Professors are willing to meet their friends half way on the road to friendship. The students must do their part, and if they do neither the members of the faculty nor the students will regret it, but in later years will regard that friendship as a priceless treasure.

PRESIDENT BUTLER CALLS FOR ACTION ON PACT OF PARIS

Director's Annual Report Attacks Government Stand on Peace.

By College News Service. NEW YORK, Mar. 17.—In his annual report as director of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university criticized the Roosevelt administration for alleged failure to take positive steps in the direction of peace.

Doctor Butler calls for some action by the government to indicate the violation of the Pact of Paris constituted "broken faith with the people of the United States."

His report read in part: "It is little short of amazing that the government of a people which made such literally outstanding contributions to the building of those international institutions and policies which alone can take the place of international war and make it increasingly unlikely, should now show itself so largely indifferent to these matters which have the most direct and powerful bearing upon their own national interest."

"The weight of responsibility which now rests upon the people of the United States is simply colossal. There can be no permanent return of prosperity, whether to the American people or to the world at large, and no real progress made toward the establishment and protection of international peace save thru their co-operation and in many respects their leadership. While, unhappily, there is no sign that this controlling fact is known or understood by any important group now in exercise of official power in the life of the nation, yet public opinion is moving steadily and with increasing strength toward an understanding of it."

"The one certain way for the United States to keep out of international war, whether military or economic, is to join in preventing international war, whether economic or military. The door to this policy was opened by the pact of Paris renouncing was as an instrument of national policy, signed by the government of the United States on Aug. 27, 1928, and subsequently accepted by sixty-three nations in all."

"By the terms of the pact of Paris, it is plain that whatever nation violates it and undertakes international war as an instrument of national policy has broken faith with the people of the United States. In such circumstances, those people cannot be neutral in the old sense unless they propose to be at the same time immoral. Neutrality with morality involves action to indicate recognition of the fact that an international pledge has been broken and international confidence to that extent destroyed. Resistance to a policy of neutrality with morality reflects the same old struggle of the profit motive to dominate at all costs versus morality and the spirit of service.

"What will the American people do? Will they be deceiving by empty formulas and false phrases, the effect of accepting which will be to wreck their own national ideals and to add to their own domestic economic, social and monetary problems, or will they require their government to move forward constructively in co-operation with the civilized nations of the earth to protect the peace of all and to increase the prosperity of all?"

"The alternative is clear. It is neutrality with morality or neutrality without morality. To choose the latter means, despite all phrases that may be hurled about from the platform and the press, an eventual and perhaps speedy involvement in any international war that may come to pass, whether it be economic or military."

EXPERIMENT KILLS HUMAN GUINEA PIG German Scientist Dies in Search of New Cure.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17. (C.N.S.)—Dr. Ferdinand W. Vowinkel, 74 year old German scientist and a physician, who sought to make himself a "human guinea pig" to find a cure for arthritis. This week had become a martyr to his own experiments. His death closed the experiments, with the fundamental problem still unsolved.

Dr. Vowinkel, a resident of Alameda, was a graduate of the University of Berlin, and for 17 years was chief surgeon at the California Women's hospital. He died at the University of California hospital.

Huge doses of concentrated Vitamin D caused the physician's death, according to reports made to the coroner's office.

Dr. Gertrude M. Mitchell of the University of California hospital said that for 18 days before his death Dr. Vowinkel took very heavy doses of the vitamin in search of a cure for arthritis, from which he was suffering.

Use of the vitamin for that purpose is still a matter for experiment, Dr. Mitchell said, the first

Burkett of Perry Named to Captain I.S.C. Tank Team

AMES, Ia., March 17.—Robert Burkett was elected captain of the 1937 Iowa State college swimming team at a meeting of lettermen yesterday.

Burkett, a junior in general engineering, swims in the dashes. He scored 8 3-4 points in the Big Six meet last week to aid in giving the Cyclones a tie with Nebraska for the conference crown. He was also a place winner in the Midwest A. A. U. 100 and 220 yard dashes. He succeeds Capt. Jack Fries, breaststroker who graduates this spring. Dick Fleig, Midwest A. A. U. and Big Six diving champion, who was unbeaten this year and was beaten only once since he started his collegiate competition; Bill Grant, dash man; and Richard Herrick, back stroker, are also lost to the Cyclones by graduation.

