KLUB SHOW CAST STARTS ROUTINE DAILY PRACTICES

Iverson, Ireland in Charge Of Bringing Show Into Shape by April 20.

As rehearsals for both the cast and pony chorus gain momentum in preparation for "Southern Exposure," Kosmet Klub's spring show, practices are being held nightly and will continue so on out until the time of presentation, April 20 to 24. Joe Iverson, former Klub member, is directing the cast and double quartet, while Dr. Ralph Ireland, likewise a Kosmet alumnus, has charge of bringing the pony chorus into shape.

The story, written by Chauncey Barney, law freshman, is laid in the south, as the title suggests, and revolves around a horse race and an inheritance. Larry, played by Don Boehm, is a college lad who inherits a southern plantation, but little money to keep it up. Paschal Stone is Larry's fiancée, acting under the name of Carolyn, and wants to sell the plantation and move to New York.

Bill Strong Is Heroine.

The purchaser to be is rich Aunt Matilda Thornydyke, played by Vance Leininger. The heroine of the play is Bill Strong who will act the part of Louise. Louise is a neighbor girl in love with Larry, and wants him to keep the old family property. Colonel Horatio Q. Winterby, alias Irving Hill, sides with Louise.

It seems that it might be possible to keep the southern mansion if "Southern Exposure," a horse that is part of Larry's inheritance, will win a race. But complications set in when Jeppy, the stable manager, played by Sid Baker, and Chloe, a southern mammy played by Bill Flax, fall under the power of Amos B. Kirby, a small-time gambler, which part is taken by Jacques Shoemaker.

Negro, Sheriff Complete Cast.

Bill Marsh handles the character of Toonia, a Negro maid, and Bob Martz, playing the sheriff, completes the cast.

At a meeting of Kosmet Klub, held yesterday, committee chairman reported on their progress, and Bob Shellenberg, Klub member, was made chairman of advertising committee as well as continuing in charge of properties. Committees and chairmen are:

PASSION WEEK SCENE SUBJECT OF Y.W.C.A. VESPERS ON TUESDAY

Francis Scudder, Cabinet Member, Speaks at Service.

With the theme built around various events in the life of Jesus leading up to the time of His crucifixion, Y. W. vesper services were held Tuesday afternoon in commemoration of Passion week. Frances Scudder, chairman of the vesper staff and a member of the Y. W. cabinet, gave the narration, which presented important scenes in Jesus' life during the week preceding His betrayal.

The candlelight service, scheduled as one of the pre-Easter meetings, was opened with several violin cello selections played by Gladys Swift. The numbers were: "Largo" by Handel, "Cavatina" by Rann, and "Sarabande" by Bach. Margaret Phillippe, director of the vesper choir, offered an additional musical selection by singing, "Were You There When They Crucified My Lord?"

A skit in the form of an amateur hour, planned by the Junior Fair board, proved to be a hilarious takeoff on the Senior Fair board. The senior members were given an opportunity to try out for leading parts in a pageant, and the well-known bell of all amateur programs greeted them through the skit.

A number of songs and yells were heard, being led by Ogen Riddle and Raymons Hilton. Fair board members in charge declared the rally to be a great success with the student members showing a great deal of interest in the coming fair.

University Campus Decidedly Truthful Place, Editors Find

Lone Entry in Liar's Contest Ruled Out by Censors On Grounds of Ineligibility; Staff Members Express Disappointment.

Ten thousand students and not a liar in their midst! In its most recent issue the Daily Nebraskan ambitiously stated all rules and regulations for its April Fool's day liar contest. In this constitution of rules and regulations—the following provisions were set forth:

1. All lies must be submitted to the managing editor's desk sometime Tuesday.

2. Stories submitted were to be typed on one side of the paper only and should be as brief as possible.

3. No member of the Daily Nebraskan staff or his family is eligible for competition.

Shortly before the current issue of this publication went to press, ardent contest promoters dug into their entry box and found to their dismay and disappointment that but one story had been submitted. Still insistent that their contest must be a success and determined that if there be but one liar on the campus he must necessarily be the biggest, the staff promoters proceeded to judge the lone entry.

