Of Danger From Leg
Infection.

Harvey Widman, Nebraska university basketball guard, was reported as much improved by Wahoo hospital attendants Monday afternoon. Widman was rushed to the hospital Saturday night with a severe leg infection believed to have been received in a last week's basketball practice. Since Sunday his temperature has been dropping and Monday attending Physician Charles W. Way reported that there was no danger. Chills and a high temperature came over Widman as he was practicing teaching in Seward school Friday. Seward doctors believed it to be only an attack of grippe. Later as suffering increased, the badly swollen leg was discovered. The infection seemingly had its origin in the right foot just behind his toes. It was later discovered that the actual source of the trouble was a blister in the instep of his right foot.

His parents were assured that there would be no complications. Widman believes that the blister was caused by his basketball shoe in a scrimmage Thursday, also he noticed nothing at the time.

Should Nebraska go to the Olympic tournament this week, the injury may prove disastrous to Nebraska's chances in the tourney.

PLANS MADE FOR POUND MEMORIAL

Profits From Text Fund For Erection.

Planning to erect a memorial to Dean Roscoe Pound of Harvard law school from the profits received on the sale of his new economics book, Dr. Joseph E. Goodbar of Boston contacted university officials this week as to the possibilities of using the books here as a text. It is entitled "Managing the People's Money" and is to be used in advanced economic courses.

Arrangements for the memorial to the Nebraska graduate are tentative. Dr. Goodbar stated in his correspondence with instructors here. The income for the fund would be derived thru the donation of $150 royalties from the selling of the text.

Instructors in the bizad college, however, found that they would be unable to use the book as a text in any of the economic courses now being taught, according to Dean J. E. LeRossignol. "Managing the People's Money," published last December by the Yale University Press, is an analysis of American banking and economic life.

PROF. SMITH SPEAKS AT SECOND GALLERY TALK OF ART EXHIBIT

'Appreciation of Sculpture'
Is Topic of Address
For Sunday.

Prof. Linus Burr Smith will be the speaker at the second gallery talk sponsored by the 46th annual exhibition of the Nebraska Art Association to be held Sunday.

The "Appreciation of Sculpture," will be the title of Prof. Smith's address. "I have chosen this topic for discussion because I believe that it is the most neglected of the arts in the middle-west," declared the professor.

Prof. Smith, who is chairman of the department of architecture in the university, received his Master's degree at Harvard university. Miss Mabel Langdon, curator of the fine arts department, reports a record attendance of over 100 university students attending the exhibit on Friday afternoon. An equally large attendance was reported at the gallery talk on Sunday when Paul Gardner, director of the William Rockhill Nelson art galleries and the Atkins museum in Kansas City, addressed the group on the paintings exhibited this year.

All students are urged to attend the exhibit as they are admitted free upon presentation of their identification cards and this year's collection is one of the finest shown in many years.

The exhibit is open to inspectors every day from 9 until 5 and on Sundays from 2 until 5. The exhibition does not close until March 30.

EXTENSION DIVISION TO SCHEDULE SPEECHES

Community May Arrange
For Talks by Faculty Members.

Through the extension division, the university co-operates with the community organizations in securing for them the service of some faculty member whose professional experience, and available programs will meet requests for such assistance as can be given at community functions. However, this will be done only if the date upon which the services are requested can be fixed into the schedule of the respective staff member, according to Dr. A. A. Reed, extension director.

The list of subjects of the lectures and entertainments appearing under the names of the more than a hundred staff members indicates that there are programs on nearly every conceivable subject. Speakers go for expense of the trip, provided that no admission is charged.

Communities somewhat distant from Lincoln can, by co-operating with the speakers bureau, lessen the cost for programs by using the speaker on successive days with some other community. Consecutive engagements that would necessitate the absence of an instructor from the campus too long are impossible. The speakers bureau of the university extension division at Lincoln will aid in finding out whether or not invitations can be accepted.

Exhaustion of the standing supply of Cornhuskers in a rush of sales Monday necessitated sending for fifty more copies of the yearbook by airmail. Orders may be placed for the books now, in the Cornhusker office, in University hall.

Twenty copies had been ordered by members of the student body, from the additional order placed in Chicago, Tuesday. There are thirty Cornhuskers left to be sold this week.

"The appearance of the beauty queen pictures in local and out state papers Sunday, seems to have heightened the general interest to the extent that the remaining copies were all sold Monday, and it was necessary to place another order immediately," stated Pester.
