all-university of Nebraska convocation at the Temple theater, Monday, at 11 a. m.

Dr. Harold Stoke of the department of political science scheduled the convocation on this day because of a consensus of opinion at the last senate meeting that such programs might be held on days other than Tuesday and Thursday. Instructors if they desire, will be allowed to dismiss 11 o'clock classes so that students may attend the program.

Dr. Tittle has appeared in addresses at important centers in the east and west, and gave the commencement address here at Nebraska three years ago. In his talk at the Temple Monday he will discuss among other things, religion and education.

His church is the one attended by the majority of Northwestern students. He also gave the Earl lectures at the Pacific school of religion, the Gates Memorial lectures, and Wilkin lectures at the University of Illinois, besides appearing as special lecturer in various other colleges and universities over the country. Dr. Tittle is a trustee of Northwestern, is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Kappa Psi fraternities. He is also an author of note, having written such works as "What Must the Church Do to Be Saved," "A World That Cannot Be Shaken," and "A Way to Life."

CHICAGO THEOLOGIST PLANS CONFERENCES

Palmer to Arrive Tuesday For Religious Talks With Students.

Dr. Albert W. Palmer, president of the Chicago Theological Seminary will be on the campus Tuesday to confer with students who are interested in religious vocations. Appointments may be made to meet Dr. Palmer by students either in groups or individually, thru C. D. Hayes, Y. M. C. A. secretary, or thru Miss Mildred Green, Y. W. C. A. secretary.

Dr. Palmer is one of a group of church dignitaries who will be in Lincoln to attend the ministers' convocation. Before accepting the presidency of the Chicago seminary in 1930, Dr. Palmer toured and lived in Hawaii and "Orientals in America." That shows why he is considered one of America's leading authorities on the life and problems of the Far East.

ISSERMAN WILL SPEAK ON MODERN RELIGION

Religious Welfare Council to Hear St. Louis Rabbi Tuesday.

Luncheon speaker at the meeting of the Council of Religious Welfare in the Grand hotel, Tuesday noon, will be Rabbi Ferdinand Isserman, of the Temple of Israel, St. Louis, Mo. After his introduction, which will be by Rabbi J. Ogle, Rabbi Isserman will address the group on the subject, "The Message of Religion for Our Modern World."

In addition to his acclaim as a brilliant student and orator, Rabbi Isserman is the author of several books, the best known of which is "Rebels and Saints." The Nebraska Ministers' convocation has brought Rabbi Isserman to Lincoln as one of its guest speakers.

According to Miss Grace Spacht, program chairman in charge of arrangements, anyone interested in Rabbi Isserman's subject will be welcome to attend the council meeting.

GLENN KLINGMAN, MAGDANZ DIRECT NEW PUBLICATION

'Cornhusker Countryman' Chosen as Title for Ag Magazine.

Donald Magdanz and Glenn Klingman were named editor and business manager respectively of the revived ag college monthly magazine, "Cornhusker Countryman," by the newly formed ag publications board which made the staff selections Saturday and voted to retain the name of Cornhusker Countryman for the monthly periodical which was discontinued in 1933.

Albert Moseman was selected as associate agriculture editor who will have general supervision under the editor's direction of all copy representing the ag students and will assist with proof reading. Assistant agriculture editor, are Claude King, Ward Henderson, Harry Bell, Rex Brown, Wallace Chaloupka, Harold Benn, Glenn Thacker, Russell Bierman, Roger Cunningham and Bob Rupp.

Doris Gray, Home Ec Editor. As associate home economic editor, Doris Gray will supervise all copy for the Cornhusker Countryman dealing with the home economics department. Lois Giles, Sarah Harmon and Nellie Lippitt are associate home economics editors.

DeLoris Bors and Dennis Clark were named associate business managers to assist Klingman as business manager. Edna Mae Crain, Hubert Alloway, Carl Swanson, Denver Gray, Clifford Hayne, Dale Theobald, Edwin Rousek, Leo Cooksley, Morrison Lowenstein, Wesley Lipp and Norman Gustafson were chosen as assistant business managers with duties of advertising soliciting.

Albert Nore will be in charge of subscription as circulation manager of Cornhusker Countryman. Agnes Novacek and Earl Hedlund will assist him as associate circulation managers. Assistant circulation managers are Mildred Nash, Iris Johnson, Frances Weides, Lawrence Gustafson, Frank Shipman, Melvin Glantz, Alvin Christiansen, Lillard Pratt and Edward Zahm.

Many Titles Submitted.

A large number of interesting but somewhat inappropriate titles were submitted to the ag board, but as none of the suggested names were found unanimously satisfactory, members of the ag publications board decided to keep the old title of Cornhusker Countryman. The monthly magazine will make its initial appearance on the ag campus in February.

An indication of zealous student interest in the revived publication was given by the large number of staff applicants who filed with the ag pub board.