For certain reasons which the censors made rather emphatic at the time it was decided not to publish the tale and because a liar investigation proved that the contributor was among the few ineligible his name may hardly be published.

Whether the fact that the staff members were declared ineligible, that Awgwan Editor Cass and his henchmen were too busy hunting for their usual run of humor in or that the wouldbe legalists of the campus were taken up with a practice trial might account for the fact that only one unprintable and illegitimate contribution found its way to the office.

For the most part it might seem that the Nebraskan should hang its head in shame for even so much as implying that there should be enough aspiring "Munchausens" on the campus to make an interesting contest.

The question of the hour at the present is "What shall we do with this fifteen dollar award we bought for our first prize?" The equally critical reply comes back "Take it back; it isn't paid for anyway."

Coquettish 'Carmen' Wins Lincoln Opera Followers

3,000 Music-Lovers Hear Coe Glade's Company At Coliseum; Singing of Helen Freund Wins Extended Ovation.

Playing a coquettish "Carmen," Coe Glade, enrapturing contralto, flirted her way in the hearts of three lovers in Bizet's French opera and some three thousand music loving Cornhuskers in the coliseum last night. Appearing for the third time in Lincoln, Miss Glade made her debut as an impressario and also gave her 75th presentation of "Carmen."

As the most fascinating gypsy maid in a band of smugglers, Miss Glade changed from one lover to another, bringing under her spell the three male leads in the opera. These were the gallant, but bald, captain of the dragons, played by Norman Cordon, baritone; Don Jose, Dragon corporal played by Sydney Rayner, tenor; and the Toreado, Escamillo, sung by Joseph Royer, baritone.

Showing affection and disdain with equal ease, Miss Glade shifted moods swiftly demonstrating dramatic versatility. She supplemented her rich contralto with lithe movement and flirtation flips of Mae West caliber. Helen Freund, hailed as the baby of grand opera, made an exquisite doll-like presentation of the role of Micaela, spurned sweetheart of Don Jose. Her coloratura soprano received extended applause. The ensemble and ballet scenes were colorful and full of gay activity. Smugglers, gypsies, cigarette girls, and street boys appeared in vari-colored costumes and staged various rollicking choruses and dances. With the setting in Spain, lighting and scenery were effectively used as background for the singers.

Directing the choruses, ballet, and symphony was Isaac Van Grove, who is known for his baton wielding in Max Reinhardt's productions. Altho the instrumentation of the company's own symphony was decidedly limited, the performance was smooth and of professional status.

COLLEGE COUNCIL PETITIONS PART IN FROSH DAY PLANS

Executives Address Letter To Senate's Committee On Orientation.

Asking student representation on the university senate's freshman day committee, student executives in five colleges, meeting to discuss creation of an administrative class council, completed their first and unofficial action Tuesday.

After delaying organization of the new group until a definite outline of their powers is drawn up, five of the eight attendants at the meeting, acting in their individual capacities, paved the way for their future organization by submitting a proposal to the faculty committee before its meeting Thursday, at which it will close the books on next fall's freshman week plans.

The letter, which asked for student representation on the planning committee, also suggested proposals from a student standpoint which would enlarge freshman day activities into a functions for individual colleges which do not now take part, and would decrease the tedium and confusion of registration.

The letter was signed by Ralph Nollkamper, chairman of the Bizad Executive Board; Ted Schroeder, president of the Engineer's Executive Board, John Clymer, president of the Ag Executive Board; and James Marvin, senior class president representing Arts and Sciences. Representatives from dental, medical, and pharmacy colleges were not present, and representatives whose colleges do not participate at all in freshman day activities did not sign the letter.

"The chief question of the meeting was decided," declared Marvin, "when every college representative agreed that the classes would benefit by some plan to organize, and that such a council as this meeting represented might go far in meeting that need."

"What project will be undertaken as a means for class organization is undecided; if the student council, by virtue of their junior membership could better participate in freshman day activities, we would gladly relinquish that for another which is now up before us."
