

NEWS PARADE

By Ralph Woodruff

A rift in the dark clouds hovering over the international situation has appeared recently in the form of the proposal sponsored by Great Britain, France and the United States that the currencies of the world be stabilized.

Before this move was made the world was in an economic uproar because of a continuous effort of each country to cheapen its money. The country with the cheapest currency has the advantage in foreign trade. To illustrate this with the simplest possible example—Suppose that France and America are on the gold standard and that America devalues its money by half the amount of gold it formerly contained. This means that a bushel of American wheat which sold for 20 gold francs will now sell for 10 gold francs because the dollar with which the exporter pays for the wheat contains only half as much gold as it formerly did. Of course, this gives the American producer a decided advantage over the French producer because he can now sell his wheat for half the price he did before the devaluation of the franc.

The countries of the world tried to take advantage of each other by means of this trick. Japan devalued her yen early in the depression with the hope of gaining some of the foreign trade away from America. This move put the American and English competitors of the Japanese at such a disadvantage that unemployment and otherwise desperate economic conditions forced first the English and then the Americans to devalue their currencies. The French held out for a long time, but recently were compelled to reduce the value of the franc in order to compete with other nations with devalued currencies. The rest of the countries of the world joined in the devaluation free-for-all.

This war of devaluation naturally had a very unfavorable effect on foreign trade. Producers would not invest money because they knew that they would likely lose all of their investment because of some change in the monetary system. Nations who didn't devalue their currencies were forced to restrict imports in order to protect their producers. This made very unsatisfactory economic conditions as well as causing much of the international hard feeling and war talk.

After the recent devaluation of the franc, England, France and the United States agreed not to cheapen their currencies further and thus end the currency war which has been the cause of so much international trouble. It was hoped that the other nations of the world will fall in line with Great Britain, the United States and France in agreeing to stabilize their currencies.

It was feared that Italy and Germany would take advantage of the tri-power agreement, and try to better their condition by devaluing their currency further.

However, Mussolini is co-operating with the other nations. In a recent move he placed the Italian lira on its former basis in relation to the pound and dollar and has agreed not to devalue it further.

Thus it appears that the world may have stable international currency, with increased confidence among producers as the doubt as to the monetary situation is removed. This increased confidence will bring about increased trade and increased prosperity in all countries concerned. Perhaps it is the beginning of international economic cooperation which will abolish tariffs and eliminate the distrust and inequality which is the cause of the present war threat.

GRANT REYNARD ILLUSTRATES STEPS OF ETCHING PROCESSES

Expert Emphasizes Necessity of Desire to Do Well in Order to Attain Proper Success in Major Fields of Activity.

Grant Reynard, etching expert, presented an illustrated lecture at Morrill hall yesterday afternoon. Mr. Reynard is a native of Grand Island, Neb., now residing in Jersey City, New York.

Protesting against Nebraska climate, as the dust burts his implements, Mr. Reynard proceeded to make an etching for the benefit of the audience, narrating his many experiences he worked. For his first step in the process, he spread molten wax over a hot copper plate, distributing it evenly. Then, with a finely pointed instrument, he drew his picture on the wax and literally "spat" out the acid used to "bite" out the lines and carbon tetrachloride to take off the wax. Ink followed and the print was complete.

When a young man Mr. Reynard went east, expecting to draw goats and nude women romping in the woods. He showed some of his first efforts to Willa Cather, who the fall and winter program of the emergency peace campaign as one of 200 national speakers.

Officials in the campaign consider Miss Green a young leader of international thought in the movement which aims to keep the United States from war. Collegiate groups, church societies, labor organizations, and business clubs have all been synchronized into this powerful movement. Special meetings will be held in October and November throughout the country culminating on Armistice day in huge mass peace gatherings.

Miss Green, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, has been in charge of student Y. W. activities on the campus for the past year and has been active since her student days in the peace movement.

Two institutions of international relations have been attended by Miss Green and she has traveled in Europe with the Sherwood Eddy Seminar spending ten days at Geneva during a session of the League of Nations.

Scheduled as a special attraction of the mixer, the band will broadcast over station KFOR from 9:30 to 10 o'clock.

Chaperones who will be present for the mixer include: Prof. and Mrs. Anton Frolic and Mr. and Mrs. S. Anderson.

Miss McLendon, who was an Alpha Phi at Missouri University, is vice president of the Jackson county (Kansas City) Young Democratic Club. An article appearing in the Kansas City Star, from which the following excerpts are taken, was read before the housemothers of the campus assembled in meeting yesterday morning with Miss Amanda Herper, dean of women, after more important business had cleared the chairman's table.

