

NO FACTION SPLIT RUMORED BEFORE SPRING ELECTION

Observers See Barb Vote Deciding Factor in Annual Battle.

RECORD VOTE PREDICTED

Togas Plan Comeback After Last Year's Council Shutout.

BY POLITICUS V.

Echoes of Ivy Day reverberated about the campus early this week as political factions prepared to nominate candidates for 25 student council posts and three publication board positions.

Among the men, both factions were believed to be standing pat as far as membership was concerned. Rumor of a threatened breach between barbs and fraternity men in the Progressive faction, a semi-annual occurrence, again proved to be unfounded as the Greeks and Barbs sailed smoothly along their way toward final nominations.

Progressives were optimistic over their chances to cop the spring race following their success in the Ivy day orator election April 16. They took further heart in the fact that Corn Cob offices again seem headed their way.

Green Toga members were also rejoicing over the harmony which pervaded their ranks on the eve of final selection of nominees. Shut almost completely out of this year's council, faction leaders were planning a concerted campaign to displace the Progressives next year and it was believed that some of the newly-tapped innocents would be called upon to carry the Green Toga banner next Tuesday.

Those "in the know" in both factions agreed in predicting that this year's battle at the polls promises (Continued on Page 4.)

Little Gods Galley

JACK NICHOLAS, AWGWAN BUSINESS MANAGER.

By Regina Hunkins. Jack Nicholas, pipe in hand, took time off from guiding the financial affairs of the Awgwan to announce with pride that he bet he'd been kicked out of more stores than anybody else in Lincoln. You see, the climb from circulation manager to business manager of the little humor magazine isn't an easy one, especially when it consists of getting ads and more ads despite a depression.

But Jack made it. He is a member of the University Players, and a member of Scabbard and Blade. He was a track man in his high school days and also during the year he attended junior college at St. Joe, Mo. But he hasn't had time to go out for sports since he came to the university. One doesn't wonder at that after (Continued on Page 3.)

Call for Poems on Bovines Shows That Press Is Powerful

By Ed Murray.

It took the utility bovine, man's best friend, according to Nels A. Bengston, head of the geography department, to butt home the power of the press to the unbelieving, and in this case the medium of the press pressed into prestige was the Daily Nebraskan. In short, the "rag" recently ran a bit of a feature calling for prospective ode writers to turn their efforts toward a eulogy on the goat. Dr. Bengston wishes to use said stately rhyme at the opening of a new book he is writing.

The feature was picked up by the Lincoln dailies and by the Associated Press. This motivating seed of creation thus found its way into every town of the state, and Dr. Bengston has already received approximately 50 odes on his favorite animal.

NEW COURSES IN FALL SEMESTER GIVEN STUDENTS

Registrar Office Announces Departmental Expansion in Facilities.

Numerous new courses are being offered in the fall semester for the benefit of the students in the various departments along with expansion in facilities, according to the Registrar's office.

In order to satisfy requirements for the new technician's course which is being offered in the pharmacy college program, physico-chemical technique is open to seniors or by permission. Corresponding to the freshman lecture and engineering orientation subjects which have been taught in past years, the ag college has added an orientation course as a requirement for freshman ag students.

The zoology and botany departments have combined to offer an innovation with a course in general biology. They are also scheduling an introduction to biology open to ag students only. Also a new introductory economics course is being made available to all students.

Formerly named the applied mechanics and machine design department, the same subjects are being offered under the title of engineering mechanics. Two or three semesters of high school algebra are the only requirements listed for the new mathematics course, elements of college math.

For those who have conscientious objections to formal military science, a new two year course is being opened up in calisthenics, sanitation, and map reading. Formerly these students were sent to the physical education department. The sociology department has expanded its course in social case work to now include four semesters of work in place of one previously. In speech and dramatic art, stagecraft is the new subject for those interested in the mechanics of stage work.

SENIOR GROUP TO MAKE PLANS FOR CLASS ACTIVITIES

President Easterday Calls Committee Meeting for May 14.

Although disappointed at the student inertia, the committee on senior class organization is going ahead with its plans and has scheduled a meeting of the committee for Tuesday, May 14, Don Easterday, class president, announced Tuesday.

At this time plans for senior activities during commencement week will be formulated to be submitted later to members of the class for their approval. Despite the fact few seniors have shown any enthusiasm to create a greater bond of unity in the class, the committee feels that the organization is a worthwhile enterprise and that the intention of the committee when it was first formed should be carried out.

