Prep Football Stars Guests at N. U. Grid Graduation Exercises

FRED WARE PRIES OFF DOPE BUCKET LID FOR '37 SLATE

Sport Scribe Pays Tribute
To Sparkplugs of Past
Gridiron Roster.

By Frederick Ware.

(Sports Editor, Omaha World-Herald. Who will fill the yawning vacancies created by the gridiron graduation of Lloyd Cardwell, Sam'l Francis, Ronnie Douglas, Lester McDonald, Virg Yelkin, Ken McGinnis and Jack Ellis. Among these seven are some of the grandest backs and ends ever to wear the scarlet.

When one reviews the lusty accomplishments of Cardwell, Francis and McDonald, he is inclined to say that long Octobers and Novembers will pass before he gazes upon their likes again. Then he reflects that it wasn't many seasons past when Lawrence Ely earned Kudos All-America by his robust clairvoyance at defensive center. And he remembers that the deeds that won George Henry Sauer similar gaudy recognition are even newer in history. Yet this fall there were Sam'l Fran-

FINAL COL-AGRI-FUN PRACTICES SET FOR TONIGHT, THURSDAY

Plans Near Completion for Presentation of Revue
Saturday.

With dress rehearsals of all skits and curtain acts set for tonight and Thursday night, final arrangements for the presentation of the 1936 Col-Agri-Fun show are being completed, according to John Bengtson, manager of the presentation. Sponsored as an annual affair by ag campus students, the revue will be given on Saturday evening, Dec. 12, at 8 o'clock in the Student Activities building on the Holdrege campus.

Seven skits and eight curtain acts will make up the program for the presentation this year, according to Bengtson's announcement, and following the conclusion of the revue a dance will be held at the Activities building.

