Spring Has Really Come, Despite All Weather Hazards

We heard no meadow larks, saw no tulips, saw nothing in fact, but dust and a coppery sky, and still yesterday officially ushered in the spring season.

Thursday was the Vernal Equinox. (Spring to you.) The sun was directly over the equator, and day and night were equal all over the world. Which didn't get us too excited, as we still had math to do. Also, they tell us in the Former Museum, where students spend hours and hours drawing pictures of the sun over the equator, and the equator under the sun, etcetera, etcetera, and etcetera, that from now on the sun starts moving northward, so we ought to be seeing it sooner or later, if the dust clears away sufficiently.

The Vernal Equinox is also supposed to bring storms, for reasons known only to those who teach the subject, as we have asked several students. This makes it a very (Continued on Page 4).

Preceding the serenade, which will begin at 10:30, Kosmet Klub members will visit each fraternity and sorority house to make announcements at dinner time.

Accompanied by the Musical Skippers orchestra, one of the songs introduced in the serenade will be "The History of Our Love," which will be sung by Fred Graham and Pete Baker, who play opposite each other as Captain Cook and Joanna in the show. "Midsummer Night's Dream," by Marjorie Souder, will be presented by Duncan Sewles.

Rehearsals Progress. Branches of the production committees for the new show all report that arrangements are reaching completion, and directors of the play indicate that rehearsals are progressing rapidly. "While measles and exams bothered us during the first weeks of practice, the cast is now reaching top shape and will be ready for the curtain call a week from Tuesday night," declared Joe Iverson, director of the cast. Dr. Ralph Ireland, who is instructing the choruses in the new show, reports that all four routines have been completed by both the pony and male choruses, and that rehearsals with the orchestra will begin soon.

Ticket Sales High. Preliminary ticket sales by Kosmet Klub workers have been high in organized houses on the campus and in the downtown business district. Reservations may be made beginning March 28 at the ticket booths in Latsch Brothers or the Temple theater. The curtain will rise at 7:30 at the Temple for five days beginning April 2.

NEW BLUE PRINT ISSUE TO APPEAR ON CAMPUS SOON

Publication Date Postponed Because of Delay in Printing.

Because of a delay in printing, the architectural edition of the Nebraska Blue Print will not be issued today as previously announced, according to reports from the architectural department, editors this month of the engineering student publication. The Blue Print will probably appear Saturday or the following Monday, Prof. L. B. Smith, head of the department, stated.

Articles appearing in the issue are "Concerning Architecture" by Professor Smith; "Reims Cathedral" by Paul Rader; "Student Opinions" by Kenneth Clark, and "A Center of Good Architecture" by Prof. Norman E. Hansen of the architectural department.

Smith writes in "Concerning Architecture" stresses important phases of the subject and also relates its history and development. "Reims Cathedral" by Rader and "Student Opinions" by Clark are student articles. Rader describes the features and relates the history of the cathedral with excerpts taken from his English term paper. Clark presents viewpoints of students relative to modern housing and also present day building materials.

Giving many examples of architecture in the city, Professor Hansen in "A Center of Good Architecture" writes that Lincoln is a rather distinct center of architecture. Altho Lincoln is probably not generally known as such, he points out, various exhibits of art tend to give it this place.

The Dean's Corner, by Dean O. J. Ferguson of the engineering college, is dedicated to architecture, and presents an article on the responsibility of engineers and architects to civilization.

Additionally appearing in the issue are reproductions of art as are found in Lincoln and elsewhere. The original casts of designs of the capitol building, which are part of the department's collection, are shown. Also illustrations of foreign art from Zurich, Switzerland, are published. The cover for the March Blue Print offers a unique design. Professor Smith stated. Made by students, a block print portrays the structure of the old Forum Romanum in the background. Next follows other buildings of history and in the foreground is Nebraska's capitol, the tallest of the mass.

SCHOONER RECEIVES OFFER TO PURCHASE D. PERKINS' ARTICLE

Fiction Parade Wishes Buy 'Mr. Vodding vs. Claus Company.'

An offer to purchase publication rights to "A. G. Vodding vs. Claus Co.," a short story written by Dwight Perkins, a junior in the college of arts and science, appearing in the winter edition of the Prairie Schooner, was received Thursday by Prof. L. C. Wimberly, editor. The offer was made by the Fiction Parade magazine, published in New York City.

The story, which was written in part of Prof. Wimberly's composition course, has attracted more attention than any other contribution printed in the most recent issue of Nebraska's literary magazine. Editor Wimberly stated that he had received numerous letters from all parts of the world containing favorable comments on the effort and one reader was of the opinion that the story was the best he had read since reading Mark Twain's works.

"A. G. Vodding vs. Claus Co." is a humorous story in the form of business letters from a certain Arkansas Vodding to the Santa Claus Corporation. Vanmeter, Vodding's son, writes to Santa Claus asking for a dozen Russian soldiers. The Claus company answers the request by sending brawny, Russian-gibbering soldiers. The order which has been filled in the flesh causes no end of trouble to Vodding.

TRAVEL CLUB OFFERS SIX SCHOLARSHIPS TO STUDENTS OF DRAMA

Awards Cover Tuition for Session at London School.

Six scholarships, covering full tuition for the six weeks summer session at the Central School of Speech and Drama, affiliated with the University of London, are being offered by the Drama League Travel bureau. These scholarships are primarily intended for students interested in literary and drama study, but are also given for the more important purpose of promoting international understanding.

Miss H. Alice Howell, chairman of the department of speech, was granted one of these scholarships and attended the summer session of the school two years ago. It is, according to her description, a very fine school with splendid teachers and very interesting courses.

Two Weeks Spent in London. Two of the six weeks were spent in London, one at Oxford, one at Stratford and two at Malvern. "A very enjoyable and delightful experience was attending the festivals which were being held while I was in Oxford, Stratford, and Malvern," Miss Howell declared. At the Malvern festival she saw plays from the six past centuries, including as the one modern play, "Sleeping Clergyman" which was given there for the first time and which later came to New York. It is at Malvern also that many other famous modern plays have made their first appearance, among them being several of Bernard Shaw's works.

"It was a fine opportunity to meet many nice people and to go to very many beautiful homes," Miss Howell stated. "We were entertained at tea while at Malvern at the home of Mary Anderson, a famous actress, and at the home that used to belong to Jennie Lynn. In this way we came to know the hospitality of the English people.