"No one ever tells a prospective chaperon, hostess, house mother or whatever her title, just what her duties are to be. These are vaguely defined as 'housekeeping, acting as hostess, keeping up the morale of the house and the physical well-being of the girls.'"

"Living with a score or so of independent and entirely sophisticated young persons, I had as many different and definite ideas of the meaning of freedom, which may show itself in a half-concealed disdain of the few rules and restraints imposed upon them. Prior

PANHELLENIC REVIEWS PLANS FOR ANNUAL TEA

When a sorority housemother tells all that's news.

And when that college chaperon's confession catches the administrative eye of Nebraska's dean of women, it's news that every coked and coed should keep posted on, lest the misdeeds of their Kansas University brothers and sisters affect the campus curfew of their own institution.

Not that Nebraska's girls would do such a thing, but—

An article appearing in the Kansas City Star, from which the following excerpts are taken, was read before the housemothers of the campus assembled in meeting yesterday morning with Miss Amanda Herper, dean of women, after more important business had cleared the chairman's table.

COACH BIBLE ISSUES HUSKERS' SAILING ORDERS FOR WEEKEND CRUISE IN GOPHER TERRITORY

Coach Dana X. Bible, before each and every out-of-town football game, maps out an itinerary for his Huskers. Yesterday he issued a mimeographed copy to each man on the squad so that each might start making plans for the three-day jaunt to Minnesota.

Here's the itinerary:

Friday, Oct. 9, 7 p. m.—An as yet unselected squad of about 33 Huskers, coaches and assistants will board a Burlington train on the first leg of the trek.

8:15 p. m.—Cornhuskers et al will arrive in Nebraska's metropolis, Omaha, so that the Omahans can say hello and goodbye to their kindfolk.

Special Out of Omaha.

9:15 p. m.—On a special Chicago & Northwestern train the Nebraskaans encourage will pull out of Omaha.

Saturday, Oct. 10—7:30 a. m.—After sleeping like a kit of kittens (or is that B. & O. sales talk?) the Huskers will arrive in St. Paul on "the day of days."

7:45 a. m.—Breakfast will be served on the diner. Diner will be set out with the two sleepers containing the football squad in a "quiet and secluded" place near the Union station in St. Paul.

11:00 a. m.—A pre-game lunch at the Commodore for the Huskers.

12:15 p. m.—Crosstown trip via automobile to Memorial stadium.

in Minneapolis. Believe it or not, it's closer for the Huskers to stay in a St. Paul hotel and then go to the stadium in Minneapolis than it is to stay in a Minneapolis hotel.

Steaks and Trimmings.

5:45 p. m.—Post-game dinner at the Commodore, and then Saturday night is "Husker night" in the Twin Cities.

TEAMS SET SALE OF 20,000 N STAMPS AS GOAL IN 1936 DRIVE

Sixty-Two Girls Participate in Advertising for Homecoming.

Pointing toward the sale of 20,000 N stamps before the completion of the drive on Oct. 31, 21 teams, under the direction of the A. W. S. board, turned in receipts for nearly 10,000 stamps at a report meeting held yesterday afternoon.

Competing for the prize which is to be awarded to the team selling the highest number of stamps, the Alpha Xi Delta team, composed of Lois Cooper and Carol Sims turned in cash for the sale of 3,400 stamps at the first report meeting. The Kappa Kappa Gamma team made up of Harriet Cummer and Elizabeth Waugh reported the second highest total.

The freshman girl who has sold the largest number to date is Mary Jo Henn, Tri-Delt.

Sixty-two Participants.

"With 62 girls participating in the drive, a large number of stamps have already been disposed of," Martha Morrow, chairman of the drive stated, "but in order that we may attain the goal which has been set, we are urging that every student on the campus co-operate by purchasing a few of the stamps."

Held for the purpose of advertising the university and to remind graduates of the annual celebration of Homecoming, the drive is scheduled to continue till Oct. 31 and will include a thorough canvass of the campus and downtown district before the close of the sale, according to Miss Morrow.

In concluding her report, Miss Morrow emphasized the necessity of all sales teams reporting their results on Thursday, Oct. 8, in the dining room of Ellen Smith hall sometime between 4 and 6 o'clock.

YOUNG CITIZEN TESTS TO START THIS MONTH

Extension Division Aids in Selection of Prominent Boys, Girls.

Several thousand tests are being distributed this week by the university extension department which will determine the ten outstanding high school boys and girls in the state of Nebraska.

The extension division is again co-operating with the American Legion and the Omaha World Herald in conducting another annual Young Citizen's contest. This contest consists of three eliminations, county, district, and final. The county contests will be held in the respective county seats on Saturday, Oct. 10, where two boys and two girls will be selected as winners. These papers will be forwarded to the university extension division where, with the aid of the department of educational psychology, the district winners will be named.

