

By Howard Dobson.

By way of perpetuating a column which made its campus debut last fall, and to avoid the labor of thinking of a new one, we use the above title, and end bark upon a columnist's career with many misgivings. We should like to think we would, in the course of such a career, collect as many private club cards as did Louis Sobol, New York columnist, but we know we won't. The best we ever did was get a pass to a munny golf links once for "bearer and family."

Last Saturday morning a French movie was presented at a local theater and several of the local citizens were not little annoyed by a young out who indulged himself in hearty horse laughs during the love scenes of the film. These scenes were hardly of the headlong type so popular with American fans. They were, instead, more bucolic, reminding one of a swing in the back yard, lilac bushes, and crickets in the dusk, etc. This lost generation has fled, alas, on love scenes of rumble seats, country club verandas, lonely golf courses, and such, with a heavy accompaniment of alcohol.

Campus wags are now provided with a new outlet for the convivial impulses which so often move them to call girl friends and impersonate the dean of women. On the Kosmet Klub office door, is a sign, neatly lettered by President Bobby Pierce, announcing office hours. At the bottom of the sign, it says that one can call F-3338 for "information." Just what information is available at F-3338, Pierce wouldn't say. Incidentally, as he strode around the office with his mouthful of carpet tacks repairing the place, he mumbled out of the side, gangster fashion, "Well, boys, I guess I got wot it tacks!"

We see by the Associated press that a Chicago psychologist advises students to attend prize fights. He maintains that the emotional stress of a prize fight allows them to release the pent-up effects of countless irritations which they suppress for the sake of their children. That may explain why a blonde we saw sitting beside her husband at a wrestling match a few weeks ago was screaming, "Kick him in the belly!" And it might explain why the former Miss Beckman and her husband were at the same match. If so, why were Gene Pester and El Farrell there?

Velma of the Moon, without whom our days would be dull indeed, wised the other day that she has at her house a bed in which George Washington did not sleep once.

There are certain events which provide story tellers with swell backgrounds on which to build. The topic of current interest which fits these purposes is the well known blizzard of '88, and a barber, as one might guess, offers the best yet. He tells of how he fought his way home thru the storm with his father. He then adds that the rest of the children stayed at the schoolhouse because their parents had phoned and asked that they be kept there. (Yes, it had to be explained to us that there were no telephones in country schoolhouses in 1888.)

We hereby endorse a foundation for the reward of somebody who will offer a swift and sure punishment for those persons who stride vigorously up to one on mornings such as we have enjoyed recently, and chirp, "Well, it is cold enough for you?" It is just such people who change their gag for summer to, "Having any trouble keeping warm?" (Excuse us while we gnaw on the desk quietly.)

We notice that collegiate humor magazines of the country consider William Randolph Hearst a fair game any time. The C. G. N. Y. Mercury is particularly bitter; the Harvard Lampoon beautifully satirical; the California Pelican outspoken; and the Stanford Chaparral robust. Incidentally, it is interesting to watch jokes make the rounds of the mags. Such sheets as the North Carolina Wautagan, Arizona Kitty Kat, and Iowa Froliv have fathered more shady ones than any others.

Charter Day, Once Outstate Tradition, Comes to Campus

Celebrations Honoring Nebraska's Founding Held at University Only During Last Three Years; Formerly of Outstate Interest.

Although celebrations of Charter day have occurred on the campus only during the last three years, due recognition of the founding of the University of Nebraska has been given for thirty years by graduates. Charter day has been more significant out of Lincoln and the state than on the campus until recently, when sponsors of the occasion set out to make it an important tradition on the campus.

"I believe very sincerely that Charter day at least forms an appropriate setting for building up a fine tradition and should serve to promote a continuous interest in the university," said Dean T. J. Thompson. "Special honor on this day should be given to the regents who have served the university, and to those professors who have been concerned in the development of the university over a long period of time, particularly those on an emeritus status."

Alumni Active Over Nation. Alumni and Charter day celebrations have been held for some time in approximately 20 towns in Nebraska, and in cities situated in all parts of the continent. In southern California a large meeting is held every year, with several hundred alumni present. This association of tried and true graduates generally hears the latest news of the campus from various members of the faculty whom they invite to speak. Chancellor Burnett, Dean G. E. Condra, Prof. C. O. Swayzee, and Ray Ramsey, head of the alumni association, have spoken to the group. Coach Dana Bible is scheduled to talk to this far western group this year.