EASTERN COLLEGES GET IN MIX WITH HEIDELBERG

ITHACA, N. Y. (ACP). Despite undergraduate protest and adverse criticism from The Cornell Daily Sun, student newspaper, President Livingston S. Farrand has announced that Cornell will send two representatives to the 550th birthday celebration of the University of Heidelberg this summer. Doctor Farrand said he did not regard an "exchange of courtesies" between the two institutions as involving an expression of judgment on German policies in government or education.

Van Loon Objects. Van Loon's letter asserted that "the Germans, being free, white and 21, are of course entitled to any sort or form of government that happens to please their Teutonic fancy, and it is none of our business to what lengths they may go in offending the decent opinion of the rest of mankind."

"But it seems incredible," he continued, "that Hitler's bright boys would care to associate with representatives of a university founded by the eminently broad-minded Quaker, Ezra Cornell."

Meanwhile, Harvard authorities were trying to think their way thru a pretty quandary. Consistency called for refusal of the bid, since scholarships offered by Ernst Hanfstaengl, Hitler aide, were twice refused. However, Harvard has invited Heidelberg to its own 300th anniversary celebration, doesn't dare to risk a retaliatory snub.

Princeton Agrees With Cornell Opinion at Princeton, passed up by the Nazis, seemed to be that the university missed nothing but a headache. Invitations to British universities were withdrawn by Prof. Wilhelm Groh, rector magnificent of Heidelberg, following publicity similar to that attending the Cornell decision here. English scholars had asserted 1936 was the 549th, not 550th anniversary of Heidelberg, basing the claim on an original charter in the British museum, adding that the date of the celebration, set for next June, coincided exactly with the date of the nazi "blood purge" of last years.

SURVEY FINDS PET SCHOOL BUGABOO?

Rochester Students Have Old Superstitions.

(By Associated Collegiate Press. ROCHESTER, N. Y. (ACP). Has higher education abolished superstition?

Not on the University of Rochester campus. Pet bugaboos uncovered by a recent department of sociology investigation included all the old stand-bys and a few new ones.

There are the men students, for instance, who will wear only a particular "pet" tie on examination days, and those who never say "I hit the books" because of the alarming effect the phrase has on their grades.

Men are far more superstitious than women, the investigation shows, and athletes are particularly susceptible. A trackman reported that he never dared shave on the day of a race, and would rather run barefoot than wear any but the first pair of track shoes he ever owned.

Other athletes rely on a careful shining of their shoes before a contest, or a wad of gum stuck on their equipment somewhere. A football man reported on the efficacy of prayer. He forgot to pray before a game once, he says, and it cost him a broken leg.

Learned Discoveries Some Students Get Better Educations. By Associated Collegiate Press. Interesting results have followed the study made by Dr. William S. Learned of the Carnegie Foundation, of comparative stores of information held by high school seniors and college students. He studied 49 colleges in Pennsylvania and a large group of high schools, giving four hour comprehensive tests to students. He found that some college freshmen knew more than probably any college

DEEP IN STUDIES. The strain often shows up in poor digestion. Enjoy Camels for their positive benefit in aiding digestion, by stimulating and restoring the natural flow of the digestive fluids.

Smoking Camels eases tension—stimulates digestion—and fosters a feeling of well-being! Again and again, we make up for lost time by eating in a hurry. Digestion must meet the strain. How fortunate that smoking Camels during and after meals definitely stimulates digestion and helps to ward off the effects of our hurried, nerve-racking life—by aiding and restoring the natural flow of the digestive fluids. Today, Camels are being everywhere recognized as a healthful part of the art of dining. Camels are incomparably mild—never get on your nerves or tire your taste. Enjoy Camels with meals and the whole day through, for their matchless blend of costlier tobaccos—for their energizing "lift"—for the welcome feeling of well-being they bring you. Camels set you right!

WIZARD ON SKIS, Sig Buchmayr, says: "I smoke Camels while eating and afterwards. It seems to me that after good food there's nothing like smoking a Camel to aid digestion and build up a fine feeling of well-being."

TOMMY BRIDGES, of the World Champion Detroit Tigers, says: "Ball players have to watch digestion. I find Camels a real aid in helping digestion. Camels set me right!"

COSTLIER TOBACCOES! Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOES—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand.
