IT'S PRETTY SELDOM THAT NEbraska gets a world premier and still more seldom that university students have a chance to see a play by a famous author from their own alma mater. Yesterday evening, at the Temple, Fred Ballard's new play, "My Lucky Star," opened for the first time to play to Cornhusker audiences. The locale of the play is a small Nebraska town, and the cast Nebraska people. In fact, the whole thing is of interest to people of the state. We might add that Fred Ballard is a graduate of the class of 1905 and a member of that good old frat, Kappa Sigma. There's a picture of him over in the Temple, for any gals with literary leanings and artistic inclinations. The room, we think, is the University Department of Speech office, and it's open any time.

a compliment that Berry, being a Yankee compares the Bohemians to his own race, and Lockhart, the Scotch author of British Agent, writes in the sequel, Retreat from Glory, "Like the Scot, the Czech is thrifty, hard-working, and ambitious. He is hospitable when occasion demands, but wastes no money on entertainment for the joy of entertaining. Trained by years to suppression to conceal his feelings, to laugh when he wants to cry and to cry when he is really laughing he is difficult to fathom."
"The two important Czech provinces of Moravia and Batavia," says Professor Vraz, "have an illiteracy record of less than 1-2 of one percent, and there are 16,000 libraries in this population of 13,000,000."

Lockhart writes again in his book of the Bohemian, "Once one has plumbed his depth, one finds sterling qualities of grit and courage. He has a fine physique, is one of the best gymnasts in the world, and has a passionate love for the hills and streams of his country. Beneath his practical exterior, he has a soul for poetry. His love and understanding of music are inborn, and it is a sore point with the Austrians, that both Mozart and Wagner found Prague infinitely more receptive to their genius than Vienna."
"His worst fault is scarcely of his own making. Circumstances have made him a provincial."
"The Czechs at any rate, have made good their claims to independence. At a time when Central Europe was a kind of witches' cauldron bubbling over with corruption, debauchery, dishonesty, and decadence, they furnished the one justification of a nation's vitality. They produced the men—and I write without exaggeration—the exceptional men whom the moment demanded. At a time when a whole world was crumbling around them, they were not afraid to build. They may not have built perfectly. But I feel sure that they have built solidly."

Businessman Flays Nebraska Whisker Battle as Sales Hit

Factories idle, people out of work, rent unpaid, sales dropped off 60 percent, all this is bemoaned by a Daily Nebraskan advertiser as a result of the beard-contest being sponsored by the campus paper in conjunction with the Stuart theater, which is putting up $15 in cash prizes.

In a letter to the business manager, the owner of this establishment complains that his sales on razor blades has decreased over half of their former volume all because campus "cakes," and otherwise, have put away their beard hack saws until March 30 when they will appear before the judging board with their growth of hair, fuzz, or what have you.

In compensation for the loss of business on razor blades, the advertiser pleads that the paper announce his complete stock of hair tonic. This tonic is guaranteed, he declares, if rubbed on the whiskers three times daily, to make a Rasputin out of a lily in less than two weeks or by the end of the contest.

According to an announcement made Monday by the sponsors of this beard battle of the century, a pass to the Stuart theater will be given everyone who stays in the contest, besides the winners of the cash awards. There is still time to enter at the Daily Nebraskan office.

CENTER POSITION A WORRY TO COACH VEENKER OF I.S.C.

AMES, Ia., March 18.—Faced with the prospect of having no experienced man to fill the center post on his 1935 Iowa State football team, Coach George Veenker already has begun the search for a center.

In an attempt to develop a capable man for this position, he has had four candidates working out all winter quarter. Three freshmen, Albert Sharkey, Gary, Ind.; Vaughn Rogers, Fort Dodge, and Durwood Hansen, Sioux City, and Burdette Hanna, Marion, a reserve from last year's team have been working out under the direction of Assistant Coach Joe Truskowski.

The regular varsity spring drill will not begin until March 26. Coach Veenker expects 80 men to report for spring practice.

'PAGING THE SMART COED'

Forward March! Yes, it's high time we were all treading the measure of smartness in new spring shoes. And so, let's get serious about it, and show March that we've decided on our shoe wardrobe while she was making up her mind whether to be winter or spring.

Of course, we all know that navy blue is to spring what white is to summer. Choose a pump in pavy kidskin, trimmed in white kidskin, or a perforated design with a tiny buckle for trimming, to wear with the new bright prints. With this shade you might wear beige hose with a bluish cast. If you are partial to navy hose, be sure they are sheer. You see it's important that hose be sheer this season because eyes are on ankles—and that's authentic! And by the way, did you know that the stocking business was founded on love? Yes, way back in 1589, the Rev. Lee invented the first stocking machine because his fiancée was so busy knitting her winter hose that she had no time to be with him. Today, 3,000 silkworms die at a clip to make 1 dozen pairs of silk stockings.

However, we're trying right now to keep pace with shoes, and for the moment hose must fade into the background.

For campus wear, nothing could be more different and new, than the "peasant shoe." It's a 1933 version of the ghillie, only the tongue goes up instead of down, and so hugs the instep. These come in brown and white calf skin. The new reddish beige stockings go best with brown and suntan are as good as ever with white.

Other highlights are: An open work oxford of a neutral sort of beige suede, with beige lizard or brown calfskin trim. Here is your chance to wear those dusty beige hose, close to the color of sand. A summery oxford of natural linen, with toe trimming and heel of danish brown calfskin would be just right to wear under a suit and over the downtown pavement right now. A stocking in the same neutral linen color would be most becoming, not a pinkish flesh tone.

To wear to spring parties, a very simple, classic opera pump of white buckskin with a cutout design on the toe, would give most any dress an advance note. These shoes are lovely worn with some new, very sheer stockings that are a creamy pink sunburn color.

As a summary to help you keep in step with the modern tempo, remember these points: White buckskin, blue and white linen, brown and white calfskin, kidskin in all colors, perforations, and dull finishes.

Fashionably yours,
ALICE MAE.

It will be "Hell on Earth" at the Lafayette college (Easton, Pa.) junior prom. At least, that's the scene the decorations will depict.