Alumni celebrations have always been held for Charter day, from New York City, through Boston, Washington, D. C., Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Salt Lake City, Denver, Spokane, San Francisco to Los Angeles. Willa Cather will speak at the get-together in Chicago this year. In Washington, D. C., any of the (Continued on Page 4).

N CLUB MAKES PLANS FOR ALUMNI GROUP.

Members Will Initiate Omahans Who Earned Cornhusker Letters.

N club will make plans for its first alumni organization, to be formed in Omaha, at a business meeting tonight at the coliseum, according to Fred Chambers, president. The meeting will follow a banquet starting at 6:15 o'clock.

A team that will journey to Omaha to initiate formally those members who earned their letters before the club adopted its ritual is to be picked. "There are a number of members in Omaha who are still active in N club," Chambers stated. "For this reason we have decided to make this innovation in the club."

Plans for the annual spring party will also be started at the meeting.

SCHLITT WRITES FOR ISSUE OF BLUE PRINT

Railway Crossing Problems In State, Subject of Article.

H. G. Schlitt, engineer of the state bureau of roads and irrigation, writes in the Nebraska Blue Print this month on railway crossing problems in the state and the methods by which these dangers might be eliminated. His article is entitled "Grade Crossing Elimination Problems in Nebraska."

Rerouting of the road and the construction of overpasses are the two methods used by engineers today, according to Schlitt, C. E. '35. There are various types of crossings in the state and most of them can be corrected by either of these two methods, he points out. The article is further explained by pictures and a description of the Fort Crook and Saddle Creek overpasses in Omaha.

Walter Gloor, M. E. '36, presents the second article with "Present Day Trends in Automotive Design." He discusses principally the effect and extent on streamlining. Photographs of a super-streamed car used by a St. Louis company for testing purposes accompany the article. In his column, Dean O. J. Ferguson considers politics and considers "The Relation of Engineering to Politics." The February issue of the student engineering publication will be issued the latter part of this week, the editor stated.

WORTH OF PICTURES CHARM SCHOOL TOPIC

Girls Hear Mrs. B. E. Moore Discuss Place of Art in Home.

Approximately 100 girls were present to hear Mrs. B. E. Moore, head of the picture department of Miller and Paine's department store, discuss the value of pictures and their place in the home at the regular meeting of the charm school hobby group held at Ellen Smith hall last evening.

Opening her discussion by pointing out the importance of proper home decorating, the speaker continued by explaining that the general trend at the present was to choose pictures which fit into a home according to the type of the house. She concluded this idea by stressing the modern trends in pictures.

Three Types Displayed. Three classes of pictures were displayed for the audience in illustration of Mrs. Moore's lecture. Explaining in detail the various types of etchings and the manner in which they were made, the speaker continued by pointing out two additional types of pictures which would be found in a well-furnished home. These included the class called engravings and numerous types of prints.

Throughout the discussion the speaker repeatedly pointed out and illustrated the importance of selecting frames which were suitable for the picture and which were able to bring out the true beauty of a painting. In concluding her speech, Mrs. Moore declared, "It is most essential to have the proper pictures on the wall than to have up to date furniture in one's home."

VOTING OPENS TODAY TO ELECT CHAIRMEN OF ENGINEERS WEEK

Schroeder Expects Large Balloting for Leading Activity.

Engineers will elect today the general chairman and secretary-treasurer of the Engineers' Week committee who will have charge of arrangements for the college's foremost student activity. The election is being conducted in the M. A. building under the supervision of the engineering executive board.

General chairman candidates are Lester Hicks, chemical engineer, and Fred Mallon, mechanical engineer. Running for secretary-treasurer are Kenneth French, chemical engineer, and Ralph Doubt, mechanical engineer.

"The student elected general chairman will have charge of engineer's week plans and will supervise the departmental chairmen," Ted Schroeder, president of the executive board, stated. "Engineers field day, convocation, and banquet will be under his supervision."