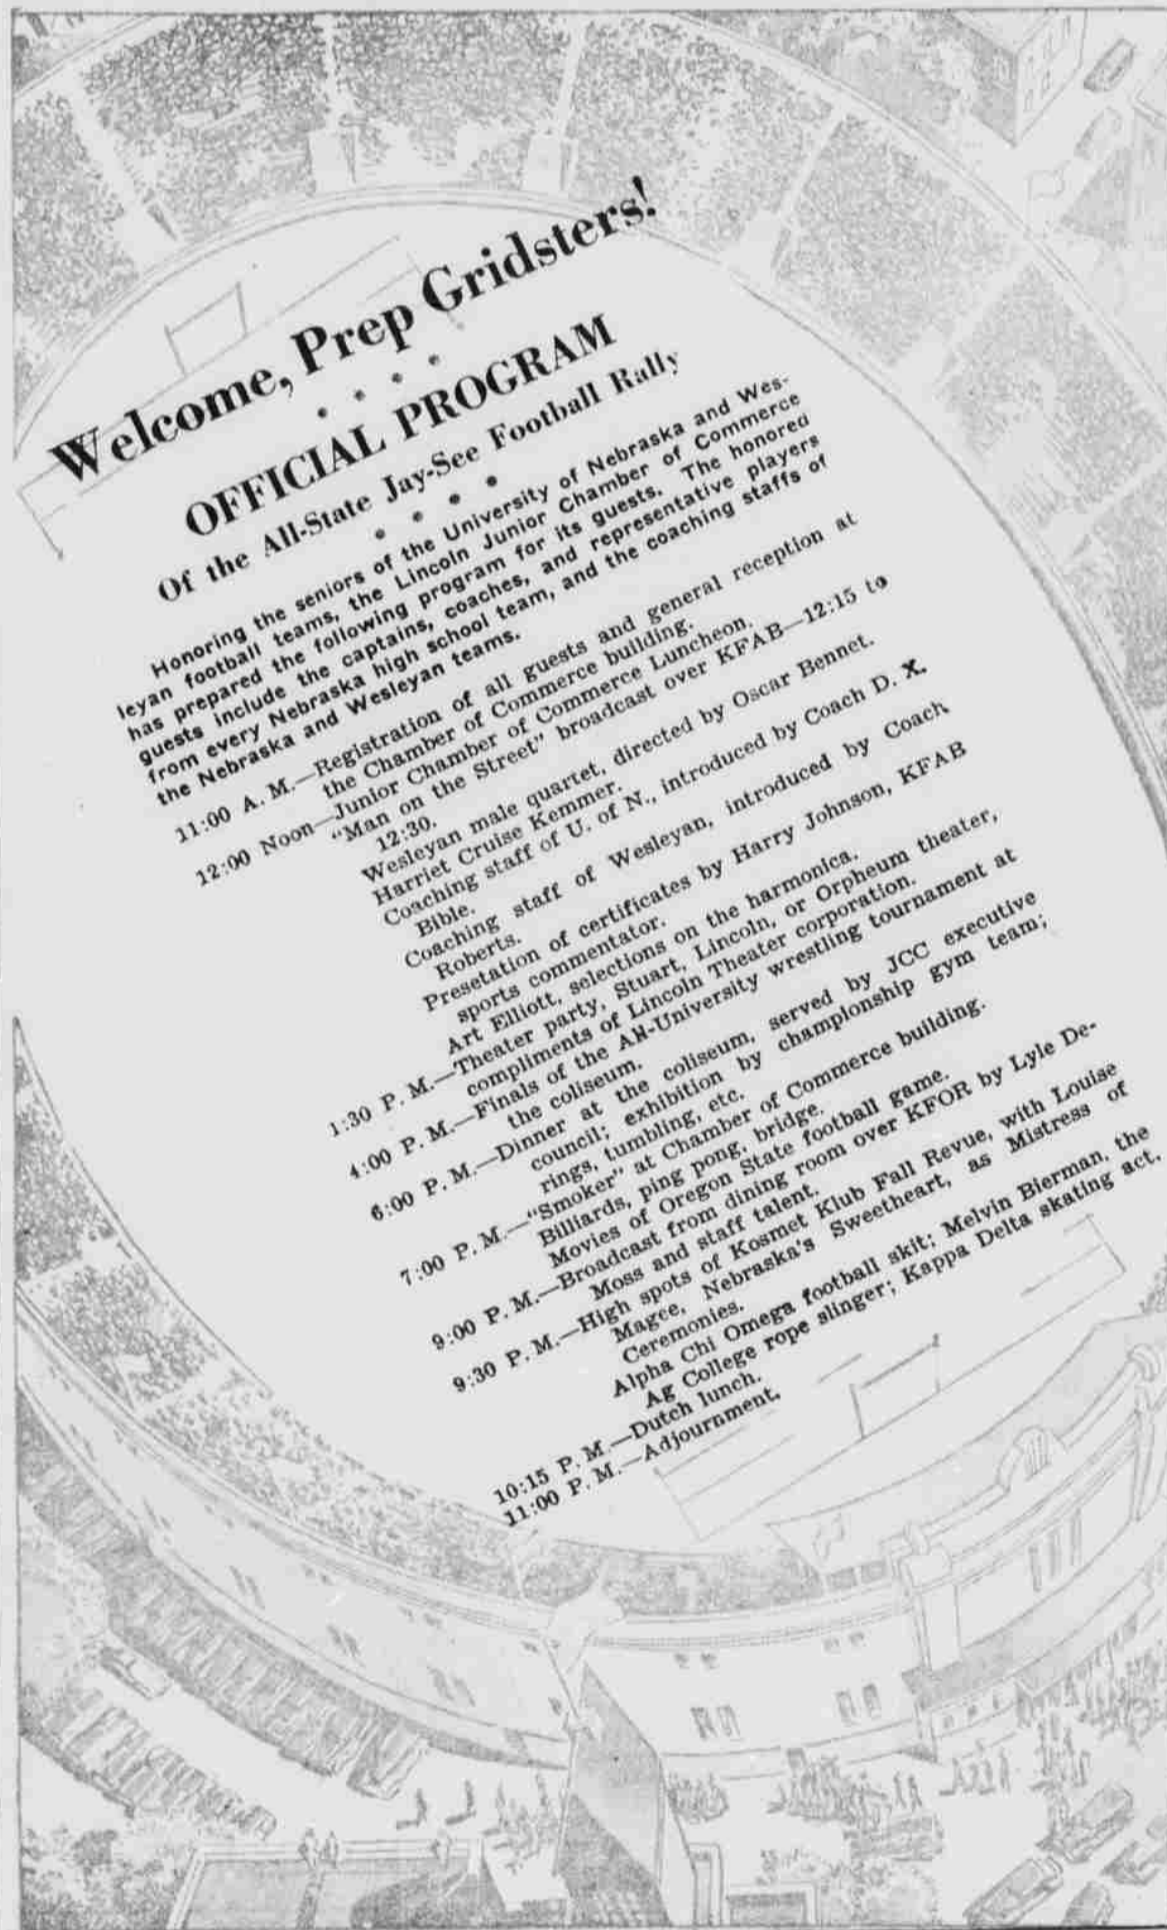

Those skits, as chosen by the Col-Agri-Fun board to make up the major part of the revue this year include: A number entitled "Loose Nuts" to be presented by the Ag College Boarding club; a "Man On the Street" number by Farm House; "The Three Bears" by the 4-H club; a "Farm Sale" by members of Alpha Gamma Rho; "Evolution of Love" by the Farm Operators; "The March of Time" by the Ag Cafeteria club, and a special number by a group

JANE WALCOTT FILLS NEWS EDITOR'S POST New Appointment Follows Recent Resignation of Staff Member.

Jane Walcott, junior from Lincoln, was appointed Monday by the chairman of the board of publications to the position of Daily Nebraskan news editor, following the resignation of Eleanor Clizbe.

Miss Walcott was editor of the society column at the time of her appointment, and served as news editor during the second semester of last year. Miss Clizbe served two semesters on the Nebraskan in the position of news editor.

Barbara Rosewater, Omaha sophomore, has been appointed to fill Miss Walcott's post as society editor for the remainder of the semester.

Pacifists Present Strange View Of Intelligent Entertainment on Evening of Military Ball Affair

By Ed Murray.

On the same evening that Nebraska's traditional and glorified military ball was held so successfully, a strange, unheard of affair pertaining to university students and some others was also held in the city of Lincoln.

This eccentric get-together of what most people think of as human oddities was held in a private hall without ostentation, fanfare, precedent, publicity, or other glad-some fixings. It was sponsored by a group of students whose name is not sufficiently familiar to our readers to be mentioned.

