Students Defeat The Nunan Bill.

POWER of a strong and orderly protest by students has been demonstrated in New York where a proposed bill, prescribing loyalty oaths for students and teachers in New York schools, was defeated by a legislative committee.

The bill, known as the Nunan-Devany measure, was introduced into the New York assembly as a result of the activity of William Randolph Hearst and his program of red-baiting. As part of his campaign to purge American schools of all the nasty reds, Mr. Hearst advocated the adoption by all the state legislatures of statutes requiring oaths of allegiance to the state and United States.

Students and educators in New York immediately saw the joker in the idea and when the bill was fed into the legislative hopper, they started a protest against the action. Vassar and Skidmore girls marched on Albany, for which they received a stinging rebuke in the editorial columns of the Hearst papers.

Students, however, were not to be shut up and early this month representatives from every county in the state appeared before the committee. In addition more than 8,000 signatures to petitions demanding abandonment of the measure were presented at that time. Legislators began to see the light and killed the bill in committee.

There is such a bill pending before the Nebraska legislature at the present time. As yet it has not received much publicity except from the Hearst paper in the state, but its dangers should be brought before every citizen of Nebraska. Mr. Hearst and his cohorts probably rubbed their hands in glee recently when the state superintendent of schools went so far as to say that he could see no harm in enactment of the measure. Evidently the state superintendent has not devoted much thought to the problem or else he doesn't care much for the freedom of the system which he is heading.

Most of these measures as introduced in the various legislatures are harmless in themselves. They require only that the student or teachers stand up and solemnly recite an oath of allegiance to the nation and state. What, asks Mr. Hearst, can be so terribly revolting about such a simple procedure?

It is in the implications of such a law that the dynamite is found. The courts would not have to construe it very broadly in order to find a person guilty of violation of the law for some criticism of the government. It would place a definite limit on academic freedom and freedom of speech and thought. Proponents of such a bill, whether they realize it or not, are aiding in a movement to Hitlerize America.

It is hoped that the Nebraska legislature does not allow itself to be overcome by the columns of type which the Hearst papers have devoted to squelching the nasty reds by advocating an oath of allegiance. If such a measure is adopted the innocent will suffer along with the guilty. Will Nebraska voluntarily take on the yoke of Hearstism which New York seems to have thrown off for the time being?

What Do You Say?

TWO campaigns of extreme importance to the campus are under way at the present time. Seniors are working toward a solidification of class spirit; a student council committee is up to its ears in work with a drive for a university or student owned bookstore.

Both of these projects require backing from the student body. Their value upon completion cannot be denied. But the committees in charge of these programs are wondering what the campus at large has to say. They want to arouse interest.

For that reason, the Student Pulse column of the Daily Nebraskan is being thrown open to a forum on these subjects. If you are against the plans, make yourself heard. If you have any suggestions to make, don't keep them to yourself.

A definite assurance that the student body is actually interested in these projects must be given to the administration before it will seriously consider any proposals. Manifest that interest.

SCARLET NINE RALLIES TO BEAT RESERVES 6-5

Yannigans Collect All Runs In Big Third Inning; Orcutt Goes Route.

Trailing 5 to 0 when they came to bat in the last half of the third, the Scarlet varsity baseball team tallied four times, then added a run in the fourth and one in the sixth to nip the Reserves 6 to 5.

Scottie Orcutt went the route on the mound, by the winners, allowing five hits and fanning four. At the plate he socked three bingles in four attempts which with his battery-mate, Ed Pohlman who had the same success, found him sharing the slugging honors of the game.

Jerry Hansen and Gene Stenberg who were shifted from their outfield posts to second and third for the tilt showed up well. Jerry handled four chances without an error and Gene two.

Today's game will see two recruits, Carsten and Severson on the mound. Saturday, the freshman team and the Varsity will clash in their first fracas.

BOX SCORE: Varsity 004 101-9 4 1 Reserves 005 000-5 3 2 Batteries: Reserves, Moller and Jacobson; Varsity, Orcutt and Pohlman.

A Stanford undergrad may be a regular Johnny Weismuller to his girl friend, but, just the same, when he takes her canoeing on Stanford's lake, he has to take a life preserver along. So ruled university authorities this week as a measure of safety for those who turn to paddling for moonlight romance in the spring.

stantly recurring laughter and the playful answers made by Dean Foster, it seemed that he offered the most enjoyable portion of the afternoon's proceedings. When asked what his occupation was, he answered, "I guess I run a lawyer factory." In questioning him, the barristers made it clear that the connection which the Board of Regents had in the case was its position as governing body over all activities and functions of the campus.

Blower Last Witness. Congressman Homer Ayre Blower, the plaintiff, was the last witness to take the stand. Wilbur L. Johnson, senior law student, gave a capable characterization of the public official from Airtown, in the state of Jefferson. In his examination of the plaintiff, Mr. Rosenblatt brought out Blower's history, family life, and the effects resulting from the alleged libelous publication. After that, Mr. Akin put the witness thru a grueling cross-examination.

During the testimony, it was disclosed that the plaintiff is the son of Celestial Ayre and Rapid Ayre Blower. Educated in a little red school-house and at Rutgers Preparatory school, young Blower attended Harvard university, where he graduated from law school after completing four years of study in which he specialized in government. He did not serve in the Spanish-American war because "I felt that I could do more for my country in completing my line of study than I could by going to war." He has been a member of congress since he was first elected in 1924 from the Forty-Seventh district of Jefferson.

A charge of contempt of court was served upon Stiefler at the first of the trial for an article that he wrote concerning the trial which appeared in the March 22 issue. Merrill Whitman, another senior law, was appointed by the court to serve as his lawyer.
