Pi Phi Gets

More Than Expected.

Eleanor "Mickey" Dainer called the Unit Drug the other night and ordered a bottle of wave set. The sticky stuff arrived and she proceeded to wave her hair and go to bed. Came the dawn and Miss Dainer inspected her head... something was wrong! The bottle contained not wave set but hand lotion.

Phi Mu Pledges

Sneak With Silver.

Monday night the Phi Mu pledge class vanished on a betel nut night, taking with them all the Phi Mu silver. Actives sent a call of distress to the Beta house across the street and in no time at all the Betas rushed over with enough eating utensils for everybody. Later in the evening the pledge class returned the silver and serenaded the Betas... a thank you!

Rex Weber's Interpretation of 'Brother Can You Spare a Dime?' Brings Orchids from Audiences

"Brother can you spare a dime?" Several years ago thousands of men, disheartened and ready to leave life, tramped the sidewalks and sobbed out this plea. Years have elapsed, but still it is not unusual to be accosted in front of a grimy cafe and asked the question, "Friend, I'm hungry, won't you buy me something to eat?"

And probably because Jay Gorney, who is said to have "discovered" Shirley Temple, or E. W. "Zip" Harburg, who is now working at Warner Bros. studios, were approached in the same manner by would study his patient, then I see what's ailing them and try to correct it. There are very few times when it is really hard to put yourself over to an audience and unless it is necessary, never do it. I've been told that Rex Weber is the laziest actor exist-

MAGAZINE ARTICLE OFFERS POINTERS TO DATING COEDS

Not all lessons come in textbooks, nor is mother's advice to be a good girl, join the Y, go to chapel and get high marks, all that a young hopeful of the class of '40 will need to make herself a howling success in college. At least if one is to believe 23 year old Frances Ayres who offers a few hints for coping with the etiquette and customs of the coeducational world in "The Woman's Home Companion" this month.

So when picking your wardrobe of correct campus clothes, coeds, toss in this set of rules:

1. Don't spoil the illusion of last night's date by appearing at your eight o'clock half dressed and half made up in your mad dash for class. Genuine popularity is an everyday affair and the greatest mistake a college girl, or any other, can make is in not realizing that she is on parade both day and night.

College Gossip.

2. Remember that college is like a small gossip town. Scandal goes likely-out thru its dorms, sororities and frats and reputations are made or lost at bull sessions. College will rest its judgment on the first impression you make, so let that be a good one.

3. The popular coed is sincere and friendly. She is unaffected and a "swell" date because she is well groomed and suitably dressed, interesting to talk with as she has a conversational line that varies from intellectual seriousness to silly frivolity, and she always pays her dates the compliment of having a marvelous time.

4. Never forget, for the boy friend, word that the kiss that is hard to get is twice as sweet.

Lines Antique.

5. Lines are sadly out of date and are not being handed out by the smart young modern. Don't flatter all your dates by telling them that they have Gable shoulders for its a sad reckoning with a few of the boys get together.

6. Boys are necessities at college but after all there are many hours a day when one must rely on the company of the fairer sex, and they may have brothers or extra boy friends worth considering.

Don't miss anything that college can give. Every dance, rally football game and meeting is a part of the happiest and most carefree life you will ever know. The way to leadership is not too difficult but it is a combination of talent, personality and a little hard work.

8. Keeping your marks up to standard is after all what enables you to have time to fill in four delightful years of fun—studies are important!

ing but anyhow I want to accomplish my purpose." From Lincoln Mr. Weber goes to the Yacht Club in Chicago. There he will entirely change his skits and will act an entirely different part.

"Well, I see that the lights are blinking, which means that the stage show is ready to go on. I'm sorry I must leave, but do stay and see the show. You ask why I like the stage? First of all I love the stage and second I must make my living this way. You see, if I didn't make a living this way, I might have to tramp the streets and plead, "Brother can you spare a dime?"

dele", and "Si tra i ceppo", from Handel's "Berenice". The German selections "Er ist gekommen" by Robert Franz and "Das sterbende Kind" by Von Feltz and "Ah! mon fils" from the French opera, "Le Prophete" by Meyerbeer will be included in the second, or modern foreign group.

Completing her recital, Mrs. Diers will sing four American compositions, Cadman's "O Moon Upon the Water", La Forge's "My Love and I", Warner's "We Two Together", and "Pipes o' Pan" by Hazel Gertrude Kinsella. The latter number was dedicated to Helped Elect Roosevelt.

"If I would accept credit for anything at all, I would like to accept just a small bit of credit in helping to elect Franklin Roosevelt last 1932. With conditions as they were, I feel that this song did aid slightly in the president's election," the actor responded as he donned the three-inch orange noctuelle which he uses in his present appearance.

But Rex Weber is not just a singer. Taking the part of a 65 year old man, he appeared in the "Three-Penny Opera" in the Empire theater of New York. He has acted abroad and really considers himself a natural actor. "I was formerly a reporter and interpreter for a Jewish newspaper, and thru this position I had an opportunity to spend much of my time attending theaters. Finally I became so interested that I took small parts in some of the shows and then finally I came to realize that I loved the stage. Therefore I took it up as a profession," he said while he slipped on a pair of baggy pants and 18-inch shoes.

Acting Can Be Overdone.
"I have found that it never pays to overdo on the stage. I study my audience just as a doctor
