A Little Cooperation.

STUDENT leaders of Big Six schools may take up the annual conventions idea if plans promulgated by the Nebraska Student Council are carried out.

Such a project was started two years ago, but after one successful meeting, nothing more was heard of the idea.

Included in the list of general topics for discussion as outlined by the Nebraska Council in its letters to the other schools are such items as class organization, book exchanges, general relations with the faculty, chaperons, and general student governmental activities.

Every one of these topics is of pressing interest to the Nebraska campus. Class organization, at least by the graduating group, has at last been acted upon here.

There must be, however, provisions made for a more permanent system of organization for the graduating class. Under the present setup the desired unity can be had only by the use of such impromptu methods as are being employed this year.

The used book situation has long been a sore spot on the campus. Nebraskans hate to see the end of the semester roll around because of the headache that ensues when one tries to figure out the discrepancies between selling price and purchase price of texts.

an attempt to correct the abuses, but as yet nothing really effective has been found.

Student relations with the faculty is a problem that is assuming greater proportions every year. It is admitted that a closer bond should be formed between the student and the instructor in order for the student to gain the greatest amount from his four years in the educational plant.

But on one hand, it is hard for faculty members to come down from their characteristically aloof position. On the other, it is equally hard for the student to overcome the feeling of "apple polishing" when he attempts to form a closer relationship with his instructor.

The question of chaperonage has also been a sore spot for the campus. For years the Student Council, the Daily Nebraskan, and other student groups have carried on campaigns to find a remedy.

Several little things that are constantly acting as thorns in the side of the campus may be included under the head of general student governmental activities. The Student Council itself, and its system of representation, presents a problem.

These problems and others must have confronted Nebraska's sister schools in the Big Six. In some cases the answers may have been reached.

The worth of student council conventions has been shown by the success of the annual conclaves held on a national scale. It is to be hoped that student leaders at Iowa State, Kansas State college, Kansas University, Missouri, and Oklahoma will see their way clear to participating in a general round up this spring.

We Meet South Dakota.

VARSITY debaters tonight will run up against a strong team from South Dakota. Each year since the revival of interest in forensic activities on the campus, one debate has been especially scheduled with the aim of attracting campus wide attention.

Debating the timely "international shipment of munitions" question the Huskers will find Nebraska's neighbors from the north worthy opponents. Both teams have carried off their share of honors during the year.

In view of the turbulent conditions in Europe the question for argument should be of extraordinary interest. Students will find it time well spent to attend the affair tonight.

APPLICATIONS FOR WOMEN'S AWARD DUE BY THURSDAY

Ceres Club Offers Second Scholarship to Agriculture College Girls.

Applications for the second annual senior woman's scholarship of $25 being offered by the Ceres club of the college of agriculture must be turned in by Thursday, March 21, to Mrs. M. H. Swenk, 1410 No. 37th, who is head of the committee of the society in charge of the award.

"This scholarship is being granted in recognition of meritorious efforts in school life as well as for scholastic attainment," commented Mrs. Swenk, "but, of course, grades will weigh most heavily in the committee's selection which will be announced at the honors convocation on April 16th."

Any girl who is registered in the college of agriculture of the university and who will have 90 or more hours of credit at the close of the second semester of the school year 1934-35 of which at least one-third has been earned while registered in the home economics course, and whose grades at the middle of the junior year show an average of 80 percent or higher, and who is wholly or partially self-supporting is eligible to become a candidate to this scholarship.

Applicants are requested to call at the home of Mrs. Frank Swenk between the hours of 2 and 4 p. m. on Tuesday or Wednesday, March 26 or 27 for a brief personal interview with scholarship committee. At this time each applicant must present her university credit book for examination by the committee. Other members of this board are Mrs. Paul Stewart and Mrs. H. Clyde Filley.

Having organized mainly as a social group, the Ceres club is composed of the wives of the professors and instructors on the ag campus, the ag women instructors and the home economics teachers. Meetings are held on the first Saturday of each month. Mrs. W. W. Burr is president of the society.

Fraternities at the University of Michigan (Ann Arbor) have been asked to save one job in their kitchens or dining rooms for an athlete.

