COMMITTEE SEEKS USED BOOK STORE

Student Council Opens Campaign Monday to Establish An Adequate Student or University Owned Second Hand Bookstore.

QUESTIONNAIRES SENT TO HUNDRED SCHOOLS

Virginia Selleck Heads Committee, Assisted by Dick Fischer, Lorraine Hitchcock, Irving Hill; Publish Poll Results in Nebraskan.

Opening of an active campaign for an adequate student or university-owned second hand book store was announced Monday by Virginia Selleck, chairman of the special student council committee which will handle the campaign. The committee has been at work all year assembling information on the sale of used books here and on other campuses, and with the completion of the work of compilation and organization of this material, is now ready to take definite steps to secure a book store, Miss Selleck said.

Other members of the committee assisting Miss Selleck are Lorraine Hitchcock, Dick Fischer, and Irving Hill.

"Information gathered from the student body in the fall election by means of a special ballot reveals that undergraduates not only need such a book store but are strongly in favor of its immediate establishment," Miss Selleck said. "Almost one thousand students filled out our questionnaires in the fall and results of that poll will be announced later this week."

Questionnaires were sent out by the committee last December to more than 100 colleges and universities throughout the nation, seeking information on the various systems employed on each campus in the sale of useful books. Approximately 50 answers were received, representing every section of the country and schools of all sizes. Practically all of the major schools of the country returned the questionnaires, Miss Selleck said.

The majority of schools answering had book stores either owned and operated by student organizations or by the university. Book exchanges were operated in connection with almost every student union building, it was discovered, with the union president or graduate manager supervising its operation. In other cases other student organizations were in charge, although under faculty supervision, while several universities and colleges operated used book exchanges as a service for their students.

Several schools which did not have book stores are seeking to establish them or are contemplating such a move, the poll revealed.

Full details of the poll of Nebraska students and of the fifty universities will appear in the Daily Nebraskan, Miss Selleck said in connection with the council's campaign.

CORN COBS TO INITIATE TWENTY-FIVE PLEDGES

Ceremonies to Be Held at Delta Upsilon House Wednesday.

HILL CHECKS ELIGIBILITY

Corn Cobs, men's pep organization, will initiate twenty-five pledges at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening, March 27, at the Delta Upsilon house, according to Irving Hill, president. Final list of the pledges to be initiated are not yet announced, Hill stated, as checking for eligibility as not yet been completed.

In order that fraternities retain active membership in the Corn Cobs for next year, they must have at least one candidate initiated Wednesday evening, Hill pointed out. Those houses which have found their candidates ineligible should immediately make substitutions in order that they will be represented, the president said.

Initiation fees to Corn Cobs are payable at Selleck's office in the colesium until 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, after which time the Corn Cob treasurer, Jim Marvin, is to be paid.

Following the initiation, a meeting will be held at which time final plans will be made for the organization's dinner and dance at the Cornhusker, April 13, Hill said. Heads of all campus organizations are to be invited to this event, he indicated.

Hill urged all pledges to be present at the initiation in order that they may attend the dinner. All Corn Cobs are to appear at the initiation in uniform.

BLUE PRINT ISSUE ON ARCHITECTURE TO APPEAR TODAY

The Nebraska Blue Print, under the editorship of the architectural department of the engineering college, appears in the hands of engineering students today. Dedicated as the architectural issue, the student engineering publication in its March number offers an array of features dealing predominantly with architecture.

First presenting itself to the engineers, an unusual cover design in the form of a block print contains the structure of the Nebraska capitol building silhouetted against plans of other famous buildings of the world with the old Roman Forum standing out in the background. The cover is the work of architectural students.

Writing in the issue are Prof. L. B. Smith, head of the architectural department; Prof. Norman E. Hansen, instructor, and Paul Rader and Kenneth Clark, architectural students.

Professor Smith in "Concerning Architecture" writes on the important phases of architecture and relates its history and development. In "Rheims Cathedral" by Rader, the structure is described to its various features and its history. Clark with "Student Opinions" writes on modern housing and building materials, according to opinions expressed by various students.

