Leading Horsemen in Saturday Show

80 RIDERS ENTER AG COMPETITION

Large Delegation Entered in the Intersorority Contest.

Nebraska's leading horsemen and best bred and trained horses will participate in the most extensive horse show in the middle-west sponsored by Farmer's Fair Saturday, according to Clyde White, chairman. Over eighty riders from the leading towns in the state are expected, as well as a large delegation in the intersorority riding contest.

This year's horse show, planned on a much larger scale than ever before, for the first time will vie with the ag college pageant in importance. The show will be staged in the afternoon from 1:30 to 4:30 in a specially constructed outdoor arena on Ag campus. Should rain interfere with the outdoor arrangements, the exhibit will be held in the coliseum on the State Fair grounds.

Much Interest Shown.
An unusual interest in the show is being shown in all parts of the state, indicated by the large number of Omahans planning to enter horses. They are George Brandeis, Tommy Walsh, Carl Gregg, Mrs. Mark Walker, William S. Baxter, F. A. Wellman and sons, Joe Smith, Louis Meyers and H. G. Windheim. "Ritzie McDonald," named the world's foremost high school horse by authorities in the field, will be one of the extra features of the show. Allan Walker, Dunbar, who is trainer of the horse, has toured the entire United States exhibiting him at all the leading shows. Al DuTeau of Lincoln is the owner of the horse.

Five Contests Held.
There will be five contests during the afternoon divided into the following classes: Five gaited saddle horses, three gaited saddle horses, intersorority competition, jumpers, best lady rider, the outstanding big six hitch from the Union Stock Yards company of Omaha, and the local children's division.

Trophies donated by the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce will be awarded to the winners of six classes at the close of the show. The trophy for the victor of the intersorority riding contest has been donated by Faulkner Brothers of Lincoln.

Ira Dryden, manager of Long View farm at Lees Summit, Mo., and nationally famous breeder and exhibitor of saddle horses, will judge all contests.

Mrs. Florence Gardner, promoter for the state horse show each fall, will be in charge of all class contests and call boys. Keith Walker is to be ringmaster, and Doug Timmerman, also of Lincoln, clerk. The announcer for the show is to be Ralph Boomer.

Over 20 entries have been submitted for the intersorority contest as interest on the campus is even greater than in past years, according to Herbert Nore, chairman of the committee in charge of the event.

Contestants will be judged on riding in three gaits, the walk, trot, and canter. Entrants by certain organized houses on the Climaxing Farmer's Fair week and a full day of festivities, over 400 ag students will take part in presenting "Cerialia," expected to be the most elaborate pageant ever presented on the campus, according to Elsie Buxman, chairman. The pageant which gains its name from the Latin word meaning "corn festival," will be presented in the huge amphitheater constructed on the ag campus with slender poplar trees and other greenery providing suitable background for the production.

Beginning at 9 o'clock in the morning, concessions on the ag campus will open and be ready for business. The principle exhibits of the show, displayed in the Student Activities, Home Economics and Agricultural Engineering buildings, will be open all day from 9:30.

Two new features of this year's show are a puppet show at 10:30 and a doll contest. Both exhibits give promise of unusual interest. Don Joy, who is in charge of Snorphams, a program of amateur skits, guarantees every one a good laugh at his various types of sidshows.

"To Ivy Day"
"The sinuous roads were weary to my feet,
A livid sky hung full of darkest fear,
Of far-flung hopes—dimly remotely dear,
But in the air your joyous songs were sweet.
I saw your cool, dark wisdom folding you;
Above our transient life you seemed to stand.
I watched the moments in the flowing sand
Live quickly—then as surely pass from view.
A questing song: that is our dream of life
We find in that sweet loveliness of yours,
And our unsated thirst your beauty cures.
Your tranquil evening ends our year of strife,
Wrapped in rememberings so close at hand
I sigh—my eyes are blinded where I stand."

A soft high neckline ended in a crisp cross back decolletage on the empire bodice. Capelet sleeves added to their charm. Wide white shepherdess brims, the hats of matching organdy were trimmed with tiny nosegays and velvet streamers in a deeper tone.

Wearing garden pink mousseline de soie, the freshman attendants were Virginia Hyatt, arts and sciences student, and Helen Pascoe, Fremont, journalism freshman.
