HUSKER ATHLETIC BOSSES SILENT ON NEW ORLEANS BID

Nebraska Sports Authorities Won't Discuss Prospect of Sugar Bowl Game.

BIBLE OUT OF TOWN

Committee in Charge of Grid Classic to Make Choice of Teams Tuesday.

Latest reports as yet officially unconfirmed indicate that Fordham university has been chosen to meet the Louisiana team in the annual Sugar Bowl football clash at New Orleans.

University of Nebraska athletic authorities were noncommittal Monday regarding the extension and possible acceptance of a bid to play in the annual Sugar Bowl football classic in New Orleans New Year's day.

In the absence of athletic director Dana X. Bible, not yet returned from a southern trip to watch Southern Methodist and Texas Christian universities play, no statement was forthcoming. John K. Selleck, treasurer of student activities, explained that if the bid were proffered it would first have to be approved by the university administration, and that permission of the Big Six conference to play a post-season game would have to be secured.

The bid was mailed by the Sugar Bowl committee Sunday. Acceptance will be announced Tuesday night.

Late reports from New Orleans indicated that Fordham was the leading contender to play Louisiana State in the grid classic. Other "possibilities" named by the committee were Holy Cross and Marquette.

Southern Methodist university, considered strongly, accepted an invitation to play Stanford in the Rose Bowl game.
