STUDENTS ELECT MEMBERS OF PUB BOARD, COUNCIL

Polis Open for Balloting From 8:45 to 5 in Ag Hall, Temple Theatre.

Political aspirations of 70 students will be settled today when student vote fills 28 positions on the Student Council and Publications Board. Polls will open at 8:45 this morning and will close at 5 this afternoon in Temple theatre and Ag hall.

Seven students will also be elected to the Barb council by unaffiliated students in conjunction with the student council pollings today. Members from each class will be selected.

Only men students will be allowed to vote faction preference ballots, while any one holding a degree may vote a graduate college ballot unless enrolled in some professional college.

No student will be allowed to vote without presenting an identification card with an official university picture attached. This ruling, instituted this year, has been adopted to forego any possibility of substitute balloting.

UNIVERSITY CAROLERS PLAN SPRING PROGRAM

Chorus to Participate in Performance at Temple May 16.

University Carolers will participate in a varied spring program to be offered by the Lillian Helms Polley Studio at the Temple theater, Sunday evening, May 16.

The University Carolers, one of seven groups which will be presented, will give a sketch of the famous old English Ballad Opera, "The Beggar's Opera," a satire on court life at the time of the coronation of George II, was a very popular form of entertainment in colonial days.

Solo and ensemble numbers will be presented by the high school and junior high school groups. A group of fifth and sixth grade girls will sing songs from Humperdick's opera, "Hansel and Gretel."

A solo by Weinbrandt will close the program, with the choir group from Unitarian church being included in the final ensemble.

Western Union Sponsors Engineers' Day Feature

In cooperation with the officials of Engineers' night held last week, Western Union made possible one of the interesting features of the exposition by lending the school some of its equipment.

The apparatus was set up in such a manner that visitors were able to file messages with the operator who sent them on the telegraph circuit to the receiving operator. The messages were taken home by the many visitors as souvenirs.

STUDENTS OBEY ONE-THIRD RULE IN REGISTRATION

Class Schedule Regulation Enforced as Enrollment Continues Thru Week.

Regulation of class schedules requiring minimum numbers of hours to be carried after 2 p. m. or on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays went into effect yesterday morning when a week of registrations for fall classes was begun.

According to the ruling passed by the faculty senate a few months ago, one-third of each student's hours spent in classes must be scheduled to meet after 2 o'clock in the afternoon or before 12 o'clock on Tuesday, Thursday or Saturday mornings.

Because of overcrowded classrooms and no space available for additional classes, the new ruling was deemed "the only way out" by faculty members. For the first time in the history of the University, classics, sociology and freshman lecture sections are limited to a certain number of students. A total of 500 classes, as compared with 350 in previous years, will have limited enrollment in the current registration.

High School Sneakers Begin Yearly Invasion of Campus

500 Seniors Swarm Into Huskerland for Annual Sight-Seeing Tour.

By Barbara Rosewater. With the stern determination to see everything in Lincoln, including Sam Francis, Biff Jones, Lloyd Cardwell, and the Sower, 500 seniors from 14 different high schools, invaded the Nebraska campus yesterday prepared to spend eight hours of earnest investigation. They were enjoying their traditional "sneak day."

They went to the capitol building, Ag campus, the stadium, the coliseum, systematically. One group of Iowans even insisted on inspecting the library. By the time the seniors arrived at Morrill hall, however, their feet hurt. Their feet hurt quite a lot. Their decision not to miss anything and their spirit of thoroughness did an about face and now they did not want to look at any more than they had too. They sat down whenever they could.

Prof. Smith to Talk on Candid Photos Tonight

"Candid Camera, Huh!" and other prints made with miniature cameras and now on display in the Miniature Section exhibition at Morrill hall will be discussed by Prof. L. B. Smith of the architecture department at the regular May meeting of the Lincoln Camera club at 8 o'clock tonight in gallery B of Morrill hall. Ellis Smith, assistant in the physics department, will lecture on "Polarized Light."

Prof. Smith to Talk on Candid Photos Tonight

Being under the supervision of their teachers, who accompanied them on their skip day, they were compelled to make a cursory tour of the high spots. Most of the Omaha sneakers seemed to have been primed previously in the class room with considerable information about fossils, according to a member of the museum staff, but many of the other high school students did not know the difference between a fossil and a dog-bone.

Factions Present Platforms

"It's Your Move," Politicus Challenges Judiciary Committee.