The two boys and two girls from each of the 13 American Legion districts in the state will be given a two day's stay in Omaha with all expenses paid. They will compete in the final elimination contest and the ten winners will be given medals.

CAMPUS BEAUTIES TO ENTER NAMES IN CONTEST TODAY

Cornhusker Allows Each Group One Nominee for 20 Books.

Cornhusker staff will open nominations for 1937 beauty queens today. The contest, held in conjunction with the Cornhusker subscription sales drive, allows each sorority and organized bar group to nominate one candidate for each of 20 books.

Bill Marsh, editor in chief of the annual, also announced that reservations for Cornhusker pictures may be made beginning today. All photographs of this year's book week, taken by Tommen's studio, located at 226 So. 11.

Urge Students to Co-operate.

"We urge all students to co-operate with us in having their photographs taken as soon as possible," Marsh declared. "It is the hope of the staff that this work will be completed by the 15th of November."

Remarking on the reduction in the cost to students of this year's annual, Sid Baker, business manager, outlined the charges of the photographs appearing in the book. Photographs appearing in the junior or senior sections will cost $2.25, and those appearing in the fraternity and sorority sections will cost $1. An innovation is the combination price of printing of a picture in both the class and society groups for $2.50. An added attraction is the offer made by the business staff of a copy of Beard's "Manual of American College Fraternities" to all fraternities and sororities who complete their entire roster with pictures. This is a unique manner sections and house sections.

Queen Section Unique.

"An outstanding feature of this year is both the junior or senior to be employed in selecting the six Cornhusker beauty queens," Baker remarked. "Instead of sending pictures to a disinterested Hollywood movie star, we will allow students who really know the candidates decide who are the most beautiful."

According to Baker, the first elimination will be by means of a primary election, probably to be held in conjunction with the campus election of Nebraska Sweetheart and Honorary Colonel. Each student who has purchased a Cornhusker will be allowed to cast six votes in the primary, three for the first three of his choice, two for those ranked second, and one for the last.

BARB COUNCIL VOTES FOR SERIES OF HOPS

Supported by Crowd, Profits Unaffiliated to Continue Cornhusker Dances.

Encouraged by the gay crowd which attended the first "Cornhusker Hop" and by the resulting black figures on the "assets" side of the ledger, the Barb Council at their regular meeting last evening, voted to continue with a series of social parties that will help all University students become better acquainted. "It was the opinion of the entire Council," declared Maxine Durand, president of the Barb organization, "that the success of this first party has paved the way to many more."

With representatives of almost all athletic clubs present, the ruling was adopted that every team must be represented at every meeting of the Interclub Council. In the event that a team is not represented, ten points will be subtracted from that team's score. This action was taken in order to force the different athletic teams to keep better posted on all activities.

HOUSEMOTHER'S JOB IS NO 'PIPE' COURSE

to my arrival I felt I had a fairly broad and tolerant idea concerning the younger generation. My figure is lithe and I am a wide traveler, yet I was "dated" at once as being mid-Victorian when I suggested that public love making was embarrassing and out of taste and that I much preferred to enter the house without feeling I should encounter some young couple wrapped in the close embrace of leave-taking, especially since the young man probably would return immediately after the dinner hour.

"The days pass swiftly, punctuated by more dances, more week-end more classes, which are cheerfully cut if some counter attraction is offered; the movies with their student audiences, stamping, laughing, hissing, and sometimes, when really stirred, strangely silent."

"The pledge dance is next under consideration, and the table talk is centered about the men to be asked."

"I don't care, I think he is the nuts."

"Oh, do you like him? He is certainly nothing to look at, with his air cooled teeth."

"He's no ball of fire to strike you dumb."

"Now, my little cream puff, don't waste your time on him. He plays around with all the girls."

"Well, what of it? Let him gather the lipstick while he may."

"Then the result of these edifying comments a few weeks later: "Three men to each girl, a long 'stag line.' The girls in their backless evening gowns swaying languorously in the arms of their partners, looking resting on cheek, and revolving slowly around the dimly lighted room to the crooning strains of the latest dance hit. The house silver and all removable articles are safely locked away from any playful or light fingered guest wishing a souvenir, the dignified 'bouncer' is at the door."

After the Ball.

"I received, and then remaining unnoticed, together with the rest of the furniture, until the dance was over, but spent the long hours darting hither and thither, up stairs and down. At last it was all over; the floors were strewn with cigarette butts, ash and matches. Nothing was where it should have been and everything was chaos. I saw a few stray bottles tucked under a couch or back of a window curtain. I smiled wearily at the girls as they ran up the stairs, slouping and laughing, locked my door and got into bed with aching back and feet."
