FISCHER STRESSES IMPORTANCE CO-OPERATION

Easterday Implies That Group Might Entertain With Banquet, Prom, and Week for 1935 Graduates Before End of Spring Semester.

Seniors in the university will hold a mass meeting at 7:30 Thursday evening in Social Science auditorium to consider further advancements in their class organization plans which were begun last Friday with a dance at Carrie Belle Raymond hall.

Every Senior Should Attend.

Jack Fischer, member of the committee, remarked Wednesday, "It is up to everybody in the senior class to attend today's meeting if they are to live up to their obligation to their class and to the university. We will never consummate a successful organization if everything is left up to the committee. The members of the class must contribute to the work or the plan is doomed to failure. If we obtain such support, it will be possible to stage several senior functions during the remainder of the year and possibly to have an entire week devoted to senior activities."

"Last Friday's affair just broke the ice," he continued, "and we must make the most of our successful beginning immediately. The committee will work wholeheartedly on any plans adopted. The faculty and the administration has shown itself to be in back of us, and all we now need to achieve our goal is the co-operation of the entire class. This meeting is the first opportunity offered in which they can demonstrate that co-operation, and they should make the most of it."

Communitistic Dreams Have Broken Russia--Mrs. Hanna

By ED MURRAY.

"Remember that Russia is not an individual country, but a laboratory experimenting with an international movement, and there are already ten times as many communists outside of Russia than there are within that country," said Mrs. F. S. Hanna, speaking before the Woman's Alliance of the Unitarian church in Lincoln recently. In portraying her conception of her native country from which she was at one time exiled with many other intelligentia, Mrs. Hanna, popular speaker in this region on Russia, emphasized the idea that communism like Christianity does not stop at boundary lines, but is working towards a classless world.

"Twelve million Russians have starved in the last ten years, although the production of grain has increased, and millions are suffering in Russia today, simply because Stalin and the 3 percent of the people who are communistic are trying to set an example for the rest of the world," Mrs. Hanna stated in her Russian tinged, yet correct English. She added that grain-money that flows out of the country goes into neighboring lands to pay for the promulgation of communistic propaganda.

In her opinion the communistic dream is that the entire world should be dominated by one class, the proletariat, and the only power will be the state; there will be no God, no individual worth, and no family. She stated that the common people of Russia today are virtually being martyred on the altar of this ideal, which she says is an obsession in the minds of only a very small percentage of the people.

That the great majority of the people are suffering is evinced by a number of things happening within the country. The people have lost their car, their church, their land, and their family relationships. They are disheartened and dissatisfied, she declared. (Continued on Page 4).

PROSPECT OF BOOK STORE INCREASING

Special Student Council Committee Detailed to Handle Active Campaign for Student-Owned Institution Completes Compilation of Information.

QUESTIONNAIRES SENT 100 AMERICAN SCHOOLS

Report From Chicago University Seems Best Adaptable To Nebraska; Entails Organization Controlled By School Officials and Open to All.

Prospects of an adequate student, university owned, second hand book store are rapidly increasing as the special student council committee appointed to handle an active campaign for the institution, has practically completed the compilation and organization of information on the sale of used books here and on other campuses.

"It is hoped," stated Miss Virginia Selleck, chairman of the committee, "that after studying the systems employed by other colleges we will be able to choose the one that seems the most successful to initiate on this campus."

Questionnaires were sent out by the committee last December to more than 100 colleges and universities throught the nation, seeking information on the various systems used on each campus in the sale of second hand books. A report received from the University of Chicago bookstore described a system that appears very successful and that is well worthy of Nebraska's consideration, according to Miss Selleck.

The University of Chicago has maintained and operated a bookstore since it was founded, the letter which the committee received stated that about twenty years ago a branch bookstore was established at the school of education, and ten years later an additional branch store, rather small, was opened to take care of the evening classes in the business district of the city.

"The stores are operated on a strictly business basis. The University charges them rent, light, heat, janitor service, interest on capital, insurance, etc. It expects them to show a small or reasonable profit. Any surplus is used at the discretion of the Board of Trustees for the educational work of the university."

The Chicago book store is managed by a person selected by the board of trustees. This manager chooses his assistants. There is a staff of about 35, 10 of whom are (Continued on Page 3.)