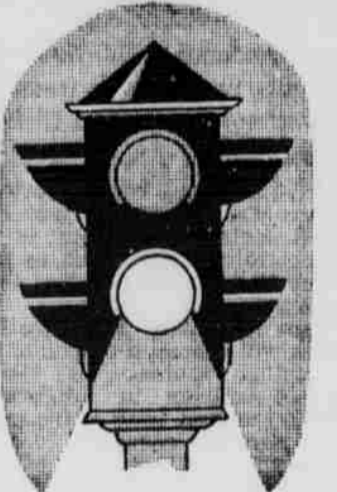

JAY B. NASH SPEAKS TO PHYS. ED. GROUPS

New York Director Talks At Meeting During Short Visit.

Mr. Jay B. Nash, director of physical education at New York university, spoke before several physical education gatherings Tuesday during his short visit in Lincoln. He addressed a group of physical education majors at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning in Grand Memorial hall.

Mr. Nash is the author of several books on physical education, and is a pioneer worker of the recreation movement in the United States. He is also a national authority on Indian affairs, having served on a special commission as consultant for President Roosevelt during the past year.

Faculty Sees No Immediate War Threat in Hitler Action

more step in the direction of ultimate war seems unquestionable," Prof. Hill continued. "At the present time the nations are intent upon economic programs, they are without financial credit, and the memory of the last war lingers. The successful treatment of the Austrian crisis last summer, of the issues involved in the assassination of the King of Yugoslavia, and of the Saar Plebiscite all show that European nations are anxious to avoid war."

Dr. W. H. Werkmeister, assistant professor of philosophy who has recently visited Germany and is vitally interested in Hitler and his regime, corroborates Mr. Hill's opinion that the powers do not want war. Dr. Werkmeister further substantiates this conclusion by stating that he believes that peace negotiations between England and continent powers will be resumed next Sunday when Sir John Simon, English minister of foreign affairs, and Captain Eden, British disarmament expert, carry their peace plans to Berlin for a palaver with the Reichsfuehrer.

"Peace negotiations need not be disrupted by the reinstatement of compulsory military training in Germany," Werkmeister said, "because other countries have been increasing war budgets and talking of peace for years. Why shouldn't Germany?"

The history of disarmament shows that real problems were always evaded and that there was little sincerity in the matter on the part of the armed nations. Werkmeister continued. The world knew that Germany had been rearming and on several occasions British and French statesmen have declared that it would help matters considerably if Germany would come out in the open, he stated. Besides the beneficial effect of Hitler's move to be above board, Prof. Werkmeister finds that since Germany has seen to her own equality among her neighbors or will now do so, her cause for leaving the League of Nations will be removed and the road to her rearmament will be clear.

what of a grand scale public works drive and that little financial credit will be necessary. Somewhat in opposition to this view, Dr. G. W. Gray of the history department, says, "I believe that the Germans are foolish for increasing their armaments because of their financial status."

Other of Mr. Gray's statements serve well to summarize the thoughtful reaction to the headline blare of last Sunday. He states, "The actions of France, Japan, Italy, England, and even the United States in the last ten years have furnished Germany with plenty of precedence for rearming. While this action may motivate a newspaper sensation for several weeks, it will probably not alter to any great extent the condition that existed previously."

zations at which new members have been announced. Sigma Xi, formed for the purpose of fostering and recognizing marked ability in undergraduate and graduate students for independent investigation of scientific subjects, was founded in 1886 at Cornell university. The local chapter was established in 1887. There are two classes of membership, active and associate; the former is restricted to members of institution staffs and the latter open to graduate and undergraduate students.

Officers in Sigma Xi for the past year have been Prof. D. A. Worcester, president; Dr. W. A. Willard, vice president; and Prof. Emma N. Anderson, secretary.

Phi Beta Kappa was founded at William and Mary college in 1776. It is the oldest Greek letter organization in America. In 1896 the Nebraska chapter was founded. Membership in the society represents the best scholars of the graduating classes, and persons distinguished in letters, science or education. It is limited to those in the college of arts and sciences, and certain other students who have met liberal arts requirements. Alumni, and others not attached to the school as honorary members are also eligible for membership.

Officers for the past year have been Prof. J. P. Bullford, president; Prof. Ruth Odell, vice president; Prof. Matilda Peters, treasurer; Prof. Clifford Hicks, secretary, and Mrs. A. W. Williams, historian.

Since 1915 local chapters of the two organizations have held at least one general meeting for the public at which some outstanding scholar has been heard. The meeting April 2 will be such a meeting.
