

CAMPUSOCIETY

BEFORE WE TURN OUR UNDIVID- ed attention to examinations . . . and the campus social whirl falls back to second place for a week or two, it might be well to stop for a moment and take heed of the January Harper's Bazaar, on what is right and wrong in feminine apparel, for the coming months. Military braids and buttons are speedily losing their early fall popularity and it is right to change date dresses of lame and velvet . . . flame red formals are on the wane . . . but bright blue, oyster white and black ones, are very good and getting better . . . Lucky vacationists in the sunny south, favor effusions in large floral prints, which all go to show what we Eskimoes will be donning, come warmer weather. And sad news for the femmes whose fancy turns to those jewel studded nets for the formal coiffure . . . they are out . . . not going but gone! . . . the crown (of the head) has been usurped by flowers . . . real ones!

Course in Dramatics Given 'For Men Only'

Because many students have inquired concerning such a course, Herbert Yenne wishes to call attention to Dramatics 102, open to men by permission. This is a course for men only and is devoted entirely to giving experience in playing parts to those who do not have time to take the full dramatics course. The class meets 2 to 5 Tuesday and Thursday or 10 to 12 Monday, Wednesday, and Friday for three hours credit. Any one wishing to register for this class should see Mr. Yenne at once in Temple theater.

GOLD & CO. INSTALLS CONDITIONING SYSTEM

New Type Air Regulator to Be Provided for Entire Store.

The immediate installation of a complete air-conditioning system, of the very latest type was announced today for the Gold & Co. department store, by Mr. Nathan Gold, vice-president and general manager. The air-conditioning will be provided for the entire store, with separate systems for luncheonette, stock rooms, rest rooms and various floors and departments. The plant, which will be sheltered in an especially erected penthouse on the roof of the Gold store, will assure pure, filtered air at the correct temperature and humidity and utmost comfort and well being throughout the entire year, with latest type cooling and drying for summer, and heating and moistening for winter months, Mr. Gold stated.

System Unusual.

The system is unusual in that entirely independent control is provided for temperature and humidity. Preliminary work on the new system is to start immediately, with actual construction to begin within two weeks, according to Mr. Gold, who stated that local labor will be used throughout the construction as well as locally purchased materials insofar as possible.

The installation has been designed by Mr. Charles S. Leopold, of Philadelphia, nationally known consultant. Davis and Wilson are the local associate architects for the Gold & Co. project.

The air-conditioning plant and equipment will be installed by the Mehling & Hanson company of Chicago. Mr. W. A. Sheriffs, president of the Mehling & Hanson company, is in Lincoln temporarily, completing the details of the contract.

Specially Careful Study. Following a careful study of years of local weather bureau reports, the system was designed to especially care for the extremes of temperature and humidity peculiar to Lincoln. It is the very latest not only in method of operation and general efficiency but will be exceedingly low in operating cost as well, a very important feature of an installation of this magnitude.

It is expected that the work will be completed before May 1, Mr. Gold stated.

STANLEY FLASBURG FINDS PENNER'S CAR

'27 Buick Now Possession of Freshman Student.

Stanley J. Flasburg was the lucky finder of the "Collegiate" car, Joe Penner's knockabout 1927 Buick touring decorated in true college style, Friday night at 9:20 p. m. Mr. Flasburg, who is a freshman in the university, discovered the car at 17th and B streets.

The car was given free of charge to the finder by the sponsors of the contest, the Stuart theater, the Hompes Tire company and the Daily Nebraskan. It was displayed during the past week on different parts of the campus. It is an open air automobile and is covered with such signs as "she rattles but she rambles," "bury me out on the prairie," "smoking in the rear," and "danger, 1,000 jolts."

The car hunt was staged in celebration of the movie, "Collegiate," starring Joe Penner, which appeared at the Stuart.

BROADCAST BREVITIES

Once in a while band leaders come out with statements that they will sue anyone copying their ideas. Hal Kemp wishes to inform them they wouldn't have a leg to stand on in court, since you cannot patent a musical style. His own band has been imitated far and wide but there's nothing he can do about it. Jan Garber and Art Kassel have cashed in heavily with a take-off on Lombardo's style, but has Lombardo been able to enjoy them, or collect royalties on their incomes? Don't make me laugh. Hal Kemp, however, has legal protection in the case of certain mutes he uses on his brass instruments. He also uses special parchment of his own invention on the drums, which gives them a distinctive vibration.

The Pickens Sisters used to dress exactly alike, but now each is expressing her own individuality, though they try to harmonize on color anyhow.

The Landt Trio and White will soon start an unusual series of interviews on their morning NBC programs, when they bring to the mike such personalities as their production manager, their announcer, their control room engineer, the sound effects man, the porter, the doorman and the head page boy of NBC.

Bernie Cummins and his orchestra open at the Edgewater Beach hotel, Chicago, with an NBC wire, in February. Their stay at the St. Paul hotel, St. Paul, Minn., has been extended.

Emil Coleman, St. Regis band leader, was offered a third spot on NBC Saturdays, but declined it because of the paucity of tunes created since the Warner Brothers' song ban.

Peculiar that Jan Peerce and Rubinoff should be on the same program Saturday nights on NBC-WEAF at 9 p. m., e. s. t. Peerce used to be a violinist, and Rubinoff used to sing. BLUM HEADS A.S.C.E. SOCIETY EXECUTIVES

Members of the executive board to the American Society of Civil Engineers have been announced by Lee Lichtenburg, retiring president of the society. They are Walt Blum, chairman, Elmer Clausen, Marvin Brigham, Gerald Brown, and Ray Tyles. New society officers elected last week are Lowell Newmeyer, president; Richard Dennis, vice president; and Morris Anderson, secretary-treasurer.

CAMPUS CAPS and GOWNS by the Stylists

AND THE VESTALS AREN'T THE ONLY ONES BURNING the midnight oil these fine days—and evenings. Errant students who have procrastinated so long are repenting—and trying to cram a semester's learning into one or three evenings. Fine as this little system may seem for the brain, it's mighty hard on the complexion—and incidentally the disposition, and we'd suggest a few treatments of rejuvenation for those circles under the eyes. Next to sleep, there's nothing like cotton moistened with witch hazel for tired orbs, and if you're worried about having had no time for the weekly shampoo and wave, try a towel soaked in hot water and wrung dry, placing it in circular motions around your head. It puts the wave back in—and what's more, leaves the curls. EyeO and hair worries are most common in exam period, so we'll not venture any more advice. It might not work anyway.

During exams you may not be thinking much about your clothes, but when that probation period is over, and you're sure you've passed, there's always the cheering thought that you've a closet full of clean clothes. Snow-time is not only sleigh time for Nebraska coeds, with formal still holding down the social calendar as the favorite week-end diversion from exams and such. And so we ask, "lives there a girl who can step lightly over slushy snow and keep the train of her gown so clean it can be worn the next week? Of course there isn't, and something must be done about it. Always remember that Evans Cleaners can chase all your blues away by sending your formal back in extra-special shape.

BROCKWAY SEARCHES FOR RARE CHEMICALS

Graduate Arrives in Lincoln After Trip Thru Middle West.

Dr. Lawrence Brockway, graduate of the university, 28 year old chemist, arrived in Lincoln Friday, after a search in midwestern universities for rare chemical compounds to be used in his work. Brockway received his bachelor of science degree at the university in 1929 and his master's in 1930. He is doing research work at the California Institute of Technology at Pasadena, and will remain in Lincoln for a visit with friends and relatives.

Colleges and universities throughout the United States expect improved financial conditions during the 1935-36 school year, according to the department of interior.
