PITT WEAKER THIS YEAR

Nebraska Defeats Panthers
Once Since Beginning
Of Series.

BY DICK KUNZMAN.
"Hello, Pittsburgh!"
That's a very merry and unbothered greeting to be shouting at a football team with the ferocious reputation of Doctor Jock Sutherland's Pittsburgh Panthers, but Dana Bible's Cornhuskers are voicing it with gusto this week as they put their house in order for the invasion of the Panther lair.

But the Nebraska lads aren't yelling excitedly and exuberantly at the thought that Pittsburgh is going to be a cinch. Not by any means. That would be foolhardiness. The Huskers are very good at memory work and they recall very vividly certain items in the eleven which Pittsburgh yearly throws on the field that make such opinions as far removed as the moon.

Have Mighty Fight.

Dana Bible's pupils are joyful because they know that they're going to give Pitt a mighty fight for her money this Saturday. They realize that they're in full strength with the return of Ladas Hubka and Chief Bauer. They've annexed the Big Six championship. They played an excellent football game against Kansas last Saturday. And now they're shouting "Eastward Ho!" anxiously to put their skill against the mighty Panthers.

But will they have a chance? Can the Huskers hope to "Hold that Tiger!" even without the growl? That's the question that's uppermost in Lincoln and most of Nebraska this week.

Pittsburgh is weaker, Nebraska stronger, than last year, which may contain a little meaning, and may not. Pittsburgh has been weaker or stronger, and Nebraska has been the same way since 1921, and yet the Huskers have only beaten Pittsburgh once—in 1921, the first game of the series. In that interval, Pitt has conquered five times, and three games have been ties.

Have Panthers Power?

But it isn't so much a question of how many times Nebraska has whipped Pitt, or vice versa, as it is of how much power the Panthers will be able to generate, and how well the Huskers can stand up under it and return it.

There are many who won't accord Nebraska a fraction of a chance. Reports from the Smoky City place the odds as high as 12 to 5 on Pitt. And there's no question but the Panthers, despite their reputed loss of power, are still a mighty eleven.

Bill Day Reports.

Bill Day, Husker scout who has spent two weeks getting a line on just what Nebraska can expect, reported Monday that Professor Sutherland had again perfected a miracle machine that lacks only (Continued on Page 3.)

National Research Council Offers $1,000 Scholarship

A new type of graduate fellowship valued at $1,000.00 a year plus tuition and transportation is announced for the consideration of college seniors by the Social Science Research Council, an organization representing the national social science organizations.

The fellowships are granted to aid first year graduate students who wish to devote themselves to professional careers in economics, government, history, or other social sciences. It is expected that fellows with a superior record will be reapportioned so that they may be aided through their entire graduate training.

The basis of selection will be full academic and personal records of the candidates, supporting letters from instructors qualified to write of the candidate's research progress, and written examinations which will be offered thru the college entrance examination board. These will include examinations in the reading of French, German, in elementary mathematics, and in social sciences.

No appointee may choose the institution from which he received his bachelor's degree for study, while holding this type of award; but the council will advise him in the selection of the university best suited to his interests.

Each candidate must submit a letter from the chairman of the department in which he has pursued his major undergraduate study, in support of his application, before blanks will be sent to him. Seniors who may be interested should request that such a letter be sent to the Fellowship Secretary, the Social Science Research Council, 230 Park ave., New York, and should make inquiries themselves at the same address.

The closing date for the receipt of applications on blanks secured from the fellowship secretary is March 15, 1936. Awards will be announced as early as possible in July.

SIGMA DELTA CHI TO DISCUSS CREATION OF ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

Journalistic Group Plans
Consider Problem at Annual Conclave.

The future of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity, with special emphasis on the creation of a strong alumni organization which would make the fraternity a force in journalism, will be discussed at the twentieth annual national convention of the organization at the Urbana-Lincoln hotel, Urbana, Ill., Nov. 15 to 17. Eugene Dalby will represent the Nebraska chapter at the convention.

Need for a professional organization to include editorial workers from all kinds of publications and services, is recognized by Sigma Delta Chi leaders, some of whom are of the opinion the time has come for the fraternity to take definite steps to consolidate its position in this matter.

Several specific proposals will be considered concerning the possible revision of the fraternity organization to co-ordinate its collegiate features and broaden its alumni chapter to include not only alumni members but all newspaper, press association, syndicate and magazine men interested in a professional association or institute.

In addition to matters of general policy, the undergraduate and alumni members will engage in a three-day meeting devoted to various journalistic topics, according to the program released this week by President John E. Stempel, New York Sun. The University of Illinois undergraduate chapter will be host to the convention. D. W. Stevick, Champaign (Ill.) News-Gazette publisher, is sponsoring a luncheon for the delegates Friday noon, Nov. 15.

The annual banquet Saturday evening will feature Paul Scott Mower, Chicago Daily News associate editor, speaking on "The European Situation" and Philip Kinsley, Chicago Tribune, who will talk on "The Press Today."

Friday afternoon will be devoted to a symposium on "Municipal Government and the Press" and an undergraduate roundtable discussion on newspaper problems. Research in journalism will be the chief subject before the convention Saturday morning.

Faculty Sees Armament Race With New Era of Imperialism

By HELEN PASCOE.

Seventeen years after the well-known cry, "It must never happen again" was cheered on most of the noted continents of the world, Britain has assumed the stand that one billion dollars must be spent immediately to carry out a heavy rearmament program to protect her country. What will this step mean? Enlightenment in answering this question may be given by representing the views of British factions and in manner in which political science faculty members on our campus regard Britain's decision.

The Economist of England is taking the stand that "If Britain gives the lead in renewing armament by loans our example will be copied all over the world." Britain's present leaders such as Winston Churchill, Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin and Neville Chamberlain, keeping in mind the coming election are supporting the JOHNN WILLIAMS, No. 1 guard on the Cornhusker football team, is going to be a very busy and responsible individual this Saturday afternoon, for Coach Bible has selected him to captain the Huskers when they tackle Pittsburgh's Panthers.

That should not bother him, however, for he is used to hard work—is probably one of the hardest workers on the Nebraska team, in fact. During his three year career under Husker colors he has played nearly every position except water boy and referee. Coming from Lincoln high, Johnny has handled the left guard assignment with a death grip all season and has stood out consistently on defense.

SOVIET POLICY TOPIC OF J. D. CLARK TALK

Believes Recognition Came
With Renunciation of World Revolution.

Russian diplomatic relations with the United States was the topic discussed by Dr. John D. Clark, professor of economics, and authority on Russia, when he appeared before Prof. Stoke's International Relations class Monday.

Prof. Clark declared that the United States was able to start diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia recently, because the Soviet government's program of worldwide revolution had become mere theory, not practice. The United States opposed recognition of Russia until it was sure that the Soviet had discarded its international revolution doctrine.

In regard to the recent protest of the United States government to remarks made at the meeting of the Third International at Moscow, Dr. Clark stated that the reply of the Russian government that they could not control the International, was not feasible since the organization was fostered by the Communist party. The best thing the United States could do about the incident, he continued, was to forget it since the Soviet government controlled final resolutions of the group (even though they could not control the speeches), thus showing that they did not wish to alienate capitalistic countries.

Dr. Clark discussed the policy of the United States toward Russia since the beginning of the Soviet regime and briefly described the political setup of the Russian government at the present time.
