M'CONNELL WOULD CHANGE APPROACH TO TEACHING ENDEAVOR

Conference Speaker Urges Greater Interest in Individuals.

BY GEORGE KIMBALL.

A change, in the approach of education, from the curriculum to the student was advocated by Dr. T. R. McConnell, professor of educational psychology at the University of Minnesota, as he gave the principal address at the opening session, Tuesday morning, of Nebraska's fourth annual all-state educational conference. Speaking on "The Role of Guidance in Functional Education," Dr. McConnell indicated that educational as well as vocational guidance could not be made fully effective until such a change was brought about.

The conference opened with greetings to the teachers and supervisors delivered by Prof. R. D. Moritz, director of the University summer session. The theme of the conference, "Guidance—its concepts, its techniques and the agencies responsible," was presented and explained in detail by Prof. F. E. Henzlik, dean of the Nebraska Teachers college.

Miss Carter Speaks.
Another speaker at the first morning session was Miss Goldie Carter, counselor in the personal counseling service at the Omaha Y. W. C. A. Her subject was "Guidance . . . as seen from the aspect of the Y. W. C. A.," in which she pointed out the suitability of that institution to the carrying on of guidance work, not only for youth but for adults as well.

At the Tuesday afternoon meeting Dr. McConnell again spoke, this time on "Psychological Foundations of Guidance." In his lecture he stressed the necessity of having expert advice in the use of

High school students here attending the all state high school music course feel that they're almost a part of the university, but nevertheless they do need special supervision. The seven individuals pictured above serve as house directors for the two dormitories and as recreational leaders. They are, in the top row, left to right: Harry Ellier, boys recreational leader, and principal of the Elba high school; Howard Kirkpatrick, director of the school of music; Lowell S. De Voe, boys house director, and superintendent of the schools at Plattsmouth; and Art Ball, assistant house director, from Fremont. In the front row are Miss Frances Stowell, girls house director, and music supervisor at Colorado Springs, Colo.; Miss Lila Mae Jackson, girls recreational leader, from Beatrice; and Mrs. L. S. HIGH SCHOOL MUSICIANS NOW IN ACTION

HOWERTON PLANS A SPECIAL MUSICAL PROGRAM AS CLIMAX

BY MORTON SPENCE.

Perhaps the best musical program of the summer all state high school music course will be given at the end of the four week term, according to George R. Howerton, director of the high school chorus. "The chorus this year is the next largest in size in the five years of the course," Howerton stated. "There are 80 members this year with a possibility of more applying. The record was set last year with one hundred two members. Five years ago the charter attendance was 25."

Mr. Howerton seemed very well pleased with the voice quality of the individuals enrolled. He expressed the opinion that it was much superior to that of former years.

"The music that the group is working on this year is much more difficult but the group seems to be working very hard and above all they are working together," stated Howerton.

Howerton is the director of music at Hiram College, Hiram, Ohio, and is an authority on conducting. His work at Hiram College includes the directing of a women's chorus of 45 members, a

ANNUAL COURSE GIVES STIMULUS IN MUSIC LINES

"Created to further musical education in America and to provide both outlet and stimulus for musical talent in the youth of this country," the all state high school music course, according to its instigator, Howard Kirkpatrick, director of the university school of music, is fulfilling its purpose to a very large extent.

"The force which impelled me to found this institution was the fact that the public schools of this state were developing such fine musical groups that I felt that here in the university we should further develop it by the organization of this school," said Mr. Kirkpatrick.

He has taught in the school of music for many years and was ten years ago made director of the institution. He is considered one of the best critics and teachers of music in the middle west.

Mr. Kirkpatrick stated that the school of music was founded in 1894, as a private institution, and it was not until eight years ago

HIGH SCHOOL MUSIC STUDENTS TO GIVE RECITAL SATURDAY

A recital of solos and ensemble numbers will be given next Saturday morning, June 26, by members of the all-state high school music course. Many of the numbers will be ones already known by the students and some will be new. Recitals will be held every Saturday in order to enable the students to show their talents to those interested.

Orchestra rehearsals are held from 7:45 to 9:00 o'clock every morning except Saturday and Sunday. Band rehearsals are from 1 to 2 o'clock. The hour from 3 to 4 is alternated between the two groups. Sectional rehearsals are held twice a week for both groups. Besides the rehearsals each student is being given two private lessons a week for the four week course period.

During some of these recitals, numbers from Mr. Butchel's own pen will be played. Mr. Butchel has written several selections among which is the "Narrator" an overture that is on the 1938 national band contest list. Besides writing he teaches in the Amundsen high school in Chicago and at the VanderCook School of Music. Also he writes a page for the School Musician entitled "Keeping Pace With the Publishers."

SPEECH DEPARTMENT PLANS PRESENTATION OF 'AS YOU LIKE IT'

Veteran Actors Return for Summer Shakespearean Production.

With summer theaters next week opening for another season the university joins the coast to coast movement when the department of speech presents William Shakespeare's "As You Like It" Wednesday, June 30, and Thursday, July 1 in the Temple theater.

This delightful comedy is perfect summer fare. Using the background of the airy forest of Arden, lovers, dukes, villains, shepherds all find their way to this summer playground to woo, fight, frolic and sing. None of Shakespearean plays lend themselves as well to the spirit of vacation and the out of doors as does "As You Like It."

Strong Cast to Play.

The department will have some of its veteran actors in Lincoln and a strong cast has been assembled for the play next week. Leading and directing the troupe will be Hart Jenks, cast as the melancholy Jacques. Mr. Jenks has long been a Players' favorite and an actor of national note. He has played with the Shakespearean companies of such well known actors as Walter Hampden, and Fritz Leiber. Last summer he was with the Folio Players traveling through Wyoming, Colorado and Nebraska. The role of Jaques offers Mr. Jenks an opportunity to read some of the finest lines in Shakespeare.

Helen Lawrence Ames and Harmon Rider will be seen as the two lovers, Rosalind and Orlando. Mrs. Ames has played the role in the Studio Theater performance of the play and at that time won much favorable comment for her charming portrayal. Mr. Rider is the brother of Richard Rider whose record as a Player brother

Lincoln and the university campus has been the mecca for more than a hundred dairy experts from over the world as the 32nd annual convention has been in progress this week. Lasting thru tomorrow, the convention is considered one of the most important in the history of the association as well as one of the largest national meetings ever to be brought to the city.

About 85 attended the conference on the revised federal standards for creamery butter which was held Monday afternoon. While it was not a part of the official dairy convention program, this meeting, sponsored by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, held considerable interest for dairy producers and educators in the field.

An ice cream judging conference was held Tuesday afternoon, and was in charge of Prof. H. W. Gregory of Purdue university. Dr. A. C. Dahlberg of the New York agricultural experiment station acted as judge. Reproduction of dairy cattle also occupied an important place in the opening afternoon.
