ESTHER ANDERSON DESCRIBES THREE MONTH EUROPEAN TRIP.

(Continued from Page 1.) company advertisement, but rather a mountain of rock, sloping down to a broad base and shadowing an English town of some 2,500 people.

Stops at Palma. "Wishing to stop off at Palma in the Spanish island of Majorca, we were compelled to go ashore in the life boats, which were drawn by gasoline launches.

Explores Pompeii Ruins. "We explored the ruins of Pompeii and, hoping not to overwork the work, I can say that it is one of the most interesting things that a traveler can see.

In the shadow of the massive and indescribably beautiful cathedral at Palma we saw beggars in crowds.

"To include the play boy center of the globe, Monte Carlo, one should motor from Cannes in southern France to Nice and the roulette center. On this drive one takes a beautiful, elevated road that overlooks the purple, blue, and green tinted waters of the Mediterranean.

Europe. Most people are familiar with this beaten path. "From London we went to Sweden, my native land. It is a peaceful country of a contented people.

also likes to shoot and practice archery. During is on her favored list as is swimming.

Makes Good Cakes. Although Marion is majoring in the commercial arts and has a few business aspirations she also is domestically inclined.

She does not care for smoking because she believes money could be spent for more worthwhile things.

Marion was recently honored by being elected May Queen at the annual Ivy Day fete and she prizes a silver bracelet she was wearing given to her by Mortar Board.

She values foremost among her experiences the fact she was able to attend university with her two brothers, one of whom is her twin.

Numbered among her activities are, member of Mortar Boards, senior class committee, co-chairman of the Junior-Senior prom committee.

Smartly dressed in a two piece blue suit, white blouse, red scarf, and matching accessories, Miss Smith left after the interview.

Students at the University of Rochester (New York) were recently exposed to a dazzling collection of stocks and bonds.

A Penn State college freshman who is addicted to collecting autographs has secured signatures from six famous persons within a month.

But the judges decided to turn their backs on all those well intentioned suggestions and named a dark horse as its endorsement.

The moral is—never lay any bets. We backed "Today" in the Kentucky Derby last Saturday and "Omaha" won.

At the University of Edinburgh, Scotland, girls not only pay their own car fare when the boy friends take them home, but they must also pay for their theater tickets as well.

That there will be much discontent with the choice is obvious, judging by the low rumblings that have swept westward on the AP wires the day the announcement was made public.

The script of "The Old Maid" is in one of the local bookshops and competing the play with "Valley Forge," "The Petrified Forest," or even "The Children's Hour," any of the latter would have been more meritorious.

When a new artist appears in the Broadway world, there is usually a deal of ballyhoo. Such is the case for the young designer who has done the settings and the costumes for the three separate periods the play covers.

Now that the Pulitzer Prize is all settled the theater turns its attention to summer vacations and Summer Theaters.

Students at the University of Rochester (New York) were recently exposed to a dazzling collection of stocks and bonds (face value—25 million dollars, actual value—20) to acquaint themselves with the wiles of "phony" stocks.

A Penn State college freshman who is addicted to collecting autographs has secured signatures from six famous persons within a month of their deaths, including Edna Rockne, Sir Thomas Linton, John Philip Sousa and William Howard Taft.

But the judges decided to turn their backs on all those well intentioned suggestions and named a dark horse as its endorsement.

The moral is—never lay any bets. We backed "Today" in the Kentucky Derby last Saturday and "Omaha" won.