"We think that when the details of the class activities are publicized, the students will awaken to the fact that there is a senior class that is doing something," Easterday declared. "We hope to set a precedent in senior class functions which will be followed by classes in the future."

Names of prospective Tassels were submitted at the meeting Tuesday and read to the active members for consideration. TWENTY-FIVE years a monarch. Such is the record of King George V of England. When thousands of loyal British gathered to pay homage to their king they saw him kneel reverently while the archbishop of Canterbury pronounced a blessing in picturesque old St. Paul's Cathedral. Everywhere there was thanksgiving and merrymaking in celebration of a beloved ruler.

All was not solemn, however, for everywhere in ancient England reverie marked the jubilee long after nightfall. Blazing fires symbolized spirited throngs from shore to shore, each paying respects to one who for a quarter century has ruled a mighty empire.

Near tragedy also marked the day. Thousands, crowding stands, streets and sidewalks already overcrowded received medical care (Continued on Page 3.)

MEN'S PEP GROUP TO ELECT NEW OFFICERS AT MEETING TONIGHT

Maneuverings of Politicians Indicate Partisan Nominations.

President Irving Hill's wish that political affiliations be disregarded in the Corn Cob balloting tonight for the good of the organization appeared to be blasted on the eve of the annual election when faction representatives indicated that nominations were apt to be made with partisan regards.

Hill had commented he hoped members of Corn Cob would disregard all political affiliations in their voting and choose candidates on merit alone because the position of the organization under incompetent leadership would be precarious.

Results of recent meetings of the two political factions however indicate that the president's wish may not be followed. Both parties refused to divulge the names of their candidates.

Only those members inducted into the organization this year will be allowed to vote for the candidates. Members inducted last year will not vote in this election. Karl M. Arndt, faculty advisor for the group will be in charge of the balloting. The meeting is to be held at 7:30 tonight in the basement of University Hall.

Four officers will be chosen in the election. The officers include president, vice president, treasurer, and secretary. Officers for the past year have been Irving Hill, president; Carlisle Myers, vice president; Jim Marvin, treasurer; and Irwin Ryan, secretary. Twenty-eight fraternities will have one vote apiece in the election.

FISCHER URGES MAJORITY TO SIGN PETITIONS

Executive Committee to Prepare PWA Application at Special Meeting This Afternoon to Submit For Council's Approval.

While committee members of the student union project searched for more petition signers, architects busied themselves yesterday drafting preliminary sketches and perspectives of the proposed building, rounding out the drive in the event the board of regents calls a special meeting to consider the proposition this week end.

Student council members conducting the petition drive asked students to remember the petitions that have been posted on the bulletin boards in all buildings and implored students who have not signed to do so today. "An impressive list of petition signers is necessary," Jack Fischer, president of the executive committee of the student council, stated, "to add impetus to the drive."

At the present time it is not definitely known whether or not the board will convene especially for the union project but committee members expressed the opinion there was a possibility.

Prof. VanRoyan Takes Dream Traveler on Holland Cruise

By Ed Murray.

Editor's note: This is the first of a short series of travelogue features dealing with trips that prospective tourists might take during the coming summer or some time in the future. The articles will be designed to interest dream travelers as well as those in the practical class that can do more than dream about seeing the world in some other light than that of a movie lantern.

Prof. Willem VanRoyan reminiscing and talking of one of the globe's most unique countries, the land where he was born, raised, and educated, Holland. "The one word that describes Holland better than any other is 'picturesque.' It is a country of dikes, windmills, flowers, cheese, art, tradition, and a lot of other things that everybody has heard about in some connection or other.

"Now the easiest way to get there is to take one of the big steamers out of New York. The 'Holland American' line runs a number of large boats. The 'Statenland' is one of the biggest and fastest boats, but some of the less swankier ones are cheaper and every bit as comfortable. The cooking on these boats is characteristically Dutch, excellent, and lots of it.

"The first stop for most English people is usually England. Finished with England, travelers cross the channel from London to Rotterdam. People belonging to the 'four hundred' take an airplane as a rule, and those confined to the water by the size of their bank rolls should eat little and drink no coffee before starting on the trip. The reason for this caution is that the channel and the sea of Dover on this jaunt from the English capital to Rotterdam is one of the roughest in existence. Under the ef-
