

Engineers Schedule Ball for Week of Ivy Day

BOARD SELECTS M'CORMICK TO HEAD COMMITTEE

Ed Schmidt Named to Help Secure Orchestra, Underwriting.

Plans for an Engineering ball to be held on the university campus either during the week of Ivy day or the weekend preceding were made by the engineering executive board at a meeting last Friday. Pete Burns, president of Engineers week, announced that Weldon McCormick will head the committee to select an orchestra and secure the various societies of the engineering college to cooperate in underwriting the ball. He will be aided by Ed Schmidt.

Committees for engineering week have been selected but will not be announced until the eligibility of all members have been checked. Burns informed the group that two plaques will be awarded for the most sales of ribbons to be worn by engineering students during the week. Each of the six societies is expected to enter and sales will be computed on the point basis in proportion to the number of men belonging to each society.

Convocation Feb. 11.

The first convocation to be sponsored by the board will be held on Feb. 11 in Social Science auditorium. Although the speaker has not been selected, he will probably be one of the chief engineers on the Oakland-San Francisco bridge as that will be the topic for discussion. A second convocation will be held in the near future but Lowell Newmeyer, president of the board, was unable to name the date.

Other plans discussed at the board meeting were those for the annual Field Day on Friday after Ivy Day. A banquet will be held on that evening for all engineering faculty members and students. Although tentative plans had been made to rewrite the constitution of the organization, the board decided to let the constitution stand and to add by-laws as the meetings progress.

The engineering executive board is composed of two members of the Student Council, two on Blueprint, engineering publication and two members from each of the six engineering societies.

Engineers Plan Renovations in Old E. E. Building

The old, outmoded electrical engineering building at the university is being rearranged for the purpose of providing greater office space and more room for research. According to Prof. Oscar Edison, associate professor of electrical engineering, the present arrangement of floor space has existed for about 17 years. When renovation is complete, Professor Edison, who has been occupying the extreme south office, will be moved directly across the hall, the other members of the electrical engineering faculty moving up a notch.

This building was once the home of the mechanical engineering department and after the erection of a new mechanics building in 1910 the electrical engineering department took over the older structure from their former location in the old mechanic arts building. For several years the electrical engineering staff had to share their "new" home with the campus carpenters, this arrange-

C. SANDBURG IN HIS INIMITABLE STYLE SAYS that a caterpillar is no more than a worm in a racoon coat going for a college education, and any doubts we may have had concerning the statement were dispelled when he read an anonymous exam paper left in the Rag office. We quote: "It's yours now —, and if it wasn't for the fact that you still grade this paper, I would tell you that I hope your wife eats crackers in bed and grits her teeth in your ear. How could I help it if my Grandmother happened to get laid up about once a week, and I had to stay home? How did I know you meant it when you said to come to quiz sections and pay attention when I was there? Next semester I am going to bring a pillow to class. Look out for the shadow. I am going to haunt you all the time." Added to the end of the papers was the reader's note: "Your dreams in exam section looked decidedly like spring time dreams, and that is what one would expect from a handsome Romeo of your age." A bit peculiar, we'd say. Hum! A caterpillar may be somewhat of an overstatement.

Heart throbs and palpitations for the o. a. o. if you send her a sweet valentine from Simons'. The remembrance you choose, hose, hankies, perfume, gloves, won't miss; especially with Simon's special valentine gift wrapping—cellophane paper sprinkled with cupid's and chubby hearts. Remember your love with a gift from Simon's. and she'll remember you.

Slithering here and there at the Interfraternity last night was B. J. Hopewell, Kappa pledge, in midnight blue satin and myriads of brilliant buttons. The dress was cut low with minute straps of satin in the back, and with it she wore silver accessories.

ment continuing until 1917 when it was necessary to expand in order to instruct army men in the signal corps service. The carpenters were then moved to their present position in the west stadium.

Professor Edison expects the new offices to be ready within a few days. In spite of this more efficient arrangement of the floor space the electrical engineering building will continue to be inadequate. The problem of accommodating larger classes is becoming more acute each year, it was pointed out.

WORK OF GEORGE GROSZ FEATURES ART DISPLAY

Current Exhibition Shows Paintings of Famed German Artist.

Original paintings and drawings by George Grosz, expatriate German artist now of New York City, have been the source of much interest and comment during their showing in the fine arts department of the university. The exhibition, which is hung in the corridor on the third floor of Morrill hall, will continue until Feb. 8, and is open to the public. According to Dwight Kirsch, chairman of the fine arts department, students and visitors have been more excited by Grosz's work than by any other which has been recently exhibited. Some, responding to the dramatic quality of the pictures and the daringly individual use of color, like them instantly. Others object to the subject matter, or find them too "modern." But no one can look at them and remain utterly indifferent. They are definite in character, and their challenge is not merely that of a surface interest, say critics. Heralded by artists throuth the country, Grosz's works command high prices and are enthusiastically sought by collectors. Essentially urban, the paintings reflect the excitement, chaos, and cruelty of a metropolis. But humor is not lacking, for Grosz is a skillful caricaturist who sees the incongruities of human nature but is not too bitter about them.

FORENSIC TEAMS ARRANGE MEETS IN THREE STATES

Fourteen Husker Debaters To Speak in Kansas, Illini, Mizzou.

The debate season at the University reaches the peak of activity the next two months, with debates having been arranged not only in Lincoln but in Kansas, Illinois, and Missouri. Altogether seven teams comprising fourteen students will represent the university.

Following is the schedule as announced: Marquette university vs. Nebraska, Feb. 10 at Plattsmouth high school; subject, "All electric power utilities should be governmentally owned and operated;" representing Nebraska, Paul E. Bstandig, Lincoln, and Edmund Hollstein, Hay Springs.

University of South Dakota vs. Nebraska, Feb. 16, at 3 p. m. in Social Sciences auditorium here; subject, "Congress should be empowered to fix minimum wages and maximum hours for industry," for Nebraska, William Curtis of Arkansas City, Kas., and Leonard U. Krueger, Wallace.

Kansas State vs. Nebraska, Feb. 19, 6 p. m. before the Kiwanis club at Sabatha, Kas., and 8:30 p. m. before the Brown County Farm bureau; subject, "Kansas should adopt a system of old age pensions;" for Nebraska, James E. Murray, Lead, S. D., and Charles Reilly of Lincoln; two from the same teams will also debate at Holton, Kas., at noon, Feb. 19, before the Rotary club. At 3 p. m. Feb. 19, Kansas State and Nebraska debaters will appear over radio station KFEQ at St. Joseph; subject, "We approve of the social security act," representing Nebraska, Bryce Smith, Lincoln, and Byrle Shuck, Edgar.

Knox college vs. Nebraska, Feb. 18 at Galesburg, Ill.; subject "The Plan of Consumer Co-operatives should be Extended," Curtis and Krueger will represent Nebraska. The same men will debate the same subject with the University of Chicago and Northwestern on Feb. 18.

West Virginia university vs. Nebraska, March 10, in either Lincoln or Omaha; subject, "The Hours, Wages Question;" for Nebraska, Ernest Wintroub, Omaha, and Robert Steifler, Omaha. The same men will debate the University of Missouri in St. Louis University later in the month, and probably Washington university.

The University of Colorado-Nebaska, March 22, and a debate with Michigan State college still later are tentatively scheduled. Nebraska teams will also attend the student legislative assembly to be held in April on the Iowa State campus at Ames. An interesting variation from the usual program will be a split team debate with Doane college, in which each side will be represented by a Doane and a Nebraska speaker.