By Politicus VIII. Judiciary Committee, it is your move. For the past year, we have listened to your cries for a general house cleaning in campus politics. You have heard resolutions to dissolve political factions completely. You have considered striking faction names from election ballots. You have passed legislation providing for judicial review of candidates and have even exerted this authority in specific instances.

Thru it all you have aimed at one thing, cleaner politics which you have seen fit to interpret as less politics. The whole thing is blowing back in your face today and you may do as you please. Printed campaign literature has been distributed among the various houses of the campus and has in some instances been mailed to unaffiliated students. The literature contained the names of one party's candidates, and the platform they had voted to support. The opposing faction has filed a protest, and if petitions of this protest have not reached you by now they will before the day is done. They will show you evidence of the literature circulated on the campus, and then they will turn to the Student Council Constitution, Article IV, under rules (Continued on Page 2.)

1300 TO PARTICIPATE IN PIANO FESTIVAL AT CONVENTION SATURDAY

Climax of Nebraska Music Association Meetings Scheduled May 16.

Climaxing the convention of the Nebraska Music Teachers' association this weekend, will be the second annual Piano festival, Saturday evening at 8:15 in the coliseum, a musical carnival that has this year grown to an ensemble of 400 pianists and 900 voices in mass chorus.

The pianists, 296 of whom will have been divided into adult professional, adult non-professional, young men's high school, and junior high school groups to play the sixty grand pianos, arranged on the main floor of the coliseum. All musicians will perform their work completely from memory, a qualification that no other state piano festival demands.

Literary Pastoral Exhibit Keeps Up With Springtime

Miss M. Stuff Prepares Appropriate Display of Literature

In keeping with the springtime and the call to outdoor life, Miss Marjorie Stuff, of the reference library, has prepared an exhibit of pastoral types in literature which is to be found in the hall case on the first floor of the library. The exhibit, which is arranged in chronological order from the time of its Greek origin, displays besides many old and rare books, photographic facsimiles of the original editions.

Webster's Definition. According to Miss Stuff, the pastoral, which in Webster's embodies "a poem, drama, romance describing the life and manners of shepherds, or by extension, country and outdoor life of any kind," is a sophisticated imitation of simple country life as contrasted to the actual songs or tales of shepherds. In pastoral poetry there is an element of pretense, a dream of an idyllic existence on the shepherd's hillside. The exhibit shows first the original pastorals, the Greek eclogues. The oldest, the eclogues (Continued on Page 3.)

LIBERAL

The Liberal political party was formed at the beginning of this school year because of the wide dissatisfaction with the manner in which student government has been managed during the past two years. Men have been elected to office upon pledging themselves to accomplish certain long-desired ends, and every one of those pledges has been only a vote getting campaign promise. Nothing constructive has been done, and there is much work to do. As the Daily Nebraskan stated recently in its editorial columns, "Our prayer would not be doleful if those in high office had fulfilled their responsibilities during the past year. The need would not be keenly felt had students in elective positions—principally the Student Council—increased the value of extra curricular life for the average student."

We of the liberal party feel that the time has come when that prayer must be answered, that need fulfilled. Consequently, we have organized those groups that are willing and anxious to promote the healthiest interests of the campus as a whole into a single body. We have chosen a list of candidates for this year's spring election (you can find their names elsewhere in this paper) who have pledged themselves to administer a proper prescription for our sickly student government. They will not do all their work before the election as has been the case in the past, but will wait (Continued on Page 2.)

PROGRESSIVE

A number of years ago the progressive party was founded by a group of young men on the common desire of its members to work for the welfare of the entire university. The name progressive means just what it implies: Progress and not politics. Realizing that the trust of the student body placed on its governing body cannot be one of partiality or favoritism, the progressive party has been able to continue its superior work because it holds true and fast to the aforementioned principle, namely, that of progress and not politics.

Pledged to Continue. For this year's spring election the progressive party is proud to advance a number of men for the student council and publication board who are pledged to continue the widespread innovations and reforms that are intended to bring a fuller and better student life on the Nebraska campus. Knowing full well that the men running under the progressive banner are ably qualified to continue the progressive work of bettering campus conditions year in and year out, the progressive party presents its platform, reasserting the principles and projects that the progressive leadership has administered and plans to inaugurate during the coming school year: Erecting Union Building. 1. Of greatest importance on the Cornhusker campus at the present time is the construction of the (Continued on Page 2.)
