Professors E. F. Schramm, N. L. Hill, Karl Arndt, and Lawrence Vold will aid in the direction of the meeting.

Due to the fact that the group is still in its early stages of organization, no officers have been elected, but Charles Steadman and John Landis are Kosman's co-workers. They are attempting to give the league a permanent place in campus activities, adding to the rapidly growing foothold it has obtained in many of the major universities of the country. Developed by outstanding figures like J. M. Shouse, Alfred P. Sloan and Alfred Smith, the six month's old organization has met with popular approval everywhere, it was stated.

In its essence, the platform of the Liberty League outlines its intentions of preserving American institutions. It maintains that everyone should have equal opportunities and that taxes should be levied only by congress and not by administrative officials. It advocates an increased economy in government and more and greater attempts to further the restoration of employment, industry and commerce to its former high level. In this respect it is opposed to all unnecessary governmental interference, and governmental competition with legitimate industry.
