IT'S IRISH DAY, METHINKS.

Green suggests omre than the coming of spring, it adds an extra twinkle to those smiling eyes whose proud possessors can boast of an Irish lineage. All the O'Bien's, the O'Shaunessey's, and the O'Malley's will lay down their well-known confetti, stick shamrocks in their coat lapels, get their long old clay pipes off of the old shelf and get together for an oldfashioned St. Patrick holiday celebration. Observe, this morning, our campus policemen, watch them swing their clubs an extra turn as they whistle 'Irish Eyes Are Smiling" or some such song. They'll create an atmosphere of a jolly sort and you can all help maintain it by helping them keep their temper at a low ebb. Park your cars in fifteen minute parking places for only fifteen minutes: don't double park or run over any and smiling colleens.