If a contrast is permissible between the military ball, which receives social and apparently intelligent sanction, and this out of the way affair, namely, a pacifist ball, a few things that did not happen at the latter gathering may be mentioned.

No honorary colonel was presented, although there was some thought among the pacifists of the most rational member of the feminine sex present. There was no colorful dramatization of patriotism, courage, and citizenship, but there was some rather spirited conversation among those present concerning what could be

WILLIAMS TO EXPLAIN COOPERATIVE SYSTEM AT Y.M.C.A. MEETING

Senior Student Reports on Studies Made During Tour of Europe.

Speaking on "Cooperatives in Europe" which he studied during a trip through Europe last year, Dan Williams, Arts and Sciences senior, will address the regular Y.M.C.A. meeting tomorrow night at 7:30 in the Temple.

Second in a series of meetings on economics, and first of a series on cooperatives, this meeting will feature a speaker who spent six months touring Europe last year, and who made a special study of the cooperative system as it originated and is practiced in Europe.

"This talk on a different system of business organization and practices that are very widespread in Europe today should be of interest to all wide-awake students," stated Howard Wright, Y.M.C.A. president.

The meeting is open to all men students.

GALLIC CLUB TO HEAR SPEECH, SING CAROLS

Instructor French Talks
To Cercle Francais
On Wednesday.

Reginald French, instructor of the Romance Language department, will address the Cercle Francais Wednesday, December 9. The meeting will be held at Morrill hall in gallery A at 8 o'clock.

Christmas carols sung in French by those attending will constitute the remainder of the program. Lenore Teale, president, urges all students interested to attend.
