It Echoes In Our Ears.

A single dissenting voice has appeared on the horizon as plans for a university foundation signaling the dawn of a new era on this campus are unfolded.

"There seems little basis for Mr. Howard's fears." As so aptly put by the World Herald "no one is trying to buy the scholastic brains of the university faculty."

Mr. Howard suffers from the belief that such gifts might tend to limit the freedom of the university. The gentleman does not seem to realize that the specific purpose of such an endowment would be to free this institution from the shackles now so rigorously imposed upon it.

Equally amusing is Mr. Howard's theory "let the university be richly endowed but by the legislature and people, thru taxation."

Perhaps the administration should approach the people of the state with the suggestion that they pay more in the way of taxation. Canvassing the entire state would not be difficult for such a unified political party as the administration, or would it?

PURDUE HONORS UNION'S FOURTEENTH ANNIVERSARY

Dreams of a Student Union building at Purdue university which found realization were recalled recently when that institution celebrated the fourteenth anniversary of the hard earned approval of plans for its building.

Detailed and continuous work over a period of several years included everything from careful scrutiny of architectural plans to statistics compiled concerning the number of students who are regularly at restaurants, the number who visited Purdue "coking" places daily, and the number who availed themselves of the recreational facilities of the university.

Funds Lacking. Even in the comparatively prosperous 20's, ardent student unionists at Purdue found it difficult to obtain the necessary funds to construct the union.

Outdoor Nebraska Uses Photograph by Hufnagle Richard W. Hufnagle, campus photographer, has his picture, "Winter-Brook Night," a snow scene taken in an Omaha park, featured on the front page of Outdoor Nebraska, official publication of the Nebraska state game commission.

No, it seems to the Nebraskan that the only feasible and practical plan, as evidenced by past experience in dealings with tax appropriating bodies, would be to take recourse to more pliable fields.

"Nebraska University is lagging today, and the reason is that the pinch of hard times has forced university appropriations, for a period of years, down to a minimum of bare necessities.

While maintaining the belief that the principal support of the university should fall upon the people of the state, the Nebraskan nevertheless claims supplements to these bare essentials are necessary.

STUDENT PULSE

Brief, concise contributions pertinent to matters of student life and the university are welcomed by this department, under the usual restrictions of sound newspaper practice, which excludes all libelous matter and personal attacks.

What Have We In the Bookstore?

After two and a half years of intensive ballyhoo, student publishing, and general unrest, we have at last been sanctioned a student book store. During the brief, (?) period during which the machinery is being set up, we are given a chance to sit back and consider what we have done, consider it by ourselves, free from editorial prejudices, petitions, etc.

But the most important point remains. In looking over the plans of the officials we see that they will buy no books from us except those that will definitely be used the next semester.

And how about these huge savings? Let's make a few comparisons. In the past, we bought a book for three dollars and sold it for about 1.25 cash or ten percent more in trade.

Now we begin to be sure that we were not as brilliant as we thought. Past editors of the Rag and other student leaders panned the present set-up from all angles, but they did not consider the fact that Mr. Long has been one of the best friends of the student body.

And again, why stop with books? Students annually spend a million dollars in Lincoln on such items as clothing, shoes, theaters, food, etc. We may safely say that a store, operating under the university with no light, heat, or rent to pay could give us our clothing at a lower price.

It may be locking the barn door after the cow was stolen, but nevertheless, let's give these things serious thought.--B. W.

Senator Borah Desires to enter the Nebraska primary as a presidential candidate, he informed progressive republicans in this state. "I hope to be able to make the grade," the Idaho senator said in a letter to a Nebraskan who had written him asking him to enter the race.

Inter-American Conference was proposed by President Roosevelt aiming for permanent peace on the western continent. Roosevelt sent personal letters to presidents of twenty Central and South American republics suggesting that a parley be held at Buenos Aires, Argentina at an early date.

Administration Farm Bill passed the senate by a vote of 56 to 20 and now goes to the house where adoption has been assured. The measure provides relief for the farmers through soil erosion as a means of controlling production and making benefit payments to farmers.

Liniment Comes Into Its Own When Coeds Take Up Bowling Art

Aching arms, bottles of liniment, and aching muscles in all conceivable places are giving mute evidence to the fact that the university girls have of late been engaged in the heretofore chiefly masculine art of bowling.

The technique of amateur bowlers is decidedly varied. Some coeds throw the ball with such force that the rafters shake in the garage below; their colleagues display such timidity that the ball scarcely manages to get from their hand's to the side alleys.

Classes are held at Lincoln Bowling Alleys, and girls receive additional instruction from Mr. Brown. The coeds may not become champion bowlers but it is certain that strong muscles will be of use some day even if they do no more than to help avoid the well known household fog.

MERRILL LECTURES ON SUPREME COURT

The second of a series of graduate scholarship lectures was given by Prof. M. H. Merrill, professor of law, at the university club 6.15 p. m. Tuesday. Professor Merrill addressed his audience on "What the Supreme Court Has Done to the New Deal and Why."

Keith Neville as a possibility for support of the democratic leaders of Nebraska if he should run for Senator Norris' senate seat has been considered in Washington. Neville, who was governor of Nebraska during the war, has been a critic of the new deal policies but is expected to support Roosevelt in the coming election.

Return of Colonies lost in the world war was demanded by Chancellor Hitler of Germany opening Germany's annual automobile show in Berlin, he declared. "We are too many people in a small expanse of territory."

Check on Spending is the desire of President Roosevelt. His assertion that he was moving to curtail government spending coincided with a disclosure that federal fiscal experts were contemplating a plan for a composite relief bill, which if submitted as such, would seek to raise 900 million dollars.

"Newfangled invention" makes good. "Can you really talk through a wire?" people still asked when this telephone switchboard went into service back in 1881. Apparatus was crude--service limited--but the idea was right. It took hold in spite of ridicule. Today there are more than 13,000,000 telephones in the Bell System--telephone conversations average 60,000,000 daily--the service is faster and clearer than ever.
