J. Rockefeller Prentice, grandson of the late "John D.," is likely to find himself the most popular attraction on the American Dairy Science association's annual program which will be held on the agricultural college campus of the University of Nebraska June 21 to 25. According to press accounts emanating from Chicago, Prentice's home, a story was told of a plot to kidnap the late oil magnate's relative, but it turned out to be a hoax.

Prentice is being brought here as president of the American Dairy Cattle club and will describe the work of this group and the benefits resulting from the breeding of fine dairy cattle. An expert in the field, Prentice has taken up where the production, breeding or feeding, farm sanitation or quality production field and to the person whose work in the processing field is judged most meritorious by a committee from the association. His father, E. Parmalee Prentice, left off. The senior Prentice has devoted much of his time and money to the production of fine dairy cattle and it was in honor of his many achievements that the University of Nebraska awarded

University of Nebraska educators will play an important part throughout the entire program. The dairy department here has already won national recognition for its recent work in the field of dairy cattle reproduction, and these discussions and demonstrations together with addresses on the relationship of the dairy industry to other industries and the responsibilities of the dairy industry to education are among the additional innovations to be presented. Of added importance to the manufacturer's session will be the discussion of the new ice cream scoring card, under the sponsorship of Dr. P. A. Downs.

Social festivities begin Monday evening at 8 o'clock when delegates and their wives will be entertained at the East Hill Country club.

uled an afternoon conference on June 21 at which time there will be a discussion of the United States revised standards for creamery butter. The topics to be discussed are:

1. The proposed discontinuance of a score card method of grading and use in lieu thereof of a direct method.
2. The change in the range of butter scores from 75 to 95, inclusive, to 84 to 95, inclusive.
3. Proposed discontinuance of package as a quality factor in grading butter.
4. Proposed direct basis of rating the factor of flavor and defects in factors of body, color and salt.
5. Proposed consumer grades of butter.

General Session: Tuesday.

The above butter sessions will be held in the Dairy Industry building room 361. The convention proper of the American Dairy Science association begins Tuesday morning, June 22. General sessions will be held in the Student Activities building on the agricultural college campus and most of the group sessions in the Dairy Industry building. In addition to convention discussions, arrangements have been made to provide for an elaborate and significant number of demonstrations and exhibits, including visits to the university's dairy barns and laboratories. Of special interest will be the awarding of two prizes of $1,000 each furnished by the Borden company to the individual whose work in