The position of secretary-treasurer is also important, Schroeder said. The officer will make arrangements for the ticket sales and purchases of equipment for the exhibitions of the various departments.

The polls will be open during the morning and afternoon. Engineering students with their identification cards will be eligible to vote. "A large number of engineers are expected to cast their ballots today," Schroeder said. "The two offices are very important and are sought by a large number of students in the college."

MISS SOWERS TO SPEAK ON YOUTH AT AG GATHERING

"Facing the Future" will be the subject which Miss Alice Sowers, representative of the National Parents-Teachers congress in Washington, D. C., will discuss for students on the agricultural campus at an all ag convocation to be held on Thursday, Feb. 13 at 11 o'clock in room 308 in Ag hall.

The topic which the speaker plans to develop for the students concerns education in relation to future problems that young people may encounter. Because it is a topic so vital to all young people, the committee in charge of the convocation is particularly anxious that as many students as possible attend the gathering on Thursday morning, according to Miss Veleda Davis, chairman of the committee.

Stressing the fact that the young men enrolled in ag college are invited to attend the meeting as well as the women, Miss Davis said, "this promises to be a worthwhile convocation for students to be present at and we are hoping that a large group will take advantage of this opportunity to hear Miss Sowers."

Phi U. and Omicron Nu, home economics honoraries are sponsoring the program. Viola Johnson and Mary Doderick are the presidents of the respective organizations.

KOSMET SELECTS LAW FRESHMAN'S MUSICAL COMEDY

Dramatic Club Picks Play by Chauncey Barney for Spring Show.

"Southern Exposure," a three act musical comedy by Chauncey Barney, freshman in law college, will be presented as Kosmet Klub's 1936 spring show. President Bob Pierce announced following a meeting yesterday evening when the play was chosen.

"We sincerely believe that the show will lend itself very well to fine music and extra costuming," Joe Iverson, alumnus member of Kosmet Klub and director of the show, declared after studying the script. "We expect to make it outstanding among the plays that have been presented by the Klub."

Consisting of an all-male cast of about 40, the play will be staged at the university Temple at a date to be announced soon. It will be the twenty-second of its kind produced since 1911. Negotiations are being made to take the show on the road following its appearance in Lincoln, according to Pierce. Hastings, Grand Island, Columbus, Fremont, Omaha, and Beatrice are now being considered, and organizations in those places are being contacted.

The committee that chose the play from a list of nine competing for the $50 prize awarded to the winner consisted of Garlow, Pierce, Schwenk, Schmidt, Pace, Iverson, and Dr. Ireland, the latter having charge of the music.

"Although four of the plays submitted were of a superior quality that would insure a successful production, the Klub chose 'Southern Exposure' because it will afford opportunity for better costumes on the show on the road was not made until the play was proven worthy of the trip, and we're sure this production will make as big a hit with outstate audiences as it will with students."

FORENSIC ACTIVITIES REACH CLIMAX WITH DENVER TOURNEY

Select Squad Leaves Feb. 12 For Rocky Mountain Competition.

University forensic activities will reach a season's high as Cornhuskers debaters leave this evening to journey to the Rocky Mountain tournament, to be held in Denver from Feb. 13 until the end of the week. The select squad will leave Lincoln about 6:00 this evening and will return sometime Saturday night.

The speakers who will make the journey to champion their respective causes will include: Eugene W. Pester, Arthur L. Smith, Jr., and Francis Johnson. Pester is the only man who entered the tournament last year with the Nebraska squad, although both other men are experienced speakers. The veteran of the group ranked third among extemporaneous speakers in the 1935 tournament while John Landis, who is not making the trip this year, placed second in the oratorical speaking court.

In this year's mountain tourney, Johnson and Smith will be featured in a panel discussion on whether allowing congress to override decisions of the supreme court would make any particular difference with the question of the AAA, which is now so predominantly confronting the politically minded citizens of our nation. Pester will enter the extemporaneous competition and will engage in a panel discussion which will consider the utilities problem with reference to congress and the supreme court.

The mountain tournament is sponsored by Denver university and the three-day competition will include all types of debates, discussions, oratorical, and extemporaneous contests. This will be Nebraska's second appearance in the Denver tournament.
