Honorary Plans Class to Train Activity Women

Mass Meeting Called for All Campus Women to Consider Instruction in Leadership; Meet Tonight in Ellen Smith.

To develop a means of meeting the increasing demand for women activity leaders, Mortar Board, senior honorary, will present its plans for leadership training classes to campus women today at 7:15 in Ellen Smith hall. Alaire Barkes, retiring president of Mortar Board, will address the meeting.

The interorganization council, so composed of the highest ranking women members of the major campus activities, will organize a leadership training course for younger women. Faculty members and students, as well as students from other campuses, have declared that Nebraska lacks a system of preparing its leaders for their work.

Activities Limited.

"Under the revised point system instituted this year by the interorganization council and the A. W. S., the women are so limited in the number of activities in which they are allowed to participate that there is a much greater demand for activities leaders," declared Miss Barkes, in discussing the proposed meeting.

"We hope this plan will work to complete the whole setup of improved women's activities," Miss Barkes continued. "Better co-operation between women's organizations is the desired end, so that quality of work and not quantity will be the aim of each participating girl."

The great deal of overlapping of activity organizations, especially among the freshmen groups, is another evil which the board wishes to alleviate. Plans are being made for the interorganization council to co-ordinate the work of each group when the school year opens next fall.

Summer Work Outlined.

Each women's organization has been requested to send delegates to the meeting who will take an active part in the discussions, and will offer suggestions to aid the

REFORM CERTAIN AS REALIGNMENT SAYS POLITICUS

Commentator Passes Buck To Successor With This Column.

Editor's Note: The succession of Politicus moves on. Today, Politicus VI writes "30" on his editorial story, concluding his spasmodic comment on a hectic year in campus politics. Tomorrow, Politicus VII takes over the typewriter for his first article, and will follow thru the coming year of reorganization, realignment, and—we hope—reform. The line of Politicus included, in order: Jack Erickson, Clifford Southall, Howard Allaway, Dick Moran, Jack Fischer, George Phipps and next year, Willard Burnes.

By Politicus VI.

When 2,300 students in a university community of 5,800 vote at a general election to set a record equalling in percentage that of the American nation, that's real interest.

And when the same campus witnesses the most spectacular exhibition of political skulduggery in that and following elections, that's really interesting.

By the looks of all the press association wire stories carried on the Interfraternity Council election alone, one may be sure that if something isn't done at home, the first resolution passed by the new unicameral legislature will advise university politicians to clean up campus elections.

And a cleanup is to be expected. But who is going to lift campus politics out of the mire, and how they are going to do it are two questions for which a political commentator can only suggest, and not prescribe, solutions.

Don't Save the Surface.

The only way present conditions can be changed more than whitewashing or diverting activity pluggers, publication workers, and student government representatives, in some measure at least, from their social fraternities. The only way to end vote trading, brother-pushing, and a hundred other methods that elect the favored over the meritorious, is to remove the influence of Greek letter societies.

Is this heresy? Would this eliminate all motive for interest in elections, cause the withdrawal of fraternity support to colorful rallies and faction meetings, and cut that record 2,300 down to an interested few? The answer can be found in part, strange as it seems, in women's activities on the Nebraska campus.

Fundamental parts of their system are: The elimination of political parties, factions, and alliances between sororities; establishment of a point system to exterminate the activity worker who wears an extra vest for badges, and now, inauguration of classes to train future activities leaders. Scoff if you like, but look at the results.

More women participated in activities this year than in any previous year in the university's history. Sororities have lent better support to their candidates than when they were running as nominees of political cliques. The interorganization council has secured observance of the point system, bolstering every woman's organization by removing those who belong for membership alone.

No Snap.

But can such systems be applied to men's activities? Both the point system and faction elimination would be difficult to establish.

BARBS TO HOLD PICNIC ON SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Interclub Council Elects Tom Peterson, Social Chairman.

Plans for a picnic for all barb students to be held Sunday, May 24, at 6:30, were made at the barb interclub council meeting, Tuesday evening in room 8, University hall.

The picnic will be sponsored jointly by the barbs, A. W. S. League and the barb interclub council. All those who wish to attend will meet at Ellen Smith hall at 5:30. Transportation will be provided.

Tom Peterson was elected social chairman to replace Byrle Shuck. Shuck was forced to resign after he was elected president of the barb council.

Proposed at the last meeting of the council by James Marvin and George Pipal, senior and junior class presidents, the plan of departmental organization would empower the present heads of executive boards in each college to act together in senior class days projects. Included in those proposed in the constitution of the group are plans for a student-alumni relations bureau to lobby and contact for larger legislative appropriations for the university in each unicameral district, to distribute senior announcements, and to execute plans for class organization.

Still Hope for Funds.

Regarding student union funds Hill stated, "President Roosevelt issued a statement two days ago declaring that PWA in which we are interested would continue in a modified form. The PWA has not yet reached the senate but there seems to be an even chance that it will pass. There are those two sources possible."

Should the PWA fail to pass and PWA funds be insufficient to include the Nebraska project, attention will be turned to state financing.

Sites for the building have been considered the last week by student and faculty committees, according to Virginia Selleck, who is on the student council committee. An L or box shaped structure is proposed for the location occupied by Ellen Smith hall with a library to be built in the future between that building and Social Sciences hall. Another site suggested is that now used for university tennis courts.