Art Reproductions.

"A Center of Good Architecture" by Professor Smith describes the city of Lincoln as having many good examples of art that tend to classify it as a distinctive art center. In his opinion the various architectural exhibits here give Lincoln a rather high ranking.

"The Dean's Corner" by Dean O. J. Ferguson of the engineering college is on architecture and relates of the responsibility that engineers and architects have had in the building of civilization.

The publication additionally offers reproductions of art that has appeared in several national architectural periodicals. Several illustrations of the original casts of designs now on the state capitol are published along with pictures of foreign art as appearing in Zurich, Switzerland.

Condra, Reed Take Part in Conference Program Over Weekend.

Over 800 geologists, including instructors and students from the university, attended the annual meeting of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists held in Wichita, Kansas, last weekend. A firm belief was expressed at the convention that the petroleum and gas reserves of this country are rapidly being depleted. Evidence shows that the existing reserves can last but a limited number of years. Facing these facts the oil interests are seeking out all possible oil and gas reserves in the world. Dr. Condra states that he was repeatedly asked about the oil and gas possibilities in Nebraska.

Dr. Condra read a paper to the organization as a whole on "The Correlation of the Pennsylvanian-Permian System in the Hartville Uplift in Wyoming," and also spoke at three different banquets. Mr. E. C. Reed of the Nebraska Geological Survey read a paper on "Residue Studies in the Platte Valley."

Court Will Decide Fate of Nebraskan $100,000 Libel Suit

Well, it won't be long now. The time is drawing near when the future of the Daily Nebraskan, its editors, and even the university itself is to be decided, for the case of Congressman H. Ayre Blower vs. "et al" comes to trial Thursday, March 28, at 2 o'clock in Prof. Charles B. Nutting's practice court in the law building.

The latest move on the part of the opposing parties was made yesterday when Maurice Akin and Howard Gillespie, lawyers for the defense, entered a demurrer on the grounds that the petition of the plaintiff did not state a cause for action. In reply, the court promptly overruled the plea and notified the barristers that they must be prepared to defend their clients when the case comes to trial.

The prosecution, represented by Herman Rosenblatt and Don Easton, stated Monday that they are intending to subpoena the twenty-five defendants and six witnesses in order to insure their appearance at the trial.

For the sake of those who are still ignorant as to the details of this trial, it is sufficient to say that it is the same mock libel suit to the effect that there is no doubt in their minds as to which side the decision will rest. It still remains to be seen whether the honorable Mr. Blower is to have a stigma attached to his name forever or whether he may walk the streets with his head erect, contented in the fact that justice has been done.

Thus far, both the plaintiff and the defense are about even, both having made vociferous statements to the effect that there is no doubt in their minds as to which side the decision will rest. It still remains to be seen whether the honorable Mr. Blower is to have a stigma attached to his name forever or whether he may walk the streets with his head erect, contented in the fact that justice has been done.

A majority of women in the two upper classes are expected to vote, it was stated. At the same time, women of the senior class will make nominations for Mortar Board membership. The polls will be in charge of the members of Mortar Board, who are: Violet Cross, Bash Perkins, Maxine Packwood, Arlene Bors, Calista Cooper, Marjorie Filley, Breta Peterson, Elaine Fontein, Louise Hossack, Marjorie Smith, and Marian Smith.

The eighteen girls who fill the requirements for nomination include Elaine Fontein, Alice Beckman, Arlene Bors, Jean Brownlee, Dorothy Cathers, Calista Cooper, Marjorie Filley, Hallene Haxthausen, Louise Hossack, Margaret Medlar, Loretta Murphy, Bash Perkins, Maxine Packwood, Marjorie Smith, Marian Smith, Ethel Kuntzfeldt, Dorothy Lee Hartzler, and Adela Tombrink.

Requirements for nomination include an average of 80 or above, with no outstanding delinquencies; a senior standing; a "B" activity, and twelve hours a semester. At the same time that the May Queen is being elected, senior women will nominate thirty juniors for Mortar Board membership.