Ogden Riddle and Ruth Sic are student members of the ag publications board, a subsidiary body to the official ag board, organized for the sole purpose of supervising the magazine. They were elected at a mass meeting of all students interested in the revival of the ag publication. Dean W. W. Burr appointed the following faculty members as board members: Miss Ruth Odell, English department; Miss Mary Edith Carse, home economics; Mrs. Russell Prescott, agricultural editor; and Prof. Frank E. Mueschl, poultry husbandry.

Plans for the Cornhusker Countryman include fashioning it after the old ag college monthly magazine. The editorial policy of the periodical will be determined when editorial staff members meet early this week. Feature articles on student life, including ag college re-entire magazine on which work is to start immediately.

A little, blond coed at the University of Utah germinated the "kissing strike" that paved the way for similar movements on many of the college campuses throughout the country.

This trend brought matters to a head. Science versus romance. There were no two ways about it. Since the men were unyielding the girls had to "kiss and make up."

Dr. Guilford has also been appointed associate editor of the new psychological journal entitled Psychological Record, published at the University of Indiana.

MISS HENKE, MULLINS WIN DRAWING AWARDS

Sophomore Students Gain First Mention Plus in Architect Event.

Miss Winifred Henke, Wray, Colorado, and Mr. Robert Mullins, Lincoln, shared highest honors by being awarded First Mention Plus at the Sophomore class judgment in the department of architecture Thursday afternoon, Jan. 7, for their drawings of "An Artist's Studio."

The drawings are hung in the main corridor of the department of architecture, ground floor, Temple building, where they will remain on display for several days. Each drawing is monochromatic, and contains several different shades of the same color.

Several of the plans provide for a studio enclosed by an outside wall of glass, insuring the artist ample light in his work room.

Universities Employ Artists.

In the problem it was learned that "a new practice in middle western teaching technique has been inaugurated by employing resident artists at state universities. The University of Wisconsin has employed John Stuart Currey, while the University of Iowa has employed its native son, Grant Wood. Studios have been built for these artists where they may work in peace. The benefits derived by the state are from the presence of these men as well as the aid which they give to young painters."

It was assumed, for the purpose of making this problem specific, that the University of Nebraska might wish to embark on a similar project. The studio was, theoretically, to be erected in some rather isolated but accessible part of Antelope Park.

Members of the jury were Prof. Dwight Kirsch, chairman of the department of fine arts; Prof. Linus Burr Smith, chairman of the department of architecture; and Mr. Marvin L. Robinson, instructor in the department of architecture.

Ten undergraduate students working under Josephine E. Tilden, professor of botany at the University of Minnesota, have the trying task of finding names for 100,000 plants never previously classified.

LAW SCHOOL ADDS THREE COURSES IN FEDERAL SYSTEMS

Orfield, Nutting, Doyle Offer Advanced Student Change In Curricula.

With the opening of the second semester, Nebraska law college is offering three new courses to advanced law students. Dealing with federal and public law, the new courses were termed by Dean H. H. Foster of the law college as a "valuable addition to the curriculum."

Prof. Lester B. Orfield, who is returning from Washington after having served as senior council for the social security board, will offer a new course on social security legislation. Legality of such legislation and its possibilities will be thoroly dealt with in the course.

Nutting Teaches Legislation.

The whole field of legislation will be treated in another new course to be handled by Prof. Charles B. Nutting. While at the University of Texas last year Professor Nutting, who is returning to Nebraska, instructed a similar course. Technical details as to drafting, titling, and the passage of valid statutes will be taken up, as well as the principles of construction of statutes.

A third addition is one by Prof. James A. Doyle on federal jurisdiction and procedure. Here the scope of federal court jurisdiction will be investigated, and the principles relating to such jurisdiction. Cases in all federal courts, up to and including the supreme court, will be studied from the standpoint of the courts' peculiar limited litigation, and the federal court procedure as contrasted to the state courts. Professor Doyle is qualified to instruct this course, having had experience as law clerk with Judge Woodrough, circuit judge of the Eighth federal district.

Second and third year law college students will have access to the new courses, which will become a permanent addition, according to Dean Foster.

BIZAD SENIORS TO SIGN FOR JOB INTERVIEWS

Bullock Asks Graduating Students to Fill Out Applicant Blanks.

Seniors in the college of Business Administration must fill out placement blanks if they wish to meet with representatives of firms seeking graduates with general business training for employment, according to Prof. Bullock.

These blanks may be secured immediately in Prof. Bullock's office, Social Science room 306. Each senior should fill out several of the blanks which will be sent to various firms which are not sending representatives for the interviews with Nebraska graduates. It is necessary to have several blanks on file also because visiting representatives often take blanks of good prospects to their company offices.

Prof. Bullock foresees a busy spring for seniors desiring interviews with business firms. He said "Judging from the response to invitations mailed recently, national as well as state and local business firms will be well represented this year."

INSPECTION DATE FOR ENGINEERING DEPT. POSTPONED

Dean O. J. Ferguson of the college of engineering received word that the examination and inspection of the engineering college here, originally scheduled for the latter part of January, has been postponed for another month. The inspection will be made by a committee representing the Engineering Council for Professional Development.
